CAIRO, Nov. 27.—Mahmud Nekrashy Effendi, until a few days ago Under Secretary of State for the Interior; Makram Obeid Effendi, charged with being implicated in a conspiracy against high British officials, and Abdur Rahman Fahmy Bey have been arrested. Obeid Effendi, nicknamed ironically "Mr. William" by the Opposition because formerly he was the most Anglophile of Egyptians, was one of Zaghlul's companies in exile at the Seychelles. Abdur Rahman Fahmy Bey was condemned to death in 1920 for organizing anti-British outrages.

These three arrests were effected simultaneously at 5:30 o'clock this morning. Automobiles drove up to their respective houses, each with two officers of the British military police and a military policeman. Fahmy, who lives opposite the Ministry of Public Works, had just risen. Nekrashy, who lives in Bulak, was still abed. Obeid was having early tea at Heliopolis. All three when summoned to accompany officers complied, and while they were getting ready their houses were searched.

The arrests created considerable sensation, which was increased by the fact that no one knew on whose order they were made. The Residency, the Department of Public Security and the British military headquarters profess complete ignorance on the subject.

After their arrest the three men were taken to the military police station at Babel-Hadid, where a large crowd gathered. More arrests of notorious agitators are expected at any moment.

The Egyptian Government has issued a communiqué to the effect that as soon as it heard that the British had arrested the three men it inquired into the matter.

Premier Ziwar proceeded to the Residency to confer on the subject with the High Commissioner and as a result the three men have been handed over to the Egyptian judicial authorities, who will in due course take measures provided for in Egyptian law for dealing with the accusation preferred against them.

Settlement of Crisis Expected.

Progress is being made toward a settlement. The difficulty has been to make the Cabinet as well as the mass of Egyptians realize the seriousness of the situation. It did not seem to grasp this and has been inclined to consider it could bargain as usual, or at any rate discuss the conditions imposed.

However, there is reason to believe it now understands what the ultimatum means and that the sole consideration exercising the minds of the Cabinet Ministers is now how best to fit in inevitable acceptance of the British demands with the requirements of the Constitution.

Conferences have been going on at intervals all day between Premier Ziwar and Sir Maurice Amos, judicial adviser, who is acting for Lord Allenby in this matter, and Signor Piola Caselli, legal adviser to the Cabinet.

Safwat Pasha, Director General of the Alexandria Municipality, arrived this morning from Alexandria, accompanied by M. van den Bosch, Procurator General of the Mixed Courts, who is a member of the municipality. They had been urgently summoned by the Prime Minister, as the municipality is interested in the settlement so far as it concerns its foreign officials.

Afterward there was a long meeting of the Cabinet and late tonight it is said the discussions are progressing very well and that a definite settlement is confidently expected by the end of the week.

Zaghlul Plans Trip to Europe.

In usually well informed quarters it is asserted that Zaghlul has applied for a passport in order to leave for Europe.

From information now available about the departure of the Egyptian artillery from Khartum, regarding which startling rumors have been circulating during the last two days, it appears that on Nov. 25 the Residency received a telegram emanating from the officers and men of the Egyptian artillery at Khartum saying they had been ordered by the Acting Governor General to leave the Sudan immediately and that they had been surrounded by British troops.

They added that as their ammunition was limited to about 20 pounds for each rifle and very little for their guns they were unable to make adequate defence against strong armed forces with unlimited ammunition, especially as since the reconquest of the Sudan all the Egyptian ammunition stores had been in the hands of the British authorities. They declared, however, that they were resolved not to leave the Sudan without orders from King Fuad and failing such orders they were ready to die to the last man.

FACTOR IN THE DAWES PLAN

Speyer & Co. and Several Other New York Banking Firms Participate—Bonds to Be Issued.

A $15,000,000 credit, to be used for temporary working capital so that the entire German railroad system may be placed on a money-making basis, thereby aiding the carrying out of the Dawes plan for reparation payments, has been set up by London and New York bankers. This is the first railroad credit arranged for Germany, and consists of about $5,000,000 in pounds sterling and $10,000,000 in American dollars. It is extended to the German State Railway Company.

The New York banks participating are Speyer & Co., the Chase Securities Corporation, Blair & Co., Inc., the Equitable Trust Company, the Bank of the Manhattan Company and the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation. The London banking group is headed by J. Henry Schroder & Co.

The credit is likely to be followed by a long-term bond issue, according to Wall Street reports, but on this subject the American banking group is silent. Speyer & Co. and the London Schroder firm have figured prominently in recent German deals, among their recent purchases being $10,000,000 of capital stock of the Deutsche Bank, Germany's largest private bank.

The German State Railway Company was organized in accordance with the Dawes plan to operate the German system under private management. The system comprises about 33,000 miles of road and is the largest in the world. The equipment consists of 31,000 locomotives, 70,000 passenger cars and 750,000 freight cars, the condition of which is superior to the pre-war condition due to unremitting efforts by the German Government after the war to improve them.

The system cost originally about $6,200,000,000 and has $2,620,000,000 funded debt and $3,571,000,000 capital stock. The funded debt consists of first closed mortgage, forty-year reparation bonds, guaranteed by the German Government. The annual charge, beginning with 1928, will be 5 per cent. a year interest besides 1 per cent. for the cumulative sinking fund. The capital stock consists of $3,095,000,000 of common, issued to the German Government or the German States, and $476,000,000 of authorized preferred, which is presently to be sold. Three-quarters of the proceeds are to secure to the railway company and one-fourth to the German Government. One-fourth of the preferred stock is to be sold within two years and, although the bankers on this point also are silent, there is a possibility that some of this stock, too, will be placed on the American investment market.

The $15,000,000 New York and London banking credit is secured through second mortgage, fifteen-year 7 per cent. gold bonds, which the German State Railway Company has been authorized to issue up to $22,500,000. These bonds in turn will be secured by a mortgage subject only to the lien of the $2,620,000,000 first mortgage reparation bonds, which are secured by a first lien on the entire property of the railroad, fixed or moveable.

According to the report of the Dawes Commission's experts, the gross revenues of the system are about $1,000,000,000 a year. They estimate that net earnings available for interest and sinking fund payments, after adequate reserves, will amount in the first year to $95,000,000, in the second year to $131,000,000, in the third and fourth to between $167,000,000 and $179,000,000, and in the fifth and subsequent years to $100,000,000.

The management is in the hands of an administrative board of eighteen members, all business men or railway experts.

CRAZED BY RELIGION, MAID WITH AXE KILLS ONE AND GASHES TWO

FIGHTS POLICE SAVAGELY

"The Lord Told Me to Kill Them All," She Says After the Tragedy.

HAD ARGUED WITH FAMILY

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 27.—Mary Kumziak, 32 years old, a Polish maid employed since last May in the home of George H. Davey, an accountant, at 339 East Sixth Street, was seized suddenly with religious mania early today. Entering his room while he slept, she attacked him with an axe, nearly severing his head from his body. He died almost instantly.

Then she slashed the cheek of Winifred, his 14-year-old daughter, who had been awakened and had entered her father's bed chamber. The girl turned and fled to call for help. Before she could return with neighbors the domestic had showered blows upon Mrs. Davey, who had been bedridden for the last year with heart disease. It was said tonight at the Muhlenberg Hospital, where Mrs. Davey was taken, that she probably could not recover.

The insane woman fought desperately when the police arrived, but was eventually overpowered and placed in a straitjacket. She was taken to the Union County Jail in Elizabeth tonight and will be arraigned there before County Judge Alfred A. Stein tomorrow on a charge of murder.

"Glad I Got One of Them," She Says.

"The Lord told me to kill them all, and I'm glad I got one of them," Mary said after her arrest, according to the police.

Davey, who was 47 years old, was employed by the Anchor Post Company at its Garwood, N. J., plant. He and his family attend the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church here. Mary, who came to America fourteen years ago, has been a devout Catholic. Since entering the Davey household, May 10, last, she and her employer had discussed their faiths several times, but always without acrimony.

Last night after supper there was another religious discussion between them, but it was not heated, and Mary gave no sign of animosity. It was about 10 o'clock when she mounted to her attic room for the night. Mr. Davey went to bed in his room on the second floor, Winifred, as has been her custom, sleeping with her mother in an adjoining chamber.

Mary must have brooded over the discussion, in the opinion of Dr. Raphael Wood, City Physician of Plainfield, and County Physician W. H. Brokaw, who later examined her, and have been seized with sudden and violent religious mania of the homicidal type. At 2:30 o'clock she left her room and crept down three flights of stairs to the cellar, where she knew there was an axe—a short-handled, keen-bladed tool used for chopping firewood. She turned on the electric light switch, flooding the cellar with light; grasped the axe and then tiptoed up to Davey's sleeping room on the second floor.

Slain as He Slept.

The maid approached the bed silently. Her employer rested on his side and was sleeping. She raised the axe and brought it down across his throat, the blow severing his jugular vein. She continued her attack with maniacal fury, striking five times in all.

At the first blow Davey gave a stifled scream, which awakened his wife in her nearby room. Mrs. Davey believed that it was nothing more than nightmare, she told the physicians at the hospital tonight. Nevertheless, she shook her daughter.

"Get up, Winifred, and see if 'Daddy' is all right," Mrs. Davey said, and her daughter did as she was bid. Winifred switched on the light and stepped into the hall. In the doorway of her father's room stood Mary, clutching the crimson-bladed axe. Without a word she raised it and slashed at the young girl. The blow struck Winifred's cheek and tore it open.

Winifred's one thought, she said later, was to get help, and she dashed down

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 27.—A story of a battle with pirates off New York, matching in thrills the tales of the old Spanish Main, was related by the supercargo of the French steamer Francisca, which arrived here today bearing marks of the stirring scenes on her decks.

Two days ago, the supercargo said, the Francisca unloaded her cargo to a small schooner lying off Rum Row and the crew retired for the night. The schooner, after standing by for some time, suddenly attacked the Francisca.

The schooner's crew, apparently bent on recovering the money which had been paid for the cargo, swarmed over the sides of the Francisca and forced the supercargo into his cabin. He managed to escape, he said, and roused the members of his own crew, who, after a battle with revolvers, drove the attacking party, composed of Americans under a Canadian leader, back to its own boat.

The Francisca, a vessel of 1,369 tons, sailed from Hamburg Aug. 20, bound for St. Pierre Miquelon under the command of Captain Nicolas.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 27.—Discovery of the liquor-laden gasoline boat Boyle G., adrift and abandoned off the San Juan Islands, sixty miles north of Seattle, with blood-spattered decks and sides, has led to the arrest of five men in connection with hijacking operations. Captain W. G. Gillis, master of the Boyle G., and his son William, 17 years old, were killed in the attack.

The case assumed an international aspect today when the Attorney General at Vancouver, B. C., retained special counsel to prosecute those under arrest, and Canadian police officials offered a reward of $2,000 each for the arrest of Owen ("Cannonball") Baker, said to be an ex-convict, and Harry F. Sowash, a liquor dealer.

Baker and Sowash are sought to stand trial with the five men now under arrest, four here and one in Vancouver.

Two American Girls Missing in China After Bandits Take the Town of Juchow

SHANGHAI, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Misses Elizabeth Berglund and Ingebork Nystul, Americans, attached to the Augustana Synod Mission at Juchow, Honan Province, 550 miles west of Shanghai, were missing today after capture of the town by Chinese bandits, according to a message from Hankow. All other foreigners escaped to Kiahsien, twenty-five miles away.

Bandits are holding the Rev. Arne Anda for a ransom of $100,000 and 200 rifles, since his capture at Sichwan, Honan, according to a message to the Norwegian Consulate. Mr. Anda was reported captured on Nov. 21. Sichwan is 130 miles southeast of Juchow.

HANKOW, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Chinese bandits have taken Rev. Arne Anda to an unknown destination, and are holding him until a mission school girl is surrendered to them, according to the Sichwan correspondent of the Central China Post.

The bandits have ordered an English missionary at Kingtzekwan, 35 miles northwest of Sichwan, to pay them $10,000 under penalty of death and the burning of the mission settlement there.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The Misses Ingeborg Nystul and Elizabeth Berglund, Augustana Mission workers at Juchow, China, who are reported to be missing after Chinese bandits captured the town, are from Minnesota, it was learned today.

Miss Nystul has been in the foreign mission field for twenty years, according to Mrs. Peter Peterion, an advisory member of the Foreign Mission Board of the Augustana Synod. Miss Nystul's home is in St. Paul.

SUMS UP 'MR. A' CASE AS HUGE BLACKMAIL

£147,000 IN NOTES TRACED

Lawyer for the "Eastern Potentate" Testifies He Stopped Payment of Second £150,000.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Sir John Simon began today his summing-up speech for the Midland Bank, defendants in the notorious suit over the £150,000 "hush money" paid by an unnamed "Eastern potentate." For three hours, in quiet, even tones, with scorn and indignation breaking through only at intervals, he pieced together for the jury little details of the evidence to prove his contention that there was a barefaced blackmailing plot against the Eastern potentate and that the present case was merely the result of scoundrels falling out about their plunder.

Dramatic events which have been recited in evidence of the "badger" conspiracy in Paris, the alleged theft of £10,000 from Mrs. Robinson by Montague Noel Newton in a London hotel, the histrionic gift of £25,000 by Charles E. Robinson, the plaintiff, to his wife in the office of William Cooper Hobbs, he used merely as background for the careful structure he built up from scraps of testimony to corroborate the evidence given by Newton.

A few more of these little circumstantial details were put in before the defense closed its case, and the morning's hearing was remarkable for an outburst from Hobbs, who showed how heavily the strain is telling on the principals in the case. Hobbs is an elderly man who acted as managing clerk to Appleton & Co., lawyers for the alleged conspirators, and is himself one of the six who formed part of it. He produced two passbooks from the Anglo-South American Bank in Paris, and Simon told him he must stay in court while his juniors examined it.

"You must provide a seat for me; I cannot stand in court all day long; I am in terrible agony," answered Hobbs.

"You may have a chair," said Lord Darling.

A titter ran through the spectators at the back of the court, and Hobbs shouted: "Laughing baboons! Laughing at my agony. Baboons!"

Lord Darling sternly ordered him to leave the witness stand, and as he took the chair placed for him in the well of the court Hobbs said resentfully:

"You ask a doctor to look at me. He'll tell you."

Potentate's Lawyer Testifies.

The most important witness of the day was Mark Francis Waters, a typical member of a high-class firm of solicitors who were consulted by "Mr. A," as the potentate is known in the suit, when demand for £300,000 was made upon him. He was examined by Sir John Simon and described how the aide-de-camp of "Mr. A," who was previously unknown to him, called on him on Dec. 29, 1919.

"He said he had come from Paris on behalf of a male friend who had been found at a Paris hotel by the husband of the woman with whom he was discovered," said the witness. "The aide did not give me the names of the man or woman, but asked me what his friend should do under the circumstances."

"What advice did you give?" Sir John asked.

"I advised that, on his statement, there would be no answer to a petition of divorce and that he should do nothing until the petition was served."

The aide merely told the witness on that occasion that his friend was a very important person, but on Jan. 20 he called again in company with Mr. A. They told Mr. Waters they had settled the matter by giving one check for £150,000 and another similar one to be held up until a time when it could be met.

"I expressed my amazement," said the witness. "I said to the aide, 'But I told you to do nothing.' He shrugged his shoulders and he and Mr. A both gave me to understand that no publicity was essential and they had paid this huge sum under pressure, to avoid scandal."

It was on his suggestion that the second check was stopped and the witness next described how he went to see Hobbs at his office and said to him: "This has been disgracefully dealt with. I shall want a good deal of that money back."

Hobbs, he said, protested there had been no plot, but apparently acquiesced quite readily in the stoppage of the second check.

TWO ARE SLAIN IN HARTFORD

Other Attacks at Schenectady and in the South—Police Put Chinatown Under Guard.

Within a few hours of the expiration of the temporary peace compact yesterday afternoon between the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong, an elderly Hip Sing member was shot and killed by two gunmen in his laundry in the Bronx. This killing was preceded in twenty-four hours by the killing of two Chinese in Hartford by Tong gunmen and the shooting up of a Chinese laundry in Schenectady. A report was received last night from Newbern, N. C., that Charlie Long, a Chinese laundryman, had been found dead in bed with a bullet wound in the head.

Goag Ching Fooc, 58 years old, an inactive member of the Hip Sing Tong, was standing behind the counter of his laundry at 1,419 Brook Avenue, in the Tremont section, at 11 A. M., when without a word two young Chinese opened fire on him with automatic pistols. Goag's 20-year-old son, Goag Yin Sae, was standing a few feet from his father.

Two of the bullets entered the elder man's body, and as he slumped behind the counter the slayers sent a stream of bullets at his son. The youth, however, dropped beside the body of his father and out of view of the gunmen, escaping injury. The murderers believed that he, too, had been slain and backed out of the front door of the laundry with the smoke of the fusillade still drifting behind them.

Crowd Starts in Pursuit.

A crowd of men and women was passing on the thoroughfare when the reports of the murderers' pistols reached them, and all turned their eyes toward the laundry. Some of the more venturesome of the men started toward the laundry, but when they saw two Chinese back out of the place with pistols in their hands they retreated.

The slayers evinced fear from the moment they gained the sidewalk. As they ran along Brook Avenue some of the onlookers took up a discreet chase, and became bolder in the next few seconds as they saw the fugitives throw their weapons into an alleyway and increase their speed. Then a mad chase for the slayers began.

The leaders among the pursuers, several young men, were soon on one of the fleeing men, Lee Har. They felled him with blows in the face and turned him over to others while they continued after the other man. He ran on another hundred feet to St. Paul's Place and then submitted to capture without a struggle. He said he was Moy Yiek Tong, 26 years old.

The reports of the shooting and the cries of the pursuers had attracted Captain James P. Treanor and Policeman McLoughlin of the Bathgate Avenue Station, who were patrolling the district in a police car, and Policeman Corell of the same station, who was walking toward the laundry when the killing took place. They hurried the prisoners back to the laundry, where the son of the slain man, still crouching behind the counter and trying to recall his father to life, immediately identified them as the slayers. The young man readily admitted to the police that both he and his father were members of the Hip Sing Tong, but declared that the prisoners were strangers to them and that neither he nor his father had taken any part in the affairs of their tong which would account for the shooting.

The prisoners from the start refused to make any statement to the police. They even denied at first that they were running when captured, and also declared that they had not thrown away the two pistols, both of which had been recovered by some of their pursuers and found to contain empty cartridges. These denials came in the face of their identification by the men and women who had joined in the chase.

Students Interpret for Police.

Then the prisoners were taken to the station with the son of the victim of the shooting. Captain Treanor hurriedly summoned District Attorney John E. McGeehan and Inspector John D. Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, to take charge of the case. Mr. McGeehan and Assistant District Attorney Mogilesky questioned the suspects. Each gave his address as 41 Mott Street, which Inspector Coughlin said was the headquarters of the On Leong Tong.

Har, who obviously was simulating inability to speak English, eventually admitted that he was born in San Francisco and came to this city with his

JOKES OVER HIS FINANCES

Badly in Need of Money, He Tells Interviewers—Will Disregard Gossip About His Illness.

The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant left New York Hospital yesterday as quietly and as unexpectedly as he entered the institution on Sunday, and last night, laughing and joking at his home in Bedford Village, he announced he was going to work.

Slightly thinner and lacking a bit of his old vigor, but otherwise the same as when he preached from the pulpit of his former charge, the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Dr. Grant said he would leave to their own punishment the persons who originated sensational stories about his illness.

"I am going to turn my hand to whatever will bring in money," he said, in laughingly disclaiming that he intended to concentrate solely on literary work. "I am badly in need of money. I am going to get into something, but just what it will be I can't say at the moment.

Glad to Be Home Again.

"I've just got home, as you can see, and it feels good, too. They had me down in the hospital and they found out what ailed me. I am feeling first-rate now, but, of course, a trifle tired. Apparently they really discovered my trouble, and I am now on the up-grade. I feel deeply grateful for the way in which some of the newspapers handled this matter.

"I'll probably have to fight hard to make enough money, but I shall fight with my spirit; whatever my body may be, my spirit is not sick."

Due to his illness and the long motor ride that brought him from the hospital in West Sixteenth Street forty or more miles through the Westchester hills to Bedford Village, Dr. Grant last night was fatigued and unable to sustain a lengthy conversation. Traces of weariness crept into his voice and he was prevailed upon to retire early. He admitted that he was badly in need of sleep, and that inability to rest well at night in the hospital had prompted him to make the change yesterday.

Before he was formally discharged from the hospital Dr. Grant made two taxi trips down Fifth Avenue to the Hotel Brevoort. The first was to get a haircut and shave, and the second was to partake heartily of a Thanksgiving meal. He displayed a keen appetite—"backing up for more turkey"—and chatted gayly. He amused his table companions by quoting excerpts from Will Rogers's latest book.

Mrs. Lydig Told of His Departure.

The news of Dr. Grant's departure from the hospital and the encouraging statement of his physician were communicated to Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig, the clergyman's former fiancée, at her home, 903 Park Avenue.

"Thank you very much," said a servant, "but madame is not talking to any newspapers."

When the clergyman awoke yesterday morning there was a decided increase in the gain which he had made in the last few days. He has been unable to get to sleep, however, until the night was far gone and he determined to return to his home in Bedford Village without delay. He said that he was confident that the quieter surroundings of his Westchester County home, coupled with the treatment he had received at the hospital, would speed up the pace of his recovery.

Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday Dr. Grant directed that a taxicab be summoned and in it he went down to the Brevoort at Fifth Avenue and Eighth Street, where he went to the barbershop and had a haircut and a shave. He then paid a visit to his sister, Mrs. Madge Stone, who left Bedford Village three days ago and took quarters near the hospital in West Sixteenth Street. Dr. Grant returned to the hospital at 11 o'clock. A report that he attended Thanksgiving Day services at his old church was denied.

The interval between 11 o'clock and 1:30, when he was officially discharged, he spent in packing up his belongings, making arrangements for the disposi-

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A few days more than twenty-five years ago The Hampshire County (Mass.) Gazette quoted T. G. Spalding of Northampton as predicting that some day Calvin Coolidge would be President.

A copy of the newspaper, which is dated Nov. 20, 1899, was received by the President a few days ago. It came from an old friend of Mr. Coolidge. The prophecy reads:

"Clark and Parsons Drug Store is the chief headquarters for most of the Republican politicians these days. It is said that many nominations are started there. Among these is Lawyer Coolidge, who is planning on running for the Common Council. T. G. Spalding says of him that he will one day be President."

DONATES $250,000 TO NEGRO EDUCATION

New York Banker Whose Name Is Withheld Contributes to Hampton and Tuskegee.

M. L. SCHIFF AIDS SEMINARY

Gives $25,000 in Honor of His Mother's 70th Birthday—Has Given $325,000 in Year.

Two important gifts to endowment funds reflected the spirit of Thanksgiving yesterday. A New York banker whose name is withheld gave $250,000 toward a new $5,000,000 endowment for Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes, and Mortimer L. Schiff gave $25,000 to the Jewish Theological Seminary in honor of the seventieth birthday of his mother, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff.

The $250,000 gift was announced by the Hampton - Tuskegee Endowment Fund, with headquarters at 5 Maiden Lane. According to Clarence H. Kelsey, Chairman of the Board of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, and an official of the Fund Committee, the giver, a prominent New York banker, preferred that his name be kept anonymous.

"This $250,000 donation," said Mr. Kelsey, "is symptomatic of the increasing interest men of large affairs are taking in negro education. Bankers, business and professional men and other leaders in public and industrial life have come to a realization that the Negro problem can be solved only through education. The industrial type of education fostered by Hampton and Tuskegee makes a special appeal to these men. The two schools train negro young men and women to be real producers and at the same time to be leaders and teachers of their race.

"Wherever the graduates of Hampton and Tuskegee have gone they have created areas of inter-racial understanding. By their industry and character they have made themselves respected by the whites and have bettered the economic, moral and social conditions among their own people."

The General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation recently pledged $1,000,000 to Hampton and Tuskegee on the condition that the trustees of the two institutes raise an equal amount.

Mr. Schiff's donation was to the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, according to Rabbi Max Drob, Chairman of the One Million Dollar Endowment Fund Campaign. This is Mr. Schiff's second gift of $25,000 toward this fund, of which $950,000 has already been collected in cash and pledges from Jews throughout the country.

During the last twelve months Mr. Schiff has donated to the Jewish Theological Seminary approximately $325,000. Sixty-four thousand dollars was contributed by him toward a fund which was devoted to the purchase of the Elkan Adler library, the acquisition of which gives the seminary the largest Jewish library in the world.

Mr. Schiff also gave $10,000 toward the purchase of the Israel Solomon collection and $3,000 for rearranging the library. Mr. Schiff recently gave jointly with Felix M. Warburg, his brother-in-law, the sum of $215,000 to the seminary for the purchase of a building adjoining the institution at 531 West 123d Street to be used as a library building.

In addition Mr. Schiff presented several original valuable manuscripts to the library during the last year and also was the donor of a copy of the first Bible printed by Gutenberg, now in the possession of the library. Efforts are now being made to complete the One Million Dollar Endowment Fund, of which Louis Marshall is Honorary Chairman.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor announced yesterday total contributions to its work during the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1924, of $670,000, an increase of $2,000 as compared with 1923. Contributions this year numbered 11,084, as compared with 10,232 in 1923. The organization extended relief this year to 28,553 persons, an increase of 3,200 over those assisted last year.

A citizens' committee of 165, of which Mrs. August Belmont is Chairman, is arranging a benefit performance for the A. I. C. P., to be held in the Metropolitan Opera House on the evening of Dec. 30. It is expected that in some respects it will be one of the most unusual benefit concerts ever held in the city. Sixteen noted pianists will appear, with their pianos, on the stage at the same time.

Rita Weiman on Wedding Trip Registers Own Name; "Mr. and Mrs." Trails on the Side

Miss Rita Weiman, author and dramatist, was married to Maurice Marks, an advertising man, yesterday at noon, at her home, 103 East Eighty-sixth Street. The ceremony was performed by Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy and was followed by a family dinner party. Only the members of the two families witnessed the ceremony.

The author will keep her own name. She described the wedding ceremony and told something of her plans just before leaving with her husband for a brief honeymoon in Virginia.

"I was not dressed in fluffy white with a long veil like the conventional bride," she said. "Instead I was married in a going-away dress of tan and brown, a sort of autumnal frock, and I wore a beautiful jade pendant with a diamond clasp, the gift of the bridegroom. My wedding ring was not of the conventional type either, but a ring shaped like a coronet, with a square cut diamond set in platinum.

"We will be gone only about ten days, when I must rush back to town to attend the rehearsal of my new play, 'Moon Magic.' It is not generally known, but my husband also writes. He has written a new play called 'The Marriage License,' and also considerable verse and lyrics. But there will be no professional rivalry between us, only professional interest in each other's work."

After the dinner the couple left for the Briarcliff Lodge, where the bride registered as Miss Weiman above her husband's name, and in parentheses opposite the names she wrote "Mr. and Mrs." They will make their home at the Eighty-sixth Street address.

Only recently the author called herself a misogamist and wrote a magazine story entitled "I Am Still Single Because—," entering into an agreement with the editor, who accepted it six months ago not to wed until the story was published. The time limit expired in October, when the article appeared.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Prince of Wales attended a Thanksgiving Day dinner of the American Society in London tonight and was enthusiastically received by the company, which numbered more than 400.

The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack were conspicuous in the scheme of table decorations. Ambassador Kellogg presided. The Prince, replying to the toast of his health, proposed by the Ambassador, made a humorous speech about his recent trip to America. He said:

"It is just a month since I returned from America and from my wonderful holiday trip, on which I feel the seal is being set tonight by your kind invitation to join you in celebrating your great national festival.

Jokes About Newspapers Here.

"My being able to accept that invitation means I am again enjoying a home product of yours. You have many home products, but the one I mean is that true blend of hospitality and friendliness which tonight makes me feel almost that I am back on the other side and that if I look out of the window I shall see the Woolworth Building and the Wrigley twins. [Laughter and cheers.]

"His Excellency has said many kind words in proposing my health. It was suggested I should tell you something about my stay in America, but I hesitate to do that, because I feel if any of you read your American papers at all regularly during the time I was there you would know a great deal more about my stay than I do myself. [Laughter.] Many things, some of them I do not even remember, seem to have happened to me—on paper. [Laughter.]

"But I remember quite enough to provide a big store of very happy recollections which will last me a lifetime. Perhaps a few of them will be of interest to you, who, although in no sense strangers in a strange land, must be glad to have first-hand views of your own country. [Laughter]

"I had no sooner landed than the President honored me by inviting me to meet him and his family at the White House. That meeting and the day I spent in Washington got me all set for my stay. [Laughter and cheers.]

"My recollections of the polo games are not of the final scores, but of the splendid play of those good sportsmen who played those two great battles—they were great battles—in the presence of a very generous and sympathetic crowd who appreciated any good bit of work by either side.

Calls Himself "Mild Commuter."

"When the games were over I was fortunate in seeing many interesting things in New York City, for instance, your Natural History Museum. [Laughter.] Perhaps I need not enumerate some of the others [laughter], but I would like you to know that I did a little mild commuting on the subway. [Laughter.] Some of you may have heard of that from Will Rogers.

"It seems a pity. He is a great man in New York, and although he 'picked on me quite a little' [laughter], we became great friends and played polo together. In fact he 'did over' one of my polo ponies. [Laughter.]

"All this was only a glimpse of that great city which thrills me. It is a beautiful city and I sincerely hope it will not be the last glimpse.

"Later, on my way back from the Pacific, I had even shorter but equally interesting glimpses of Chicago and Detroit. The obvious remark to make about these two cities is that one turns live pigs into little bits as fast as the other turns little bits into live automobiles. [Laughter.] I won't say which process interested me the most. I have many good friends in both places. I have certainly never spent two more interesting days or been treated more kindly.

"It seems all wrong that on Thanksgiving Day I should be taking up all your time in talking about America, as if I were a second Christopher Columbus. My only excuse is that I do not believe Columbus arrived with anything like the pleasurable anticipation that I did, or that he saw Sandy Hook fade over the horizon with anything like the regret that I had, or wish to see it loom up again some day. [Cheers.]

"I most certainly mean that. I have seen only a very little of your great country, which has so much to show to Englishmen and so much to teach them, and I most certainly look forward to being able to go over again very soon. [Cheers.]

"In thanking you for your hospitality, I feel that in some way I am also expressing to my friends in the United States something of the gratitude I owe them for all they did over there in giving me such a wonderful time.

"I offer my best wishes for Thanksgiving Day and I hope wou will live to enjoy many more." [Cheers.]

Toasted by Ambassador Kellogg.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The Prince of Wales tonight declared that his recent visit to the United States was "a thrill that can come only once in a lifetime."

The occasion was the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the American Society.

which was attended by Frank B. Kellogg, the American Ambassador, and Mrs. Kellogg and a large representation of American residents in London.

The Prince gave his impressions of America while he fussed characteristically with his white bow tie. He dealt with things American in a speech in reply to a toast by Mr. Kellogg, which followed a banquet, the main course of which was turkey and which ended with the usual pumpkin pie.

Mr. Kellogg, in his speech, recalled the peace and harmony which he said had existed between Great Britain and the United States for 110 years. He referred also to a Thanksgiving dinner given twenty-eight years ago by Queen Victoria to the American Ambassador, which custom at some time or other has been followed by her successors on the throne.

In toasting the Prince, Mr. Kellogg said he combined the friendships and good-will of all his predecessors toward the United States, and that he was the most enthusiastic person in England in spreading about good words for the American people.

The Ambassador led the guests in giving three cheers for the Prince, after which the guests followed the English custom of singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

GUARDED TRAINS TAKE LABOR MEN TO MEXICO

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 27.—Protected by armored cars and troop cars, two special trains left here late this afternoon with 350 delegates of the American Federation of Labor and others who are to be guests at the inauguration of President-elect Calles in Mexico City.

The guests are due in Mexico City on Saturday night. Each train of all Pullman cars was preceded by a scout car containing 50 Mexican soldiers. Armored cars with 15 soldiers each brought up the rear of each section of the "A. F. of L. Inauguration Special."

American and Mexican Secret Service officials and El Paso detectives accompanied the party.

No trouble is expected, but elaborate preparations were made to cope with any untoward incidents that might arise. The party is scheduled to be in Lower Chihuahua and Northern Durango tomorrow night and Saturday morning. In this locality there are still some of Hipolito Villa's forces, which have never surrendered.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, heads the party. He will be protected by Secret Service men during his stay in Mexico. In addition to many prominent international union leaders, the party includes C. T. Cramp and A. B. Swales, the British delegates to the recent convention' representatives of the Rand School of New York, the Young People's Socialist League of New York and a group of newspaper correspondents.

KORETZ GIVES UP PROPERTY

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 27.—Leo Koretz, arrested here on a charge of swindling Chicagoans of huge sums, appeared before a Commissioner under the Bankruptcy act this afternoon and voluntarily assigned all his assets in this country to the Eastern Trust Company, acting for the Chicago Title and Trust Company, trustees of the Koretz estate in the United States.

Chester Davis of the Chicago company and two attorneys, Adrian Hoover and Bernard Nath, were present, and Commissioner Cummins pointed out to the prisoner that he was declaring his assets voluntarily. Koretz made a detailed statement and answered all questions readily. His total estate, as declared, amounted to more than $200,000, exclusive of his place at Pinehurst, N. C.

The prisoner was much improved in appearance when he came to court today and his jailer said he was a model prisoner in every way. He has mingled freely with his fellow prisoners and appeared to take pleasure in their company. It has been definitely arranged that the return trip to Chicago will start Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Attorney General O'Hearn said today that he believed Koretz, by waiving extradition, was laying himself open to trial on any charges the authorities wished to bring against him, whereas, in his belief, had the prisoner fought extradition and lost he could have been tried only upon the charge upon which he was extradited.

MUSEUM GETS GLASS DRESS

BERLIN, Nov. 23 (Associated Press).—The Infanta Eulalie's glass gown, which attracted much attention at the Chicago Columbian Exposition in 1893, has been presented to the Deutsches Museum at Munich by Princes Marie de la Paz, sister of Eulalie and an aunt of King Alfonso XIII.

This marvellous ball gown, which Princess Eulalie wore at the grand ball in Chicago and which afterward was exhibited in the Manufactures Building, is of soft spun glass, which has the appearance of imitation silk.

So fine was the glass spun that the 2,500,000 threads in the dress weigh only one pound and bend as readily as silk. The gown is not transparent and it makes no more noise when moved than ordinary silk.

Princess Eulalie, who represented Spain at the Chicago exposition, was only 29 years old when she visited Chicago, and because of her beauty and vivacity she was the most discussed visitor entertained by the exposition officials. The smoking of cigarettes by Eulalie, which at that time was not a custom among American women, provoked much comment.

RADIO TRIES AGAIN TO SPAN THE OCEAN

GARDEN CITY GETS NOTHING

Other Large Stations Give Similar Report—Two Stations Fail to Go Off Air on Time.

The exchange of radio programs between Europe and America, a feature of International Radio Week, was resumed last night, stations here broadcasting between 10 and 11 o'clock and European stations putting their programs on the air from 11 o'clock until midnight.

Reports of the receipt of programs from overseas, while more numerous than on Wednesday night, did not measure up to Tuesday night. Failure of several stations on this side to discontinue their program on schedule not only held up the overseas effort, but deceived radio listeners here into the belief that they were spanning the ocean, whereas they were actually hearing a Canadian station or WJZ.

Station 9CN at Moncton, New Brunswick, was the Canadian offender. According to listeners, the New Brunswick station continued on the air until 11:20 o'clock, one of its jazz band selections, "Sitting Pretty," misleading radio devotees into thinking they were listening to station 2PY at Plymouth, Englan

Radio listeners at their sets on Long Island, in Westchester County and in this city reported hearing what they thought were Madrid, Liverpool, Cardiff and other overseas stations. The big receiving set at the Garden City, L. I., headquarters of Radio Broadcast, the Magazine which sponsored the week at the international exchange of programs, failed to hear anything, and other powerful sets, owned privately, also fared ill.

WJZ Causes Complaint.

WJZ, of the Radio Corporation of America, went beyond its time allotment and carried its regular program over into the time reserved for the overseas efforts. This station was timed by some radio devotees as continuing until 11:12 o'clock. This caused a number of persons to make complaint.

"We don't think it was actually as long as twelve minutes," said an official at WJZ. "We think it was about two to five minutes. It happened when two of our regular radio features, Koty and Abrams, appeared at the studio just a minute before the transatlantic tests were to start. They have often given their services in the past and just as a courtesy we permitted them to go on. They rendered only one short number."

Station WAHG, at Richmond Hill, in its broadcast for overseas auditors, put Miss Amelia Bingham, the actress, on the air at 10:45 o'clock. Miss Bingham opened with a greeting to her friends abroad, and said that she could scarcely believe that her voice might be heard by persons listening in more than 3,000 miles away. She spoke of the many long months which travelers in the old days used to put in getting from point to point, and compared their plight with modern days, when the voice can be transferred in a flash to great distances. She predicted that closer ties of communication would lead to better international relations through quicker and keener understanding.

Miss Bingham closed her offering at 11 o'clock by reciting a poem. Promptly on the dot at 11 o'clock all stations with the exception of WJZ and the Moncton radio closed down to give listeners an opportunity to await the programs from abroad.

Hears a Spanish Program.

Robert H. Drew of Pleasantville, N. Y., reported that he had heard station PTT in Madrid, Spain, very distinctly, getting results from 11:15 to 12:08. The program was in Spanish and the first thing Mr. Drew heard was a baritone solo. He then listened to a speech in Spanish for four minutes, followed by a piano selection.

Other listeners reported hearing a station, operating on a 400 meter wave length, which they were convinced was 5NO at Newcastle, England. Hules Starr of Lawrence, L. I., heard a baritone singer and a piano accompanist very plainly for ten minutes from 11:30 to 11:40 P. M.

C. A. Hand of 875 West 181st Street, at the same time heard this fragment of a program, while W. A. Stead of 815 West 179th Street, who said that he used a one-tube set, reported hearing the Newcastle station's call distinctly. Mr. Stead said that he heard the musical program consistently, from 11:50 o'clock until 12:02. Neither Mr. Starr nor Mr. Hand was able to pick up the call of the station they heard.

Another fan who believed he heard Newcastle was V. B. Scandery, of 90 Richmond Road, New Dorp, Staten Island. He listened in on 400 meters from 11:15 to 11:45 o'clock, picking up the same baritone selection the others heard. On the same wave length the voice of a man, followed by a woman singer came to T. E. Wildberger of Baldwin, L. I. The man's voice was heard by Mr. Wildberger at 11:34 o'clock and the woman's song at 11:42 o'clock. These times checked with the schedules of other listeners.

Many of the radio auditors, forgetting in their excitement the time when American stations were broadcasting in various languages, were misled into believing they were listening to foreign stations. For instance, the program of Station WGY at Schenectady, which participated in the combination sending program to Europe last night, broadcast in Norwegian, Italian, French, Spanish and German as well as in English. On Wednesday night the same languages were employed. In their broadcast program of Station WAHG sent out last night those languages were used.

Picked Up Spanish Program.

Miss Labelle Raymond of 135 West Seventy-second Street reported at about midnight that she had succeeded in picking up a "Spanish language station," but could not learn its identity. At that time, of course, the American stations were silent. She was using a five-tube set.

Another who was convinced that he had heard station 5NO at Newcastle was Gannon Donnelly of 92 Elk Avenue, New Rochelle. At 11:40 o'clock he reported picking up a piano selection, which was followed by a woman singing.

At 11:20 o'clock, Mrs. H. W. Theodore of Ridgewood, N. J., reported hearing what she believed was Liverpool. The contact was brief, merely a fragment of a jazz selection getting through.

Early this morning scores of telegrams began to be received at the headquarters of Radio Broadcast from persons who reported hearing Station 5NO at Newcastle. Officials of the magazine said this indicated that the Newcastle station apparently got through better than any of the others.

Other messages reported that between 11:30 o'clock and 12:30 o'clock many auditors caught fragments of a foreign station, either Spanish or French. One listener, who reported that he understood Spanish, declared that he thought the station he caught was PTT at Madrid. This man said he heard foreign exchange quotations being given in Spanish.

Mrs. Godfrey S. Cohen of George Place, Flushing, reported that she had heard music between 11:10 and 11:20, which she believed came from some European station. She said she was not able to get the name of the station and that the music just "faded away." Mrs. Cohen used a five-tube neutrodyne set.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Remarkably good reception of American broadcasting during this International Wireless Week is being obtained by some English amateurs. Their results are better in fact than those of the official British broadcasting company, which has to amplify signals from head-phone strength to power sufficient to pass along a land line and be relayed out, thereby increasing unevenness of reception and extraneous noise.

At 2KF, an experimental station maintained by a well-known English amateur, J. A. Partridge of Merton Park, there was this morning practically no serious interference and it was possible to hear the KDKA program through head phones with certainty at any time desired, at strengths varying from that given by a crystal near the station to that of one or two tubes, while there was scarcely any distortion. Reception was so sharp that at the end of one piece the hum of KDKA's generator could be heard.

American amateurs could be logged by dozens on Morse code and two-way communication established without difficulty. Conversations were carried on with J. S. Morris, Atlanta, Ga., 410, and Lyman of Massachusetts, 1KC, the subject being one popular in other than wireless dialogues, namely, the weather. So efficient seemed the short waves used by KDKA in covering distance that it was possible to hear its signals faintly but clearly without antenna or ground, whereas no other American station of higher wave length could be tuned in at any time.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 27.—Officials of station KDKA reported that a wave length of about 100 meters was used in the broadcast heard in England. The same length was employed for tonight's program.

PASSION PLAYERS GOT $100,000, BATTLE SAYS

He Replies to Complaint of Art Guild That Actors' Visit Was Disappointing.

Replying last night to a complaint attributed to Herr Benedik Stuckl, representative of the Heimatkunst, or industrial Art Guild of the village of Oberammergau, Bavaria, that insufficient funds had been obtained with which to sustain the Passion Play there through the recent tour of some of the actors and an art exhibition, George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Oberammergau Reception Committee here, said that about $100,000 had been obtained through the tour.

He explained that the tour was financed with $35,000 which had been subscribed by the committee, that the best auditoriums had been hired and the participants in the exhibition registered at the best hotels in the ten principal cities which the tour covered. He added that special express cars had to be hired for the transport of the exhibition and that the committee felt that the difficulties of the Passion Play had been disposed of and the consequent publicity obtained for it would react for many years to come through the patronage of the play in the future.

"The delegation received money for the return to Germany, first class, as well as a draft for $10,000," Mr. Battle said in a statement. "A large sum was spent to meet the needs of the delegation and the exhibition. Other sums were sent to Oberammergau. The village and the cause of the play received in all, through the efforts of the American committee, about $100,000."

The statement also said that the remaining art objects had been turned over to Mr. Stucki and, through the cooperation of the committee would be offered for sale in December.

Full records and accounts were kept from the beginning, Mr. Battle explained, and bonded cashiers and trusted managers under E. F. Albee, one of the subscribers to the venture, who had taken the tour over after it left this city, handled the tour.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Michael Francis Doyle, a local attorney who represents the committee in charge of the recent American tour of the Oberammergeu Passion Players, said tonight that he was making every effort to clear up the financial affairs following the report in New York of a controversy in connection with the tour. He declared that only a part accounting had been obtained and that this was not satisfactory.

"We have been trying to get a complete accounting from the New York committee," said Mr. Doyle. "Only a partial accounting has been made and forwarded to Oberammergau, but this is not satisfactory. Mr. Stuckl (of Oberammergau) is in this country for the purpose of assisting in clearing up the matter."

Ring, father of Miss Blanche Ring, the actress, died last night in Roosevelt Hospital of injuries received several days ago when he was struck by an automobile at Broadway and Sixtieth Street. Mr. Ring, who was 75 years old, was on a visit to Miss Ring and her sisters, the Misses Frances and Julie Ring, also actresses, from his home in Boston when the accident happened.

He was born in Boston, the son of Julie Fisher, a famous actress, and eventually became head of the Boston Museum, with which he remained for more than twenty years. Besides his daughters he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Wilhelmina Ring, and a son, Cyril Ring.

Stanley Tuczapliki of 2,419 Huntingdon Street, Philadelphia, was killed yesterday morning and Charles Cybold of 267 Cumberland Avenue, Philadelphia, driver of the car in which he was riding, received cuts and bruises about the head and body when the car crashed into a telegraph pole between Morrisville and Fallington, Pa., while they were on their way to a Thanksgiving dinner at Freehold, N. J. Tuczapliki died of a fracture of the skull in the ambulance in which he and Cybold were being taken to the McKinley Hospital.

In a similar accident at Greene and Evergreen Avenues, Brooklyn, in the forenoon James Meade of 988 Bedford Avenue received a possible fracture of the skull, and his cousin, Joseph Meade of the same address, sustained cuts and bruises about the face and body. They were removed to a hospital. Louis Goodman of 2,010 Mermaid Avenue, driver of the car, was unhurt, although thrown out with the other occupants. He said he lost control of the automobile when the steering knuckle broke.

Miss Dorothy Schweibert, 28 years old, of 710 Richmond Road, Richmond S. The boy received a fractured skull from which he died almost instantly. Rudcinski, who had a learner's permit to drive, was held in $1,000 bail by Justice Tracy, and Frank Sosnick, a chauffeur who was instructing him, was fined $50. Marie Bowers, six years old, of Lodi, died at the Hackensack Hospital from injuries suffered when an automobile truck struck her while she was playing in the street.

PIPE SMOKER BURNED BY FIRE HE STARTED

Ashes Ignited Bedclothing After He Fell Asleep and He May Die.

Samuel Dubois, 48 years old, was smoking his pipe and reading in bed last night in his room on the second floor front at Mrs. Justine Boissonade's boarding house at 140 East Thirtieth Street. He fell asleep and the ashes from his pipe ignited the bed clothing. The flames swept upward to the top of the four-story, brown stone structure. Firemen had them under control when Mrs. Boissonade remembered that she had not seen Dubois.

Patrolman Thomas McGrath of the East Tihtry-first Street station, groped his way up the stairs through the smoke and forced Dubois's door open. He found the lodger lying on the bed in his pajamas, unconscious, and turned in an ambulance call to Bellevue Hospital, Dr. S. Kleegman, a woman physician, responded. She found Dubois had been burned over most of his body, his face, arm and legs. He was taken to the hospital where it was said he would probably die.

The damage is estimated at $10,000.

STAINS NOT HUMAN BLOOD.

Preliminary Analysis in Cremation Case Is Negative.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 27.—Tests of stains that were found in the Christ Lutheran Church parsonage in Bexley when the body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley was burned in the furnace of her home show no traces of being human blood, it was said tonight. Although the analysis has not been completed, the experts indicated the results so far have been negative.

The guard of students was continued at the parsonage and the family remained in seclusion. The Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of the victim, will address the student body of Capital University on Monday and then will go into retirement for a month, he said.

Physician Issues Statement.

Dr. Lewis A. Conner of 121 East Sixty-second Street, the clergyman's personal physician, gave his patient a final test before his departure. The physician had joined Dr. Frederick Peterson of 20 West Fiftieth Street in preliminary tests last Monday. Dr. Conner, refusing to amplify or discuss it in any way, left this statement at the hospital:

"Dr. Grant is suffering from a severe form of primary anaemia, which has resulted in considerable loss of flesh and strength and in some degree of nervous exhaustion. For some years also he has had a tendency to increased blood pressure and arteriosclerosis.

"The examinations thus far made have shown no evidence of organic disease of the brain or spinal cord. Improvement is likely to be slow and he will require a long period of complete physical and mental rest.

"Because of his inability to sleep in the hospital he has decided to return to his home today and to postpone any further examinations.

"LEWIS A. CONNER, M. D."

Takes Two Helpings of Turkey.

The party drove down Fifth Avenue eight blocks, past the church where the clergyman preached for so many years, and to the Brevoort. Dr. Grant's appetite was keen and he had two helpings of roast turkey. He was in high fettle, laughing and joking with Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Walker, and seemed to be utterly unconcerned about the sensational stories which were published when he entered the hospital.

The clergyman, recounting the books he had read in the hospital in an effort to while away the hours, said that he had been especially amused by Rogers's latest. He retold several of the cowboy comedian's yarns. In speaking of his illness Dr. Grant laughed about it, and clung to his original idea that all that ailed him was a shortage of red corpuscles in the blood. After luncheon Dr. Grant, accompanied by Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Sarah J. Graham, his housekeeper for sixteen years, engaged a closed car and left for Bedford Village.

CALLES WORKING OUT NEW SCHOOL PLANS

Immigration and Border Control Discussed by American Assistant Secretary and Mexicans.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—President-elect Calles plans an extensive educational campaign after taking office, using the Cruz Galvez Vocational School, established in the State of Sonoro, as a model. Modern methods of carpentering, plumbing, drawing and engineering are taught at the Galvez school by practical demonstration.

President-elect Calles's own ideas will be worked out into a complete educational program. The Department of Education is now directing its efforts toward practical education of Indians in the rural districts.

President-elect Calles held a long conversation today with the American Assistant Secretary of Immigration, Mr. Henning, who discussed educational plans in the United States and gave General Calles pointers on the educational methods used at Mooseheart School at Mooseheart, Ill. General Perez Trevino, Secretary of Industry, Labor and Commerce, held a long conversation with Mr. Henning regarding immigration problems of the United States and Mexico. It is known that, although the United States has closed the front door to immigration, yet the back door at the Mexican border is still open. It is estimated that more than 100 immigrants enter the United States daily without formalities. Fifteen hundred immigrants are now in Mexico City waiting for an opportunity to enter the promised land. A number of immigrants, after one year's residence in Mexico, have taken out Mexican citizenship papers, thinking that they would then be permitted to enter the United States. Sorrowful tales are heard of immigrants who have invested their savings in vain efforts to enter the United States and have found that the so-called friendly agents have vanished with their cash.

The Mexican Government is making an effort to prevent border running, but without a large border patrol on both sides officials say many immigrants will enter in spite of efforts of the Mexican Government.

FIRE ROUTS 8 FAMILIES.

Some at Table, About to Eat Their Thanksgiving Dinner.

Eight families, some of them just seated at their tables ready to have their Thanksgiving dinners, were driven from their homes early last evening when fire was discovered in the ground-floor stores of two three-story tenement houses at 3,063-3,065 Third Avenue.

The fire was seen by Patrolmen Tate and Battalini of the Morrisania station, and they ran through the building, ordering the occupants out. By the time Battalion Chief O'Connor arrived, the flames had wrecked the Pride Ladies Wearing Apparel store and Naumann's Photographic Studio. The firemen confined the fire to these two places, and an hour later the eight families returned to their homes. The damage was $15,000.

MORE CLEWS FOUND IN BANKER'S DEATH

Bloody Handkerchief in Cabin Near Fee Murder Scene Has Hair of Man and Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Nov. 27.—Efforts to penetrate the mystery in the slaying of William R. Fee, a banker, of Alhambra, today reverted to Joseph A. Walker, who is said to have esteemed himself a rival to Fee for the affections of Miss Mary F. Watkins, and to the young woman herself. Neither Walker, Miss Watkins nor any other person at present is under arrest for the death.

San Bernardino city and county authorities spent the day in a search of the Lytle Creek Canyon road section where Fee last Saturday afternoon disappeared from sight of his wife and 9-year-old granddaughter at their cabin camp, not far removed from Miss Watkins's cabin camp, near which the banker's body was found at 12:15 P. M. Tuesday.

A third cabin was examined today. This cabin, unoccupied since last Summer, was closer to the Watkins place than Fee's cabin, but on the other side of the road from each.

This cabin provided the first definite clues. In it was found a man's handkerchief, bloody, with three strands of hair sticking in a blood clot. Two were short hairs, a man's, and one a woman's long hair.

Whether these wisps of evidence can be identified as hair from Fee and any particular woman will be determined in a test, according to the Sheriff.

In the absence of other definite motives the authorities are working on the theory that the assault upon Fee was not an effort to murder and that it was committed by some one whom the 55-year-old banker had surprised in a love tryst forty-eight hours or more before the body was found.

Testimony at the inquest today concerned the activities Saturday night of the two young couples who formed the outing party at Miss Watkins's cabin, and the interpretation given by her and by Walker of the relations existing between Miss Watkins and Fee.

Walker escorted Miss Watkins on the overnight camping trip. Their other companions were Miss Mary Bell, 21 years old, of San Gabriel and Paul Kennedy of Los Angeles, said to be Miss Watkins's cousin.

Walker said the girls slept inside the cabin and that he and Kennedy slept on the screened porch. He admitted that when he went to bed Miss Watkins had not retired.

Other inquiry today centred on the hurried trip of Walker and Miss Watkins back to the scene of their cabin party on Monday night, when two Deputy Sheriffs, to whom they had communicated their intention, spied on them from the brush while the man and woman went about mysterious errands by the aid of flashlights. When asked what tney sought on that trip, Miss Watkins said:

"I don't know. I had an uneasy feeling Mr. Fee might have been in distress and come to my cabin for some food."

Both she and Walker said they "got afraid" and hurried away. They said a friend of theirs, Dr. Charles Bennett of Los Angeles, had informed them a maniac had been wandering through Lytle Canyon and they feared the crazy man might have harmed Mr. Fee.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The police announced today that they had intercepted two telephone conversations between Joseph Walker and Mary F. Watkins, one at the time the body of William Fee was found, and the other after the finding of the body must have been known to both of them.

parents when he was 5 years old. Tong was found to be a newcomer to this country and thereafter all questions were directed to the younger suspect. Har withstood a bombardment of interrogation for several hours, and then two young Chinese students at Columbia University appeared at the station to act as interpreters. Their appearance was by arrangement with the police several weeks ago when the renewal of the old feud between the tongs already had resulted in fifteen murders and twice as many attacks on enemy tongmen by gunmen and hatchet men throughout the country.

Har was disconcerted when the young interpreters, whose identity was withheld by the authorities, fearlessly plied him and his companion with questions propounded by the prosecutors and Inspector Coughlin. The officials said afterward they had got important admissions from both prisoners, but would not reveal what these were. Har and Tong said that Har had been employed as a cook in a restaurant at 125 Bowery and that Tong was a waiter there. They persisted in their statements that they lived in the building where the On Leong Tong has its headquarters.

While they were being interrogated Captain Treanor and a dozen detectives had made a canvass of the block in which the killing occurred and gathered up many witnesses, six of whom were alleged to have identified the two prisoners as the men they saw back out of the laundry with pistols and start running on Brook Avenue. Assistant District Attorney Mogilesky declared that the witnesses were so positive in their identifications that a clear case of murder had been established against them through the corroboration of the identification by the son of the slain laundryman, who was held as a material witness to protect him from gunmen.

Killed Before End of Truce.

Eddie Gong, Secretary of the Hip Sings, was summoned to the laundry by the police and identified the victim as a Hip Sing member. Later, in Chinatown, he explained that the man had never been an active member and that he was in arrears in dues for six months.

"Does the killing of this man mean that the warfare between the tongs has been reopened?" he was asked at the Hip Sing headquarters at 15 Pell Street.

"There is no question about that," Ging replied. "This man was killed at 11 A. M., and the truce arranged between the tongs by Consul General Ziang Ling Chang of this city did not expire until 2 P. M."

"What will the Hip Sing members do about it?" was asked.

"What can we do? We don't want trouble. I personally feel that we will have to protect ourselves, however. I thought that the temporary peace arrangement made by the Consul General and the committee of the Chinese Merchants' Association would continue, even after its expiration this afternoon.

"The first inkling I had that it was not to continue was last night when a committee of merchants called on me here and asked if the Hip Sing Tong would consent to continue the peace agreement," continued Gong. "I told them I was surprised at their question, because I felt that bloodshed between the two tongs was a thing of the past and that, while differences still existed between them, they eventually would be smoothed out and the use of gunmen and hatchetmen dispensed with. I didn't think, though, that there would be a killing even before the peace arrangement had expired."

While Gong was talking, many Chinese, all members of his tong, were trooping into the headquarters. He explained that a meeting of the tong had been hastily called and that the members were coming from all over the metropolitan district. He admitted that the failure of the peace compact would be discussed, as well as the most recent killing of one of their members.

Three Hip Sing guards walked up and down the sidewalk in front of the building, while others were posted on the roof and in the yard. Gong said that the chief difference between the tongs was that the On Leong, with the largest membership, had demanded that the Hip Sing expel about 300 of its members. He said that the Hip Sings had to decline because such a move would virtually mean the elimination of their tong.

Extra Caution in Chinatown.

Extra precautions were taken by the police last night to guard Chinatown against a possible recurrence of the pistol battle which signalized the reopening of the feud between the tongs on Oct. 8 last, after a truce of twelve years. Twenty additional uniformed policemen were added to the thirty who had been kept in the district night and day since the renewal of the warfare last month. Captain Charles Stillson, head of the First District Detective Bureau, also appeared in the district with about thirty detectives, ten of them from the Special Service Division, to support the detectives who had been kept on duty there with the uniformed men since the renewal of hostilities. It was understood that orders were issued to Police Captains throughout the city to instruct their men to give extra protection to all Chinese laundries and restaurants in the city to prevent any more shootings like that in the Bronx.

TONG GUNMEN ESCAPE AFTER MURDERING TWO

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 27.—Hartford police could find no clue today to the Chinese gunmen, believed to be Hip Sing Tongmen from Albany or Syracuse, who murdered two Hartford On Leong members in their laundry on Park Street last night.

The elder of the slain Chinese was identified as Lung Foo, known to his customers as Sam Lee, but the younger laundryman who died in the hospital after he had collapsed in the street striving to grapple with his murderers is still unidentified.

One of the murderers escaped with a gun in his hand, but the other weapon, a Colt revolver, manufactured in this city, was found on the laundry floor and through its serial number the police hope to trace the original purchaser.

The detectives and leading Chinese of Hartford were interested in the report of another Chinese murder in New York today, but did not connect it as related to the Hartford crime.

MAN WITH A PISTOL CAUGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, Nov. 27. — The Chinese who murdered their two countrymen in Hartford Wednesday are believed to have been the same men who fired on a Chinese laundry on Nott Terrace here. The shots were fired by men in a motor car and they were known to have made a survey of several other Chinese laundries and stores.

The police began a roundup of Chinese pistol carriers in Schenectady and within an hour had made one arrest. The prisoner said he was Henry Lee, a merchant of Ballston Spa. He was found coming out of a store in the Chinese quarter with a pistol under his silk blouse. He denied, however, that he was connected with either tong or knew anything about the shooting earlier in the night. He was released in $250 bail when arraigned in the police court, pending an examination.

Witnesses told the police that ther were several men in the automobil which drew up in front of the Nott Terrace Laundry, inside which several Chinese were at work. One of their bullets shattered the plate glass, another penetrated the window of a shop near by, while all of the shots narrowly missed hitting a party of men passing the place at the time.

EX-KAISER'S ADMIRAL TURNS REPUBLICAN

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—German Monarchists have been thrown into a grand rage by the action of Admiral von Truppel, ex-Governor of the German colony of Kiaochow in China, one of the big men in the old imperial navy of Tirpitz days, in suddenly forgetting old Junker traditions and blossoming forth as an ardent admirer of the German Republic.

It was bad enough in Junker eyes when Generals von Deimling and von Schönaich of the World War veterans so far forgot old imperial traditions as to transform themselves into Republican standard bearers and stump speakers. But to have one of the right-hand men of Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, one of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm's naval favorites, throw the old traditions to the winds and start cheering for an emperorless Germany—that seems to the Junkers the last straw. Von Truppel has announced he will take the stump for the Democratic Party in the present electoral campaign, and this has so outraged the feelings of his old naval comrades that they have addressed an open letter to him upbraiding him for his backsliding. They brand as "beyond comprehension" that a naval officer who knows the meaning of the old German black, white and red flag can speak in favor of the new republican black, red and gold.

The letter concludes with the terrific words "We, your former comrades, repudiate you."

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—General von Nathusius arrived at his home in Cassel this evening and immediately issued a statement to the press declaring he had not accepted a French pardon but on the contrary had signed a strong protest against his pardon and asked his counsel to forward it to Premier Herriot.

In this document, he said, he had stated it was impossible for him to accept a pardon because he had never pleaded guilty to any crime. He was innocent and must insist that his honor be restored to one who had grown old and gray without ever having been guilty of any crime. That could only be done by canceling the unjust verdict.

In another document Nathusius stated he had appealed to the French Supreme Military Court and hoped that the verdict of the lower court would be revised. He was ready at any time to appear again before any French Military Court to defend his honor, the only thing he had left in his old age.

All Cassel was out to greet him at the railway station. Young women presented him with flowers and the Provincial Governor, Dr. Schwandter, made a speech, insisting that the General's honor be restored.

SHORT MEASURE CHARGED.

False Bottom Reduced Contents From 15 to 9 Pounds, Sealer Says.

Isadore Pearse of 75 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, was arrested yesterday charged by County Sealer of Weights James Moen with using a false bottom in a wooden measure which would give customers forty per cent less potatoes than they were entitled to.

Moen alleges that the measure, supposed to contain one peck, had a capacity of nine pounds instead of fifteen pounds. Therefore, he alleges, it would cheat a customer out of six pounds on every fifteen-pound purchase. The defendant obtained bail and the case will come up in Yonkers City Court this morning.

FASCISM IS SHAKEN BY INTERNAL CRISIS

Letter by Gen. Balbo Urging Violence Against Reds Causes a New Sensation.

HE QUITS POST UNDER FIRE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 27.—As a consequence of the amazing revelations contained in the letter of General Italo Balbo, Commander-in-Chief of the Fascist militia, to the head of the Fascisti in Bologna, in which he urged the latter to employ violence against the Communists and to bring pressure to bear on high Government officials, Fascism is again in the throes of a crisis perhaps more dangerous than previous crises involving it with the Opposition, because this one is within the party itself.

On the one hand, General Balbo has tendered his resignation as Chief of the Militia and Premier Mussolini has accepted it; on the other hand, the Fascisti, especially in the Provinces of Bologna and Ferrara, who still see in Balbo the leader of their most splendid victories, have received this decision with only half-veiled discontent.

Mussolini has been placed in a very difficult position. Especially now that the Fascist Militia has been constitutionalized by swearing faithfulness to the King, he obviously cannot retain at its head a man who fifteen months ago advocated violent and illegal methods against Fascismo's enemies. General Balbo, however, who commanded Fascismo's legions during Mussolini's revolution two years ago, is extremely popular with his men and any attempt to treat him too harshly would be violently resented by them.

Balbo Aids Peace by Party Loyalty.

After his speech in the Chamber last Saturday, in which he solemnly bound himself to lead Italy back to perfect peace and the observance of laws, Mussolini cannot draw back now. Strenuous efforts are therefore being made to pacify the Fascisti and, by appealing to their sense of discipline and devotion to their party, to induce them to accept General Balbo's removal as an unpleasant but necessary course.

In this the Directorate of the Fascist Party has been aided by the loyal attitude of Balbo himself, who declared that he resigned voluntarily to avoid creating any embarrassments for Mussolini's Government, and that he wishes to assume full personal responsibility for all his past actions.

General Balbo's letter in which he tendered his resignation and Mussolini's reply in which he accepts it have caused various emotions in different sections of the press and groups of the public according to their political faiths. The Fascisti and their sympathizers consider them frank, loyal letters of men whose consciences are at rest. The Opposition labels them masterpieces of effrontery.

The Balbo-Mussolini Letters.

General Balbo's letter is as follows:

Dear President:

A letter written by me exactly fifteen months ago in a moment of exasperation at the acquittal of the murderers of four of my comrades in ambush at Castello Estiene is today furnishing fresh material for the political speculation of our adversaries. I do not propose to argue the matter with them nor to create any difficulties for the Government.

If I have made a mistake I, shall pay the penalty, as all gentlemen and all Fascisti must.

Meanwhile I tender you my resignation as Commander-in-Chief of the Militia.

With all my ancient devotion,
Yours,
ITALO BALBO.

The reply of Premier Mussolini reads:

Dear Balbo: I have received your letter and accept your resignation, which is prompted by a high sense of responsibility and pride worthy of your traditions as a Fascist and a gentleman.

You have given great proofs of loyalty to the Fascisti, and this significant gesture of yours confirms the absolute disinterestedness with which you have served and will continue to serve our cause.

In the political field you will always remain in the favor of Fascimo in the Province of Emilia, which has been capable of the greatest of sacrifices and has given birth to our most solid legions.

I decide that you, though retaining your rank, shall be placed on the retired list on Dec. 1 of this year.

With cordial salutations,
MUSSOLINI.

The extreme Fascist and Opposition newspapers are fighting savagely and without any moderation in their language about this latest scandal, and even the moderate press is extremely shocked at the revelation of General Balbo's letter to Bologna.

It is conceded that he can claim many extenuating circumstances, such as his youth, the fact that he wrote the letter soon after the march on Rome, when the excitement of the revolution had not yet died down, and the exasperation at the murder of his companions.

The moderate press, however, urges Mussolini to complete the constitutionalization of the militia by placing a responsible army officer at its head.

General Balbo recently challenged General Peppino Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian liberator, to a duel as result of the clash of Fascisti militia and former soldiers in the streets of Rome on the Austrian Armistice Day. The duel was finally referred to the Permanent Court of Honor in Florence.

WOULD IGNORE US ON LEAGUE PROTOCOL

LONDON, Nov. 27.—"To be governed in the least in our decision upon the protocol by any thoughts of American susceptibilities would be the same sort of combined folly and baseness as it would have been in 1914 to desert Belgium and France," says Lord Charnwood in a letter to The London Times.

"I was in America when the war ended," continues Lord Charnwood. "I have had some means of knowledge about the actual thoughts of Roosevelt on this matter, and for the last six years of the life of Senator Lodge I lived on terms of intimate and affectionate correspondence with the latter statesman. It may be well, even now, to declare that the opposition of those who prevailed against the Covenant in America to its governing principle had been well thought out and plainly declared by them before America entered the war, and further, that these were men anxious beyond perhaps all others to play a loyal part toward the French and ourselves in the war.

"I doubt whether, even now, any adhesion of America to the League which could come about through any party victory over such men's opposition could be worth having.

"Once upon a time the Americans were quick to notice or imagine what Lowell called a 'certain condescension in foreigners.' Lately they have been quick to notice and justly despise a certain rather groveling anxiety of foreigners for their august approval and support.

"Few things could be more harmful. The friendship toward this country of dishonorable people in America is neither worth having nor to be had at any price. That of the still more potent honorable people is to be had at the price of our acting persistently as our own honor may direct us, without undue solicitude as to what, often with less knowledge than we have, they may think and without any fear of them."

MADRID, Nov. 27.—The interest aroused by Howard Carter's first lecture on the discovery of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, when many hundreds were turned away, was so great that the Duke of Alba obtained the new Fontalba Theatre for the second lecture yesterday.

The King and Queen attended and the theatre was thronged from pit to gallery. The lecture was received with intense interest and at its conclusion Mr. Carter said a few words in answer to the question: "Why disturb the dead?"

The object of the search, he declared, was solely to acquire for present and future generations, the knowledge of past civilization and for this purpose it was legitimate to interrogate even the dead.

"As soon as we have obtained the knowledge we seek," he said, "the tomb will be closed and Tut-ankh-Amen left in eternal repose."

Mr. Carter presented to the Hispano-British Committee for Educational Purposes the films and slides brought to Madrid for the lectures. In doing so, he said, he was performing an act which would have greatly pleased the late Lord Carnarvon.

SUMS UP 'MR. A' CASE AS HUGE BLACKMAIL

brought out that Waters was able to produce the second check because the aide had handed it to Mr. A's London bankers.

"When it came from the aide," asked Lord Halsbury, "was he trying to make a little more for himself?"

"I gathered so," the witness replied. "He asked to be paid £20,000 after he had given up the checks. He threatened us with a writ and I said I hoped it would arrive."

"Did it?" asked Lord Darling, innocently.

"No, my Lord," replied the witness, who then admitted that when he had accused Hobbs of a regular blackmailing plot he had no facts at all to go on. "I was trying to bluff him," he said.

Large Bank Notes Are Traced.

Employes of three hotels were called this morning to show that Mrs. Robinson, with Mrs. Bevan, her companion, registered at the Midland Adelphi Hotel in Liverpool on Dec. 31, 1919, and that she was at other times at the Mandeville and Rubens hotels in London.

Joseph Campbell, tobacconist, next door to the office of Albert & Co., the Robinson patent medicine concern, testified that in January, 1920, Robinson gave him three £50 pound notes to back a horse and then George Taylor of the British Mutual Bank proved that Campbell paid these notes into his account on Jan. 20, 1920. This evidence was taken in order to prove how Robinson got rid of some of the notes which it is claimed were paid to him out of Mr. A.'s £150,000 check.

For the same reason, Charles Midgley of the firm of real estate agents who leased the Chapel Street house to Mrs. Robinson, took the stand to prove that on Jan. 19, 1920, the rent for it was paid in five £50 notes and nine £1 notes. He denied Robinson's evidence that it was he who paid the money and said it was the woman. He took her to be Mrs. Robinson. The witness also stated Mrs. Sands, who owned the house, told him she was afraid Mrs. Robinson was giving "not quite proper parties," she thought gambling parties, there.

Further evidence was given by Henry Enever, accountant for Albert & Co., and Robinson himself. It also was directed to the tracing of notes for large sums, but it led to no definite results.

This concluded the evidence, and when Sir John Simon made some suggestions to the Court as to summing up Lord Darling said: "It does not appear to me to be a case in which it will be necessary to deal with the evidence at great length. I do not propose to go into minutiae."

Sums Up Conspiracy Evidence.

Sir John Simon then began to sum up. Turning slightly toward the jury, he spoke for three hours in quiet, even tones without declamation or gesture. Only occasionally there crept into his voice the scorn or sarcasm with which he viewed the conspiracy that he conceived had been devised against Mr. A.

His argument, founded in the main on piecing together little points in evidence in order to back up Newton, his principal witness, was all the more forcible for the argumentative tones in which it was presented. Whoever heard, he asked, of such a sum as £300,000 being honestly come by as a result of such intimacy as that between Mr. A. and Mrs. Robinson? A great many people would scorn the suggestion, he said, that if their wives were unfaithful they would take no proceedings against them but should receive a vast sum instead.

Simon drew a comparison between this £300,000 and the £500,000 demanded by Great Britain as indemnity from Egypt.

"When a grave insult was inflicted on the British name and a loyal servant of this country and of Egypt was struck down," he said, "the sum demanded to vindicate the whole might of Great Britain was £500,000. In this case Robinson had the moderation to say not £500,000 but £300,000."

Simon declared no one would believe Mr. A. parted with that vast sum freely and voluntarily. Newton had frightened "this poor, shivering, green wretch" into a state of abject terror. He thought there was only one way of escaping ruin. Mr. A. had been robbed of the money, he declared, and no one could walk into court and say, "That is my money." It was Mr. A.'s money, although he had very small chance of getting it back.

Prince's Aide de Camp Denounced.

Simon denounced the aide de camp as a scoundrel who went to the extreme limit of villainy and then proceeded to marshal evidence which corroborated his chief witness, Newton. He candidly admitted it needed corroboration. However impressive, the evidence of a man convicted of crime must be accepted with caution, he said, but Newton had walked out of the box after a skillful cross-examination absolutely unshaken. Simon's first point was the presence of all six conspirators at Chapel Street in the months before the Paris scene. He referred to the testimony of servants left behind by Mrs. Sands. He took little points like the absence of one latchkey when the house was relinquished to show it had been given to Newton as he had testified, as the giving of a tea to Mrs. Bevans's daughter in the kitchen that she might not meet undesirable acquaintances, to prove that the aid and Hobbs were in the house. With a sneer he spoke of Robinson's in-and-out behavior in his wife's own home and he let a trace of humor creep in as he warned the jury how much quick domestics might observe of the goings on of their employers.

Then Simon referred to the "intimate" questions he put to Newton and asked what conclusions might be drawn from the fact that he had known about them. It showed beyond a shadow of doubt, he said, that Mrs. Robinson and Newton were on terms of greatest intimacy when the conspiracy was hatched in December, 1919.

Simon strove to throw doubt on the story that Newton had first seduced and then robbed Mrs. Robinson by asking what was the evidence of it. She and her husband, he said, were at their wits' end to explain how it came about that money was distributed so that each got a share of it, and had invented the story. No corroboration was forthcoming. He asked the jury to dismiss the whole thing as an invention concocted within the last month or two because they could not otherwise explain the distribution of money.

Referring to Mrs. Robinson's story that Newton robbed her of £10,000 of the £21,000 which remained of £25,000 after Hobbs had deducted £4,000 for his costs, Simon asked why he should not have taken the lot while he was about it. The story had been invented merely to get around the infernal fact that the banknotes which formed the £25,000 could be traced to the six conspirators.

Summarizing the evidence on this point, counsel said that they could trace £147,000 of the £150,000 proceeds of Mr. A's check. That £147,000 was drawn out of the bank in two checks, one on Jan. 8 for £130,000 in 130 £1,000 notes and the second on Jan. 16 for £17,000. Of the £130,000, £120,000 was paid into the Paris branch of the Anglo-South American Bank by Hobbs so that £40,000 went to the aid, £40,000 to Newton and £40,000 to Hobbs. Of the remaining £10,000, one £1,000 note was cashed by Hobbs in Paris and another was cashed at Cox's. A check for £17,000 was cashed for 50 £100 notes, 100 £50 notes, 100 £20 notes and 1,000 £5 notes. The notes, he said, could be traced to all six conspirators.

Sir John Simon will finish his summing up tomorrow morning and a verdict is expected in the evening.

BOLSHEVIKI ACCUSE TROTSKY OF HERESY

MOSCOW, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The full text of the reports of Leo Kameneff and M. Stalin attacking War Minister Trotsky have just been published. These reports heretofore have been confined to the inner circle of the Communist Party.

Trotsky's career, prior to the 1917 revolution and during and after the Bolshevik coup d'état, is carefully surveyed in forty columns of printed matter. Both Kameneff and Stalin, the Soviet leaders, strive to show that Trotsky always has acted as a Menshevik and now has departed from pure Bolshevism and party idealism.

Kameneff explains that the Central Committee of the party was compelled to inagurate a campaign against Trotsky because his recent book, "Lessons of the 1917 Revolution," was being published under the ostensible protection of the Communist Party and, coming from a member of the party's political bureau, which directs the work of the Communist International, the book creates a danger for the party.

It cannot, therefore, Kameneff says, be allowed to pass unchallenged. If no exception is taken to the book, he added, it might be accepted as a manuel for young Communists and members of the Communist International.

Stalin Charges "Heresy."

While Kameneff confined his general criticism of Trotsky to his own self-defense, Stalin, who is a member of the Executive Committee of the Communist Party, dwells unsparingly upon the War Minister's "heresy" and his alleged abandonment of orthodox Bolshevik principles. He accuses Trotsky of attempting to take Lenin's mantle for himself. He also urges members of the party to wage a relentless war against the military leader, as "otherwise Trotsky's ideas may become the concentration point for all non-proletarian elements who strive to disintegrate the proletarian dictatorship."

Although Trotsky's friends believe that the present movement is intended to render him politically innocuous, Stalin says he does not favor reprisals or harsh treatment of party opponents. He declares there is no danger in the present controversy of splitting the party, adding "We have only to struggle against Trotsky and eliminate his Menshevik ideas."

Few Support Trotsky.

The whole campaign has been introduced, it is said, to avoid renewed dissension within the Communist ranks. Unlike last year's controversy, however, when Trotsky found support in many quarters, especially among the young Communists and military cadets, the War Minister this time is almost deserted. There are few even of his avowedly outspoken supporters who dare take up his defense in view of the all-powerful elements in the Communist Party which are arrayed against him.

Numerous resolutions are coming in daily from the provincial branches of the Communist Party pledging the fullest support to the Central Committee's attitude toward Trotsky. Following his tactics of last year, the War Minister maintains a discreet silence. He has not yet uttered a single word, either in speeches or in the press, and there are indications that he does not even attend to the ordinary routine of business in his office. The executive work of the War Council is now directed by M. Frunze, Trotsky's assistant.

Political observers seem to think that Trotsky's adversaries have scored a complete victory over the war chief, but they believe that the party leaders will not attempt to dethrone him altogether, for such a measure would undoubtedly produce a profound reaction among the rank and file of the army, who regard their leader very highly. Also deep resentment could be looked for among certain sections of the population which consider the War Minister the most able member of the present Government.

SOVIET CHIEFS CONFER ON REPLY TO BRITAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Nov. 27.—According to today's news from Moscow, the British notes have been the subject of several conferences of leading Communists held with a view to the adoption of their final attitude. Until yesterday no public mention was made of the receipt of the notes or of their purport.

On the other hand, the Moscow press has been greatly exercised over the events in Egypt and the action of Britain comes in for severe criticism. The Isvestia, after much frothing, consoles its readers with the reflection that Baldwin's policy in Egypt will merely serve as an additional aid to Egypt in her struggle to break her fetters.

The Pravda warns Britain that after all she is only "a small island within an ocean of colonies and dominions, and the policy of a strong hand will avail nothing when her colored slaves raise their hands by the millions."

Thus the Soviet press in taking Britain to task in regard to Egypt has seemingly overlooked Chamberlain's notes, and the first official mention of them is casually embodied in a speech of Rykoff, Chief Commissar, at the Congress of Textile Workers.

Rykoff reiterated that the British Conservatives had attained power by means of the Zinovieff letter, which they refused to admit was forged. Fearing to discredit themselves, they proclaimed the letter to be genuine, he said, and declared the Communist International carried on anti-British propaganda.

The Communist International, he said, was an organization which was entirely independent of the Soviet Government, and the Soviet Government could not prohibit its activities or refuse it shelter.

With regard to the dropping of the treaties, Rykoff rebuked Britain for "establishing a nasty practice of repudiating agreements made by former Governments."

Britain, he declared, must bear the whole consequences arising from this act, but if the British Government made proposals for further negotiations the Soviet Government would not refuse, although it had already conceded its maximum.

39 REDS GET LIFE TERMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Nov. 27.—The trial of 149 Esthonian Communists at Reval ended in the court finding them all guilty of conspiring for the overthrow of the Esthonian Constitution by violence in accordance with the program prepared by the Third International. The evidence showed that the Soviet Legation at Reval had acted as the intermediary for the transmission of instructions and money from Moscow.

The Court condemned thirty-nine of the accused to penal servitude for life, seven were released, and the others were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment. The trial lasted eighteen days and the Court deliberated on the sentences for thirty-nine hours.

Meanwhile, the rounding up of the revolutionary Communists continues in Esthonia and Latvia. Last week seventeen were condemned in Latvia to various terms, and this week forty persons were arrested upon whom documentary evidence was found indicating that they were attempting, as members of the sports section of the Communist International, to organize athletic clubs as centres for dissenting revolutionary ideas.

The documents disclosed some official statistics in regard to the members of the Communist Youths' International. According to these Great Britain has 1,000 members, Germany 31,000, Czechoslovakia 13,000, Finland 12,000, the United States 5,000, China 4,000, Poland 4,000, Esthonia 3,000, Latvia 300, Lithuania 300, Korea 160, Belgium 60 and Australia 300.

FOUR ZAGHLUL AIDS ARRESTED BY BRITISH

ferred at length and finally decided that useless bloodshed must be prevented and that there was nothing which might prejudice the country's rights. The Cabinet therefore authorized Mohammed Sadik Yehda Pasha, Minister for War, to send the following message to the officers and men of the Egyptian Army in the Sudan:

> Impressed by your courage and loyalty, I have no doubt you are ready to shed the last drop of your blood for his Majesty the King and your fatherland. Nevertheless, I order you to cease resistance against the Acting Governor General's orders for your forced expatriation from Sudan territory. Such resistance would only result in useless bloodshed. Moreover, as the Egyptian Government has very formally protested against this measure, which is executed by superior force, your return will in no way prejudice your country's rights or your military honor.

British Warships Arriving.

Port Said reports that the British cruiser Caradoc passed southward yesterday through the canal. The destroyers Voyageur, Malcolm and Vivacious have arrived. The first two are remaining with the battleship Malaya, which is now in port, but the Vivacious will proceed southward tomorrow. All is quiet there and a platoon of the Second Battalion King's Own Scottish Borderers which has been there for some time past is quite adequate to deal with the situation.

Airplanes which have just returned from making reconnaissances over the provinces report all quiet. Cairo also is quiet, but the students of the University of Al Azhar have struck work and propose to hold a mass meeting after tomorrow's prayers.

Owing to the situation British officers have been ordered not to walk about alone and always to carry revolvers whether in uniform or in mufti. Certain districts have been put out of bounds.

Although the customs at Alexandria are in British occupation, so far there has been no interference with their administration, which is still being conducted by the Egyptian authorities in the ordinary fashion. The occupation can quickly be made productive if the Egyptian Government declines to accept the British terms, but it is greatly hoped that it will not be necessary to extend its present scope.

Barakat Pasha Also Seized.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The British authorities in Cairo have taken into their own hands drastic measures to suppress possible nationalistic plottings by the arrest of four prominent members of the party organization headed by former Premier Zaghlul Pasha.

Those arrested were Nekrashy Bey, Under Secretary in the Ministry of the Interior in Zaghlul's Cabinet; Abdul Rahman Fahmy, one of Zazhlul's closest political assistants; William Makram of the Nationalist delegation, and Barakat Pasha, who was Zaghlul's Minister of the Interior.

According to statements in official quarters in London tonight the men arrested were leaders in an underground conspiracy against British interests, which probably was partly responsible for the murder of Sirdar Stack and which might, if left unhampered in its activities, result in further unfortunate incidents.

Apparently the arrest of these Nationalists is regarded as merely a preventive measure, and they will only be placed under observation and control. No manifestations or disorders have followed the arrests, and throughout Egypt calm still prevails.

The withdrawal of the Egyptian units from the Sudan is expected to be completed by the end of the week.

Nothing is known in London of an alleged plot against the life of Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner. Opinion in official quarters here remains optimistic that a solution of the situation will be reached by means of direct negotiations between Ziwar and Viscount Allenby before the Egyptian Parliament meets again.

Professor Gilbert Murray, Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford University and a stout supporter of the League of Nations, made a statement on the Egyptian situation tonight on behalf of the Executive Committee of the League of Nations Union.

The statement outlines Anglo-Egyptian relations as defined by the British Government's declaration of February, 1922, recognizing Egypt as a sovereign State but reserving four points for future agreement.

Professor Murray points out that the King and the Government of Egypt accepted this declaration without reservation, and says the recent action of the British Government appears to have been confined strictly to matters reserved in this declaration, and that it is impossible to call in doubt the validity of this declaration in inernational law.

The only questions which might legitimately be raised, he says, would be, first, the question of its interpretation, or, second, the question whether any action taken by Great Britain falls within the specified reservations.

"If any doubt on either of these two points were seriously raised by duly authorized parties," Professor Murray adds, "we trust his Majesty's Government would consent to submit the question without delay to the Permanent Court of International Justice, or some similar tribunal."

League Changes Its Attitude.

GENEVA, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The League of Nations has decided, after reflection, to bring the Egyptian Parliament's protest against Great Britain to the attention of the Council of the League, and interest centred tonight, in the probable attitude of the Council when it meets in Rome early in December.

The prevailing opinion in the Secretariat seemed to be that Egypt's protest would not be officially discussed in Rome, because the members of the Council would find it difficult to give official importance to a communication from a Parliament. All depends, it was declared, on whether any member of the Council inaugurates debate on the matter.

The mystery growing out of various versions of the Egyptian appeal sent to the League of Nations appeared to have been cleared up tonight when the Marseilles telegraph office notified the Geneva central office that some words apparently had been dropped from the dispatch when the Cairo telegram was repeated at Marseilles for Geneva. Cairo sent and Marseilles received 561 words in the telegram of protest, but only 545 words actually came to Geneva. It is presumed the missing words referred to the request for League intervention, which appears in the text given out in Paris.

AMERICANS APPEAL ON OPIUM TODAY

RIGHT TO HEARING UPHELD

Report Overruling Objections That the Plans Were Not on the Agenda Is Adopted.

GENEVA, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Public interest in Geneva is centred tonight on the plenary meeting of the International Opium Conference, which is fixed for tomorrow afternoon. Stephen G. Porter, the American delegate, is expected then to fight out on the floor the question of reservations touching the American proposals.

Mr. Porter today asked for the convocation of a plenary meeting to discuss two points in the American program, which were objected to as being outside the agenda of the conference. The objection was made by the delegate from India when the agenda was being considered by the Business Committee.

The conference had adopted today the report of the Business Committee, which clearly reserved the right of the American delegation to submit to the full conference any points of the American plan thrown out by the subcommittee on the allegation that they were not listed on the preliminary agenda.

One of the American points refers to the total prohibition of the manufacture and distribution of heroin. The other concerns, chiefly the production of opium, and India has opposed it because she considers that it would have the effect of stopping the growing of opium in India, where it is eaten by the natives.

An American proposal which Mr. Porter desires to have incorporated in the new convention would control production and distribution both of raw opium and coca leaves, so that no surplus would be available for purposes that are not strictly medical or scientific.

An exception is provided for raw opium which is needed for those countries where opium smoking is temporarily permitted under the Hague convention. The first opium conference, which is still dragging on, was supposed to devise a plan for ending smoking in the Far East within a specified time, but it has failed to take any action. The Americans want it stopped in ten years. They will make a fight on this question at a later stage on the present conference.

During today's debate Pinto Escalier, the delegate from Bolivia, challenged the right of the conference to take up the question of limiting the production of Bolivia's coca leaves. He said that the natives ate the leaves for medicinal purposes. The coca leaf was necessary for those living in high altitudes, he declared, and had no bad effects. The delegate was certain that the small quantity exported from Bolivia was not used for manufacturing cocaine, and argued, therefore, that Bolivia's production bore no reference to the cocaine evil.

KILLS CHILD AND HIMSELF.

Buffalo Italian Wanted Young Daughter to Wed Elderly Man.

BUFFALO, Nov. 27.—Becauses his 14-year-old daughter Mary refused to marry the man he had chosen for her, Salvatore Giglia today shot and killed the girl and then ended his own life. He previously had taken his ten-year-old daughter to his parents' home.

Giglia and his family came to this country nine years ago, and a year later his wife died. Since then the father has spent several years in public hospitals for tuberculosis, while the children were in asylums. Nine months ago he came out of a hospital and attempted to work, making a home with the two girls in a tiny flat.

The father had hoped to see the elder girl safely settled before he died and was anxious that she accept an elderly suitor. The child refused, and recently the family disputes have been heated.

When the police broke in through the locked door they found a chicken roasting in the oven. It had been prepared for a Thanksgiving dinner by the little girl whose body was lying on the floor. The father was dead in a corner. The bullet that pierced the child's heart had plunged on through the floor, wounding a woman in the arm.

VOTES AGAINST RING FOR THE BRIDEGROOM

Church of England's House of Clergy Also Deletes One 'Obey' in the Marriage Ritual.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The desire to protect the British bridegroom's pocket from too many financial inroads led the Church of England's House of Clergy today to reject a proposal requiring men as well as women to wear wedding rings. It was decided that it might further discourage marriage, already affected by unemployment.

The question arose during discussion of the revision of the marriage service, which earlier had been altered so as to eliminate the time-honored word "obey" from the bride's response in one of the two passages.

The revised ritual, which must be finally accepted by the House of Bishops and the House of Laymen, now reads in the section where both respond, "love, cherish and serve," substituting "serve" for "obey."

The bride, however, cannot escape entirely from the word which the feminists so tirelessly oppose, for she must reply "yes" when asked if she will "take this man to be thy wedded husband; wilt thou obey and serve him?"

The proposal for the double ring ceremony aroused a heated discussion, in which many arguments, ecclesiastical and practical, were presented, but the opponents had the final say and the motion was rejected.

VISA REFUSED TO CYRIL.

Grand Duke Can't Visit America, but His Wife Will Come.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A visa to go to America has been refused to Grand Duke Cyril of Russia by the French Government and American consular officials.

The Grand Duke, who has been living in France since the revolution, was hotly opposed to the French recognition of the Soviets and announced his intention of "taking refuge in the only country which so far has not recognized the Soviets." The so-called Czar has temporarily left Paris and taken refuge in Coburg, Germany, the ancestral home of the Grand Duchess.

The Grand Duchess arrived here this evening from Germany, however, with a numerous suite, on her way to New York, for which she will sail Saturday to collect funds for Russian refugees. She was received by the Russian colony at the station with the full honor due to an Empress.

PRAGUE, Nov. 27.—President Masaryk's memoirs, which are not yet on sale in book form, but are appearing in instalments, deal with the period of 1915, when Masaryk was already planning for the Czechoslovakian Republic.

It is interesting to note how many of Masaryk's hopes have been fulfilled, even to the limitation of frontiers, and that only the President's wish for a corridor to Yugoslavia remains unfulfilled.

Masaryk also deals with the question of land reform for the first time. A later chapter not yet published will deal at length with Masaryk's journey to the United States.

Churchill to Head Paris Conferees.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Winston Churchill, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, probably will head the British delegation at the meeting of Finance Ministers and experts in Paris late in December or in January. Mr. Churchill, it is expected, will confer with Prime Minister Baldwin soon as to the British proposals regarding payments under the Dawes plan and the distribution of the money collected in German occupied territory.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE CONFER ON AFRICA

French Also Said to Be Having Trouble in Northern Protectorate of Tunis.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A visit this afternoon by the British Ambassador, Lord Crewe, to the Quai d'Orsay, where he was received by Premier Herriot, was occasioned, it was learned tonight from a well-informed source, by the common troubles of England and France in North Africa. France's Tunisian difficulties and the outbreak in Egypt are related, it is said here. In both cases European nations are dealing with Moslem peoples.

The Tunis Protectorate has for several years been a fertile field for Communist propaganda. While the French have placed the country on its feet, cleaned it up, established schools and introduced laws, thus in one sense Westernizing it, they have not interfered with the Bey's relations to his subjects and in this sense the country is surprisingly backward. The native population have no vote even in municipal government and no labor union rights. There are 1,800,000 of these native workmen and because of ignorance and repression they have been made the easy prey of Bolshevist propaganda, it is said here.

In addition to these laborers, there is a comparatively large number of higher class natives who are imbued with the spirit of nationalism and are making an effort to take advantage of the unrest of the workmen to instigate them to revolt against the French.

Further, it is pointed out there are 320,000 Italians in Tunis. These are said to have been seized by the Fascist spirit and the past year comprised the most difficult factor of unrest.

In face of this situation the French are hastily formulating laws to meet the exigencies of the situation, though by no means all demands. The work of an advisory committee, which was formed last night by Premier Herriot, was pushed ahead today, but tonight it is learned that definite termination of its labors will not come as soon as was hoped because of the necessity of obtaining further information.

Whatever the rights or wrongs in their Protectorate of Tunis, the French in a manner liken the moral issue with that of England in Egypt and say they have not the slightest intention of abandoning their position.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The Socialist Parliamentary group, which forms a substantial portion of Premier Herriot's majority, is greatly preoccupied with the Egyptian crisis, and has decided after long discussion to send a delegation to confer with the Premier on the subject.

It was also agreed to communicate with the British Labor Party with a view to ascertaining its intention with regard to arranging for concerted action before the Second International if such a step appears desirable.

MOST OF BIG BILLS TO GO TO NEW HOUSE

Leaders Expect to Pass Only the Regular Appropriation Measures in Short Session.

McFADDEN ACTANEXCEPTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—House leaders have virtually decided that outside of the regular appropriation bills to run the Government, only one other measure, the McFadden act to liberalize the banking laws by allowing the establishment of national branch banks under certain restrictions, has a chance of passage at the three months' session beginning on Monday.

Other important bills left pending at the close of the last session will almost certainly face death, because they are in the main so controversial that they could not be put through in a House which is controlled by a balance of power in the hands of the insurgent Republicans centring around the Wisconsin group.

The McFadden act, however, is considered so essential and has been so enthusiastically sponsored by the banking interests of the country, as well as receiving the tacit approval of the various States, that it appears to have an excellent opportunity of approval. Briefly, it permits national banks to establish branches in communities of a certain size in States where the State banks are authorized to maintain branches. The American Bankers' Association is back of the bill through resolutions passed at the last convention of that organization.

If President Coolidge should ask in his Congressional message for some reform that could be handled with comparative ease, every effort would be made by the Administration leaders to force this through the House. But up to this time Mr. Coolidge has given his lieutenants no intimation that he would make such a request.

Labor Board Bill Doomed.

Outstanding among the propositions which will probably go by the board in spite of desperate efforts on the part of their friends is the Howell-Barkley bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board. This bill will come up early in the session, but it is now stated that some of its formerly enthusiastic proponents have had a change of heart and are lukewarm. No less than 300 amendments are said to be waiting for this bill and it is a certainty that their framers will insist on time to talk, with the inevitable result that the bill will get nowhere, unless some compromise, such as suggested by Mr. Cummins in the Senate, is made. Senator Cummins wants the Railroad Labor Board to remain in existence, but might agree to the passage of the Howell-Barkley bill if the public received representation on a tribunal which would hear disputes between transportation systems and their workers.

Another bill, which will have strenuous pressure behind it, is the "Norris Lame Duck," which in effect provides that newly elected members of Congress shall assemble in session soon after the Presidential election without allowing a session of a Congress composed in part of men who have lost their seats at the ballot box. The Norris amendment would prevent the identical situation of the coming Winter, when a considerable number of Democrats and Republicans will aid in enacting legislation even though they were not reelected early this month. There is great opposition to the Norhis bill and it is not believed it has a chance to pass.

Radio Bill Likely to Die.

Some other bills worthy of notice which will no doubt die on the calendar are by Representative Lehbach to establish a civil service retirement system; by Representative White to enlarge the control of the Secretary of Commerce over radio transmission, and by Representative Haugen to amend the act controlling packing interests.

In the Senate the situation is practically the same as in the House. Outside the regular appropriation bills, the leaders in that chamber do not anticipate any legislation of major importance. Under a unanimous consent agreement the Muscle Shoals proposition must be disposed of, but the impression is that this bill will again be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and final disposition postponed until the Sixty-ninth Congress. One or more bills proposing the repeal of the publicity clause of the Revenue Law may be introduced, but it is not expected that any of them will come to a vote. The World Court will also, according to all the signs, be bequeathed to the Sixty-ninth Congress.

$250,000 CLUBHOUSE MENACED BY FLAMES

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 27.—The new $250,000 clubhouse of the Plainfield Country Club was menaced late today when the old temporary clubhouse, less than 150 yards away, was destroyed by fire. Several times sparks and flying embers set the roof of the new building on fire, but the club steward marshalled all the employes on duty, organized a bucket brigade and assisted the Plainfield Fire Department in subduing the flames.

The old house, a one-story frame structure, was built three years ago and since the new clubhouse was completed had been used as a candy house. It was built to replace a clubhouse destroyed by fire in 1921.

Few members were in the clubhouse when the alarm was given. An hour earlier there had been more than a score of members near by, but they had returned to their homes for dinner. The candy house had been closed throughout the day and the cause of the fire is not known.

BLAZE REVEALS 13 STILLS.

Firemen Called to Macaroni Factory Find Much Alcohol.

When firemen who had been called to a fire in a small macaroni factory at 1,642 East New York Avenue, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, extinguished the flames, they noticed an odor totally different from that of macaroni. Assisted by Patrolman Otto Bauer and detectives of the Brownsville Station, they searched the place and found thirteen stills that apparently had been in operation recently.

They also found sixteen cases, each containing five gallons of alcohol, and twelve barrels of the same liquid. The place is operated by the Bella Sicilia Macaroni Company, but no one could be found yesterday who had any connection with the concern. The police seized alcohol and apparatus.

Jim Larkin Is Bankrupt.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, Nov. 27.—Jim Larkin, the Irish labor leader, who served a sentence in an American prison and then was expelled from the United States, has been adjudged a bankrupt by a Free State court. It is understood that heavy legal expenses in connection with his recent lawsuits were mainly responsible for the development. Larkin lately has lost several strikes.

If You Value Value In Diamonds

You may buy a diamond for its beauty or for its sentiment—but you should also consider its value.

The value of perfect diamonds is steadily increasing because a smaller proportion of the diamonds now mined are perfect, and because each year more people are demanding perfect stones. When we say "perfect" we are not referring to cutting, proportion or size, but to the inherent quality of the stone itself. A diamond to be perfect, in this sense, must be flawless, unmarred by the tiniest fault, free of blemishes, carbon spots or glassy places.

Perfect diamonds have permanent value. Therefore, intelligent buyers of diamonds sacrifice weight, size and setting, if necessary, to get truly perfect stones. This applies just as much to those spending $100 for a diamond as to those spending $3,000.

Almost all of our diamonds are absolutely perfect—flawless, unblemished in every respect.

Because this is known about us, we are patronized by many people who desire perfect confidence in their purchases as well as true perfection in the quality and value of the diamonds they buy.

HIDDEN LIFE OF AUSTRIA'S OLD EMPEROR—In the secret archives of the Imperial Austrian Government, closely guarded for years, have been discovered letters of the Emperor Francis Joseph, who died during the World War after an active part in the events that preceded the conflict. From the correspondence has been written an amazing story of Francis Joseph which paints him as a joyless imperial drudge who ruled his empire like a chief of police. His likes and dislikes, his loves and his hatreds are described. There will be seven instalments to be published seven successive Sundays in The New York Times Magazine Section beginning next Sunday.

MANY SEND PRAISE OF POLICE HEROISM

NUMEROUS LIVES SAVED

Quick Work in Solving Hold-ups and Presence of Mind in Emergencies Bring Praise.

In letters to Commissioner Richard E. Enright, citizens highly praise police heroism and courtesy, C. G. Young, Secretary to the Commissioner, announced yesterday.

Gratitude for the saving of their lives from monoxide gas poisoning moved Edward and Jessie Tetzlaff of 8,613 Jamaica Avenue, Woodhaven, to commend Patrolmen Charles Schofer and Michael Fogarty of the Richmond Hill precinct. The Tetzalaffs say that "despite the mistaken belief of our neighbors that everything was well and we were not in danger, the officers persisted in searching the house, broke into our flat, and worked on us with might and main until we were revived. Had it not been for their persistence in trying to locate us, we would not have lived another five minutes."

Quick, clear-headed thinking brings praise for Patrolman William J. Saffer of the West 135th Street Station, who appeared at the station with two thieves and their loot as their victim was registering his complaint. Two negroes had beat an errand boy for the Hilton Company and had stolen two of his packages. Before the boy had left the station Saffer brought in the negroes. He had seen them stop in a taxicab in front of a pawnshop, and when they brought out two suits in boxes he arrested them.

Saved Two Lives.

"Please accept our thanks and appreciation for the good deed that Patrolman C. Mills of West 123d Street Station did for my family," reads a letter from W. H. Minckler of 305 West 120th Street. "He came into a gas-filled house and saved my mother's life, also my daughter, 4 years old. Both were overcome by gas and he rushed them to a hospital and brought them back, safe and sound. Who can ever repay such deed by word or money? May we have more men like him!"

Helen Massey of 256 West Eighty-fourth Street praises Patolman Watson for his prompt and courteous assistance when she was injured by a door of a Third Avenue surface car that closed on her hand as she was getting off.

William Cahill of 245 East Forty-second Street was held up about 9 A. M. and $67 was taken from his pocket and cash register by three bandits. He immediately called Police Headquarters and Detectives Crane and Prantner appeared in a few minutes. Learning that one of the robbers had been slightly injured, the detectives made a round of the hospitals and in half an hour had the three robbers under arrest at Bellevue. Cahill sends in commendation.

Praises an Unknown Hero.

I. Roth of 180 St. Nicholas Avenue writes of a policeman, name unknown, who, when there was a fire in the apartment house at 187 St. Nicholas Avenue, climbed the front, went from window sill to window sill, broke the windows of the different apartments and thereby awakened the occupants. Then he climbed the first ladder raised and helped to carry down children, who were standing on window sills, frantically calling for help. In his excitement Mr. Roth failed to get the officer's name.

That a baby's sight was saved by the quick action of Patrolman Adolph Albinger of the Alexander Avenue Precinct, the Bronx, is the burden of a letter from William A. Grange of 384 Mott Avenue. As Mrs. Grange was giving the child an outing in a perambulator, a schoolboy threw a stone that struck the baby in the left eye. The policeman commandeered an auto and rushed the child to St. Francis's Hospital, meanwhile stopping the flow of blood and calming the frantic mother. Albinger afterwards turned the case over to Detective Broncato, who found the boy, a mental defective, and had him put in an institution.

Hit by Crowbar; Saved Bystander.

Another traffic officer, Keating, at Morris Street and Broadway, saved C. McKernon of 42 Broadway from injury by his presence of mind when a crowbar fell from the top of the Standard Oil Building at 26 Broadway while Mr. McKernon was speaking to the policeman. Keating pushed Mr. McKernon to one side, saving him from being struck on the head, but was himself struck on the leg.

Edna Vincentz of Clifton Park, Weehawken, recently injured in an automobile accident at Fifty-seventh Street and Broadway appreciated the clever handling of the crowds by the traffic officer at Tenth Avenue and Forty-second Street on a recent evening, when she said at least six men could have been used at that point.

A runaway in which Irving Freedman, driver for the Fink Bread Company of 438 East Seventy-second Street, fell between his horse and the wagon and was carried several blocks, gripping the shafts while the horse's hoofs were constantly striking him, is told of by the company. At Fifty-third Street and Third Avenue, after the horse had run from Fifty-seventh Street, Patrolman Hughes seized the horse's bridle at the risk of being dashed against elevated pillars and stopped him, a feat two taxi drivers had failed to accomplish.

Detective George W. Moran of the East Fifty-first Street Station, who recovered a bag of apparel that had been stolen, is praised by Henry J. Treusch of the Department of Revenue and Finance, Jersey City.

REPUBLICAN DINNER DEC. 13

Wadsworth, Roosevelt and Hilles to Be Guests of Honor.

Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Charles D. Hilles, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman, will be among the guests of honor at a dinner to be given by the National Republican Club on Dec. 13 to State officials and Representatives-elect from this State.

Louis W. Stotesbury is Chairman of a large committee which has made all the arrangements for the dinner. Former United States Senator William M. Calder is down on the program as "President ex-officio."

PLAYS FOOTBALL AND DIES.

14-Year-Old Boy Collapses Going Home After Game in Central Park.

Presumably because of his violent exertions playing football in Central Park, fourteen-year-old Harry Lobl last night collapsed on the sidewalk in front of 106 East Seventy-ninth Street, and when a taxicab in which he had been placed by a policeman arrived at Flower Hospital he was pronounced dead.

Young Lobl, Ferdinand Jacobwitz of 426 East Seventy-ninth Street and Harry Katz of 421 East Seventy-ninth Street were returning home after the game when Lobl fell. An autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death.

All purchases made November 28th and 29th (today and tomorrow) will appear on bills rendered January 2nd, 1925.

SOCIALISTS CALL 3D PARTY MEETING

Movement on Foot to Make the Organization More Radical Than It Was in the Campaign.

MAY BAR COMMITTEE OF 48

Promoters of New National Labor Party Also Willing to Lose the Western Farmers.

In preparation for the general conference to be held in Washington next January under the auspices of the National Conference for Progerssive Political Action for the purposes of deliberating on a proposal to perpetuate the Third Party, which went down to defeat in the national election this year, the Socialists have called a meeting of all their locals in the metropolitan territory to determine on a line of action. An earlier meeting called for the same purpose adjourned without arriving at any conclusion.

In Socialist circles it is believed that there will be found a preponderance of sentiment in favor of continuing in a somewhat different form the political group that rallied around the candidacy of Senator La Follette in the last campaign. But fault is found in Socialist quarters with some of the elements that entered into the coalition of forces behind the Wisconsin Senator.

The aim of the "Progerssives," one Socialist leader recently declared, will be to make the Third Party more radical than it was during the Presidential election. This would involve a process of elimination which might involve a serious loss in numbers by Third Party followers through the reading out of the party of such groups as the Committee of Forty-eight, for instance, which is not regarded conforming to the Socialist idea of what the Third Party of the future should be.

Favor a Radical Party.

The Third Party, this Socialist said, should be an out-and-out radical party and should not occupy a twilight zone between radicalism and the program of the more liberal portion of the voters that still profess allegiance to either of the older parties.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who both in numbers and through the financial support they afforded the Third Party during the campaign, formed one of the most militant groups in the La Follette camp, is one organization taking this stand. Through their spokesman they have made it clear that nothing short of a party which will be in every sense a National Labor Party will be radical enough to invite its affiliation in the future.

With the American Federation of Labor having gone on record as opposed to a labor organization along partisan political lines, a large element of the Third Party streength demonstrated on election day, inadequate though this showing was to create an impression promising for the future, would be lost to it. The action of the American Federation of Labor probably will mean that the railroad brotherhoods, which were one of the leading factors in organizing the Third Party, in the next national election will seek some other rallying point for the realization of their aim—the nationalization of railroads.

In the campaign ended Senator La Follette made his appeal on one hand to labor and on the other to the farmers. Should the new party, built on the foundation already erected, take the form of a national labor party it would probably mean also that the support of the farmers would be lost to the "Progressives."

Many Socialists are fully reconciled to this, as they declare that the Third Party showing among the farmers in the West and Northwest was poor and that La Follette got his most telling support from the ranks of the industrial workers both in the East and elsewhere. Socialists who have given thought to the matter profess to feel that the interests of the farmers and the workers run along lines too divergent to afford the community of purpose essential to cohesion.

The local Socialists will hold their meeting on the evening of Dec. 10 at the Labor Temple in East Ninety-fourth Street. A meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Conference for Progressive Political Action is scheduled to meet in Washington two days later for the purpose of preparing the agenda for the January conference. Morris Hillquit, International Secretary of the Socialist Party, will be the Socialist spokesman on the Executive Committee on which other groups entering into the La Follette coalition are represented also.

To Consider Desertion of Thomas.

It is likely that the very large defection in the party vote for the Rev. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor, will come in for discussion at the meeting in the Labor Temple. Socialist voters in a horde deserted him and voted for "Al" Smith. Another topic of discussion will be ways and means to recruit the party up to something like its normal strength. The membership has been dwindling ever since the split with the extreme radical wing of the party rendered the Socialists a negligible factor in elections, even in this city. Since the split the Socialists, who at one time had as many as ten representatives in the Assembly, have not been able to elect a single Senator or Assemblyman. In the election this year the vote for the Socialist candidates for legislative offices was reduced to a minimum.

So threatening has this phase of the situation become that the Socialist organization in this city is offering prizes to members of the party bringing in new recruits. These range from silk banners for the local organization that gains the greatest number of new members to books, fountain pens and boxes of candy.

BULLET MISSES 3 AT DOOR.

John Zibbria of 1,889 Second Avenue, accused of shooting at his wife because he objected to her late visits at the home of her mother, was locked up in the East 104th Street Station by Patrolman Becker early yesterday on charges of felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law.

When his wife, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lucy Pietro of 226 East 102d Street, and her brother Joseph, about 2 A. M., knocked on the door of her apartment after returning from a visit to her mother, a shot fired from the inside of the apartment crashed through the door but missed all three persons standing outside.

Mrs. Zibbria fainted and was carried to the street by her brother, where they met Patrolman Becker. The officer found Zibbria in the apartment and a loaded revolver from which one cartridge had been fired, under a pillow.

In Harlem Court he was arraigned before Magistrate James M. Barrett and held without bail for a hearing today.

Dress Catches Fire From Range.

While preparing a Thanksgiving dinner on a coal range in her apartment at 581 First Avenue, Mrs. Emily Melvin, 57 years old, was severely burned when her dress caught fire. The flames were extinguished by her son-in-law, Frank Sheehan. Mrs. Melvin was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

AMBASSADOR HELPS ITALIAN HOUSE PLAN

Project to Promote Cultural Relations Is Endorsed Also by Dr. Butler.

NEW ACTIVITY AT COLUMBIA

$250,000 Sought to Establish a Centre at University to Aid Educational Work.

Approval of the project to establish by the gift of "Italian House" to Columbia University an educational and cultural Italian centre in this country was expressed yesterday by Prince Gelasio Caetani, Italian Ambassador to the United States, in a message to the promoters. America's need of Italian culture was stressed in a letter from Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the university.

Both communications were made public by Justice John J. Freschi of the Court of Special Sessions, Chairman of a national executive committee selected to foster the undertaking. A fund of approximately $250,000 is sought, of which amount $60,000 will be required for the purchase of the house and its furnishings and equipment and the remainder for an endowment fund.

"I don't believe in and even dislike subtle propaganda," wrote Prince Caetani, who is a graduate of the Columbia School of Mines, class of 1903. "I believe, however, that the most powerful factor in fostering international amity is knowledge, knowledge of one's self and of other people, true understanding of the qualities and shortcomings of every people and every race. I believe in speaking frankly of one's self and of others.

"Nations in appearance widely different are instead closely connected by cultural factors that often pass unnoticed because not sufficiently emphasized. This is specially true of Italy and the United States.

"The great intellectual achievements of both our countries have a common origin which can be traced back to the pagan and Christian civilization of olden days. The capital letters of any book printed in New York or in Rome today are identical with those that 2,000 years ago were engraved on the monuments of the Forum. Both the modern Anglo-Saxon and Latin civilizations are offspring of the intellectual awakening that first sprang forth in Italy after the dark period of the lower Middle Ages.

"In this we find a fundamental bond between our two countries. The initiative of creating an Italian house to broaden the activities of the Istituto di Coltura Italiana of Columbia University is a promising step toward creating better mutual understanding and fostering international amity. To this initiative I will gladly cooperate, animated by sincere affection toward both our countries, and I know that many a true American and Italian will join hands in this good work."

Prince Caetani's letter was sent to Professor John L. Gerig, President of the Instituto di Coltura Italiana, and executive officer of the Columbia Department of Romance Languages. Dr. Butler in a letter to Justice Freschi said:

"The plan to establish an Italian house is one which has my heartiest commendation. Such a house would not only be a centre of interest and resort for students of Italian origin and students of the Italian language and literature, but it would speedily become a centre of important influence for spreading abroad in the United States a wiser and more accurate knowledge of the culture and achievements of the Italian people.

"As I have said on so many public occasions, we have great need here in America of more of the Latin temperament, the Latin point of view and the Latin love of beauty, whether in nature or in art. The Italian house and the Instituto can accomplish wonders in advancing all of these purposes. I wish well of your enterprise and offer you the fullest measure of my personal and official cooperation."

The chief purposes of the proposed casa Italiana, or Italian house,, Justice Freschi explained, are to serve as an Italian cultural and educational centre in the United States, to promote cultural relations between Italy and the United States and to serve as headquarters for Italian scholars of prominence during their stay in America. The house will have both a reference and circulating library and will help to promote direct educational work outside the university in the Italian language and in Italian literature. About $20,000 of the amount needed was raised at a recent preliminary meeting, mostly from Americans of Italian descent.

FRENCHMEN EXPLAIN AIR AMBULANCE WORK

Return From Tour to Interest American Agencies in Their General Use.

At the conclusion of a three weeks' tour in the United States as official representatives of the French Government at the annual Congress of American Army Surgeons, held Nov. 13-15 at San Antonio, Texas, Colonels Joseph Uzac, attached to the Health Service of the French War Ministry, and Robert Picqué, Professor of Anatomy at the University of Bordeaux, arrived yesterday at the Hotel Commodore and described their efforts to interest American agencies in the use of airplanes as civil and military ambulances.

Dr. Uzac said that the French Government, using Beguet 14½ model planes, of which twenty had been devoted to this service, had since 1922 transported over 2,500 wounded in Morocco, Syria and France.

The planes are equipped with two stretchers with electrically-heated blankets, oxygen respiration tanks, a small electric stove for heating broth, and medical accessories for an attendant. In countries where roads were few or transport slow these ambulances, with the Red Cross painted on the fusilage, had effectively transported in an hour wounded from distances varying between 60 and 150 miles. The International Red Cross at Geneva, by action to be taken at its next session, Dr. Uzac added, intended to denationalize air ambulances in time of war.

While this action is pending with reference to the use of air ambulances in time of war, Dr. Picqué said that both he and his colleagues were interested in promoting their use in emergency peace work.

Package for Dry Leader Excites Curiosity of Sing Sing Prisoners.

OSSINING, Nov. 27.—Curiosity as to what was contained in a package sent to William H. Anderson, former prohibition leader soon to be paroled from Sing Sing, was satisfied today when prison attachés announced it contained only buns and bread.

Anderson and several other prisoners received Thanksgiving packages. As the pile accumulated waiting for Keeper Mullins to open and inspect them there was much speculation as to what was in Anderson's bundle. This was due to the fact that Anderson seldom receives packages at the prison and also that he is the most-discussed prisoner in Sing Sing.

When the inspector opened the package he found only two loaves of homemade bread and some buns. There were no luxuries such as some prisoners receive around the holidays.

EXPORT TAX STILL HOLDS UP TREATY

BERLIN GIVES GUARANTEES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — Negotiations which have been proceeding in London for conclusion of an Anglo-German commercial treaty have reached the following stage:

An agreement has been reached on the general lines of the commercial treaty itself. Great Britain is to receive not only most favored nation treatment but also certain guarantees against discriminatory treatment and limitation of imports into Germany. The principal concession on the part of Great Britain will be that the Government will without delay submit to Parliament a bill to remove all restrictions still imposed upon Germans in this country as ex-enemy aliens, with the effect that no discrimination whatsoever shall be made between German citizens and other foreigners.

But the question of the 26 per cent. reparation levy on imports from Germany remains as yet unsolved. The German proposal is that the system of the collection of duty from the individual buyer of German goods should be replaced by a monthly account between the two Governments, the German Government to place to the credit of the British Government a sum in gold marks equal to 26 per cent. of the declared imports from Germany into this country.

The objection to this proposal is that it runs counter entirely to the Dawes plan and to the views of Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparation Payments, under the plan as expressed in his letter to the German Government of Nov. 11. Gilbert contends that the Dawes plan covers all reparation payments and that the proceeds of the 26 per cent. duty, being a form of reparation payment which is considered to be a masked transfer of German marks abroad, should pass through his accounts and be dealt with by him under guidance of the Transfer Committee and not directly between individual States and Germany.

The Germans insist that without a change in the method of collecting the 26 per cent. duty they will not be able to obtain ratification of the new treaty by the Reichstag.

FREIGHTER SINKS WITH 17.

Gale Damages Shipping on English South and East Coasts.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Much damage was done today by a furious gale which swept both the east and south coasts of England and inland points.

Seventeen persons were drowned when the freight steamer Hartley, 2,000 tons, sank off Portland. Only two of the crew were rescued.

There were many minor casualties to coastwise shipping. The channel steamer Dieppe grounded at the mouth of New Haven Harbor and a tug which attempted to rescue her was smashed against the breakwater. The Dieppe was refloated after her sixty-six passengers from France had spent five hours of misery on board. The cruiser Calliope was sent from Portland to assist vessels in distress in the English Channel.

At Southampton the Royal Mail liner Almanzora of the Buenos Aires service broke from her moorings and swung about dangerously. She narrowly escaped smashing a naval transport and eventually was warped into her berth again.

The Southampton pilots who took the steamer Vendam out of port were unable to leave her outside the harbor and were carried on to Plymouth.

CRAZED BY RELIGION MAID KILLS WITH AXE

stairs and into the front room, where she seized the telephone and called Sergeant Dennis O'Keefe at Police Headquarters, three blocks away. It was an exhibition of heroism, the police say. By leaving the house Winifred would have insured her own safety, but would have delayed the call for help. Although she believed the insane woman might follow her down the stairs, she nevertheless disregarded her own safety for her mother's protection.

Mrs. Davey heard her daughter's sudden exclamation as she started down the stairs and sat up in bed, trembling. There was no light in her room, but she saw Mary's form outlined in the doorway.

"What's the matter? Are you frightened, Mary?" asked Mrs. Davey, wondering why the maid had left her bed at that hour.

Mary did not answer, but crept forward menacingly, and, for the first time, Mrs. Davey saw that she held an axe. The sick woman screamed, but her cry ended as the weapon descended upon her throat. The maid hacked Mrs. Davey three more times. Two of the blows struck her chest and the last one fell on her right ankle, nearly severing the foot.

Mary was standing in Mrs. Davey's room, the axe still in her hand, when Sergeant Andron Saffron and Motorcycle Policeman Thomas Bray came up the stairs.

Says "God Told Me to Kill Them."

"God told me to kill them and I'm not going to run away," Mary said as the policemen grappled with her. She fought with insane strength, but was at length subdued and her arms strapped to her sides in a straitjacket. At Police Headquarters her frenzy continued. When he was not hysterical she knelt and prayed incoherently. During one of her lucid moments Chief of Police Patrick Kelly asked her if she were not regretful for what she had done.

"Why should I be sorry when the Lord told me to do it?" she replied.

Both Dr. Wood and Dr. Brokaw, after an examination, pronounced her insane. It was said tonight by John A. Galatian, Chief of the County Detectives at Elizabeth, that a charge of first degree murder would be entered against her and that if counsel for the defense could prove Mary insane they were at liberty to attempt it. Before being taken to Elizabeth Mary's hand, which had been cut, was bandaged by a physician. In jail tonight it was said that the maid's frenzy had abated and that she was remorseful and depressed.

Winifred, who was discharged from the Muhlenberg Hospital after her wounds had been treated, said that Mary had been a model servant and that, so far as she knew, had hitherto never given the slightest indication of religious mania. The maid has lived in Plainfield twelve years. She worked in Passaic during her first two years in this country.

Mrs. Davey's condition is rendered more critical, the doctors say, because of the heart affliction from which she has long been suffering.

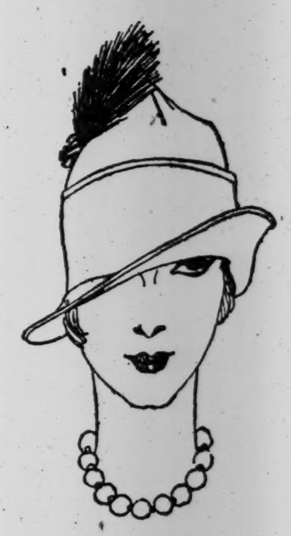
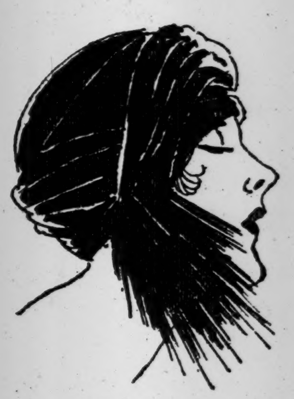
Modes of the Moment



"A hat for every frock!"

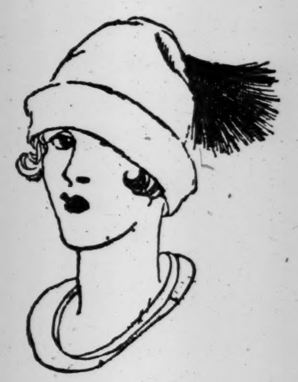
A customer in our millinery salon remarked recently,—"Never before have I owned so many hats at one time. And still, I go on buying more. One looks positively demode today, unless one's hat is in absolute accord with one's costume."

They are all different



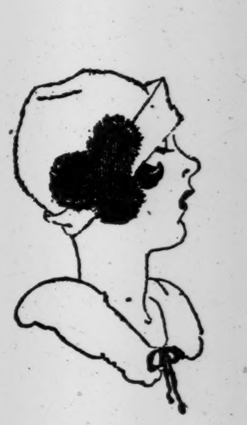
Though it sounds rather difficult, it is quite a simple matter this season to procure an entirely different hat—different in style, material and color,—for each costume. A glance through the McCreery Blue Salon will convince you of that.

First you choose the fabric



Of course, your costume is the guide that points the way to the material of which your hat is to be composed. And, according to whether your frock is for street, sports, afternoon, dinner or evening wear, you choose, felt, velour, taupe, feutre (Austrian velour), satin, velvet, grosgrain or belting ribbon. Probably you will want several in one or more of these mediums.

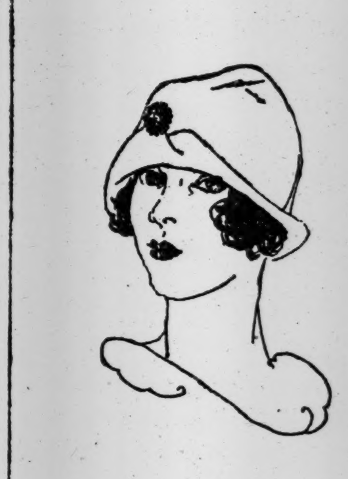
There is variety in becoming shapes



Reboux, Descat, Le Monier, and Agnes have most successfully exerted every effort to provide a host of delightful shapes to meet with the approval of practically every type.

The ultra-simple and close-fitting felt hat appears for the time being in a pointed crown and occasionally in a square effect. There are countless versions of this style finished with a jaunty brush, a dashing pom pom, a feather or two or a pin. Paris is also very fond of Reboux's "shooting hat" with a dented crown and a stiff feather cocarde at one side, and then there is the wrapped turban and the graceful beret. Practically without exception, these various styles impart a certain "dash" and "chic" to the wearer seldom achieved before.

Shades are high



Having chosen the shapes that lend that touch of ultra smartness to your appearance, you decide upon the colors. A hunter's green for one costume, a lipstick red for another, natural kasha for a sports outfit, tan for the afternoon, and black perhaps for the evening.

And long after you have made your selections at the McCreery Blue Salon, you will wonder why it had not occurred to you before to add distinction to your appearance in this wise.

INCREASED TARIFFS LIKELY IN EUROPE

PROTECTION WAR FORESEEN

France Makes Little Progress in Bargaining With the Other Two Nations.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A tariff war among European countries appears likely through the changes in the schedules of duties that already have been made, or are in the making.

The French Tariff bill, which is now before the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, although not yet printed, is understood to embody a sharp increase in all duties, except on foodstuffs, with a radically diminished margin between minimum and maximum rates.

Belgium's new schedule is equally high, while the French delegates who are negotiating with the Germans have been startled at some of the duties which the Reich is planning to impose on French products.

The general rise in minimum rates is understood to be for the purpose of reducing the advantages that countries are obliged to grant under the favored nation clause, and of giving France and Belgium a margin for bargaining with Germany.

Little progress has been made in the negotiations between France and Germany or between France and Belgium on the customs changes. Belgium has offered to reduce the rates on sparkling wines, but demands, in exchange, important reductions on articles imported from Belgium into France.

It is now regarded as doubtful whether the French and Germans can come to an agreement before Jan. 10, when the Allies lose the right to the benefits of the most favored nation clause.

FISHING TUG SANK WITH 4, DUNKIRK FEARS

Lake Erie Freighter Saved Two of Crew in Storm—Then Vessel Disappeared.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Fears are entertained for the safety of the fishing tug Harold G. Beck, her master and owner, Captain John Beck of Buffalo, and three members of his crew. Two of the deck hands have been picked up by the freighter Belgian and taken to Buffalo.

The missing men, in addition to Captain Beck, are Harold G. Beck, his son, the engineer and two members of the crew which consisted of Christ Moore of Sandusky, Ohio, and Harry Nowicki, Walter Zuralsky and Joe Antuscewski of Dunkirk.

The tug was returning to the harbor from the fishing grounds last night when a propeller shaft broke. She was then in mid-lake, about twenty-five miles off this port, and a fierce storm was raging.

Flares were sent up which were sighted by the master of the Belgian. He put about to attempt a rescue. Three hawsers were put on the tug, rolling in the troughs of the heavy seas, but all broke. In maneuvring with the lines, two members of the deck crew of the tug succeeded in scrambling aboard the Belgian.

After the third line parted the Beck drifted away in the fog. The Belgian stood by for two hours, but the tug was not sighted again.

Local fishermen say that last night's storm was one of the worst of the year. The wind blew at seventy miles an hour and there was a dense, shifting fog.

The Harold G. Beck is a steel boat with an open forward deck. Fears are entertained here tonight that she has foundered with all on board.

RABBIT HUNTER KILLS HIS SON BY ACCIDENT

Explodes Cartridge in 'Breaking' Shotgun for Lad—Mother's Fears Realized.

John H. Christ, 14 years old, of Floral Park, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday by his father, Henry W. Christ, while they were hunting rabbits, off Jericho turnpike, near South Huntington and Commack.

The boy, unable to "break" his shotgun to eject a discharged shell, had handed it to his father. The parent struck the gun across his knee while the muzzle pointed at the boy. The remaining shell exploded, and the charge struck the youngster in the chest. Carrying the lad to the road, the father hailed a passing motorist, who drove the victim to the Huntington Hospital, where he died a few minutes after his arrival.

Father and son went on the hunting trip despite protests of the boy's mother, who pointed to several recent hunting accidents in the neighborhood. Her husband promised to take great care and she was reassured. The mother collapsed and had to be treated by a physician when told of the tragedy.

HELD IN $10,000 FUR THEFT.

Bronx Man Accused of Receiving Property Stolen in Yonkers.

Continuing their investigation of wholesale fur thefts, detectives of Yonkers yesterday arrested William Fromm, 37 years old, of 65 East Burnside Avenue, the Bronx, on a charge of buying stolen property. He was released by Judge Boote in Yonkers on $2,000 bail pending a hearing next Thursday.

The complainant was Nathan Kessler of 323 Fort Washington Avenue, the Bronx, whose firm was robbed of $10,000 worth of furs. Michael Dulman of 245 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, and Clement Zito of 169 Webster Avenue, Yonkers, chauffeurs employed by the firm, had been arrested previously for alleged grand larceny. Two other men had been accused as accomplices.

MAN DIES; SEEK ASSAILANT.

Father of a Girl Who Accuses Victim Disappears After Shooting.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 27.—Joseph Fudorada, 66 years old, who was shot twice while in the cellar of the home of Frank Rizzo, in Elmont, L. I., on Tuesday night, died today in Nassau Hospital here. As a result, the county police have increased their efforts to find Frank Rizzo, who has disappeared. His three children, whose mother is dead, have been placed in the care of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

District Attorney Charles R. Weeks said today that the case would be presented to the Grand Jury. In an antemortem statement, Fudorada said Rizzo shot him after accusing him of an attack upon Josephine Rizzo, 13, Rizzo's daughter. Fudorada denied the attack, but, the county police say, it was admitted by the girl.

Painter Ends His Life With Gas.

Conrad Klaus, 36 years old, a painter, was found dead from gas poisoning on the floor in the kitchen of his home, at 1,927 Greene Avenue, Ridgewood, Queens, yesterday. Gas was escaping from two open jets on a kitchen range. Police said it was suicide. His wife Mary, from whom he was estranged, was not at home, but after the finding of Klaus's body she was located and told the police her husband had been away from home for several days following a quarrel.

We Thank
and Adjacent Communities

for the overwhelming interest and festive enthusiasm which helped to make yesterday's Christmas Parade such a magnificent spectacle. We did not dare dream its success would be so great.

The day will linger long in the memories of the numberless thousands of youngsters who lined the six-mile route of march to greet Santa Claus and his fantastic Wonderland retinue upon his official entry to New York. And just as many grown-ups will cherish the memory.

The tremendous ovation which you accorded to yesterday's procession has led us to decide that, barring unforeseen obstacles, such a parade will hereafter be an annual feature of Macy's Christmas program. We advise you now to make no other engagement for the morning of Thanksgiving Day, 1925.

We don't know how many thousand people saw the initial showing of "The Fairyfolk Frolics of Wondertown" yesterday—we were all too excited to count. But we are sure such a tribute has never before been accorded to any window display anywhere in this country.

Macy's "Fairyfolk Frolics" will perform daily until Christmas from 9 A. M. to midnight, in the famous 75-foot window on 34th Street, between 6th and 7th Avenues.

Today, the schools being closed, is a good time to bring the children to see it.

Beginning today, and every day until Christmas, Santa Claus is in Wonderland, on Macy's Fourth Floor, from 9 A. M. to 5:30 P. M., and will be glad to meet all the little folk who greeted him yesterday, and all other little children who behave themselves.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The actual strength of the regular army at the beginning of the current fiscal year in July was 140,943, according to figures given in the annual report of Major Gen. Robert C. Davis, Adjutant General of the army, made public tonight. The total number of commissioned officers is 11,655, and the enlisted men number 121,028.

The detailed strength is set forth as follows:

Commissioned Officers.

Regular army (active list), 11,335.
Philippine Scouts (active list), 101.
Retired, regular army (on active duty), 139.
Retired Philippine Scouts (on active duty), 17.
Reserve (on active duty), 61.
Total, commissioned officers, 11,655.

Warrant Officers.

Regular army (active list), 1,063.
Retired, regular army (on active duty), 2.
Total, warrant officers, 1,065.

Enlisted Men.

Regular Army (active list), 121,028.
Philippine Scouts (active list), 7,115.
Retired, regular army (active duty), 80.
Total, enlisted men, 128,223.
Grand total, 140.943.

Besides the foregoing, there are 675 army nurses, 30 contract surgeons, 666 cadets at West Point, 222 army field clerks and 167 Quartermaster field clerks, making altogether 142,703 individuals in the service.

The distribution of the 140,943 commissioned officers, warrant officers and enlisted men shows the strength of garrisons in Hawaii to be 13,096; in the Philippines 11,808, in the Panama Canal Zone 8,880, in China 977, in Alaska 393, in Europe 5, attached to the Graves Registration Service; en route from one country to another or serving as Military Attachés, 187; serving in the Continental United States are 104,286.

The Officers' Reserve Corps has reached a strength of 81,706, a gain of 4,783 during the fiscal year. General Davis says this comparatively small net gain is accounted for by the unusually large number of separations by reason of declination to accept reappointment on expiration of the five-year term of commission.

During the year there were 21,065 appointments to the Officers' Reserve Corps and 16,282 members of the corps were separated from the service. During the fiscal year the strength of the Enlisted Reserve Corps increased from 1,557 to 3,400 men.

General Davis says that under existing conditions and the present system of recruiting the regular army can readily be brought to its maximum authorized enlisted strength of 125,000 when funds available for the pay of that number are appropriated.

For the current fiscal year of 1925 appropriations available cover only an average enlisted strength of 118,750.

TAFT URGES NEW RULES TO SPEED UP COURTS

Transmits Judicial Conference's Advice to Federal Benches for Checking Delays.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Important changes in rules for the transaction of business in the Federal courts, by which it is expected that procedure will be speeded up, are outlined in letters that have just been sent to all Federal District Judges by Chief Justice Taft.

The proposed changes were worked out at the recent conference here of Senior Circuit Judges, who considered them vital as a means of expediting the orderly transaction of all Federal litigation and preventing the clogging of the court dockets. Chief Justice Taft, as Chairman of the conference, in transmitting the recommendations to the Judges, expressed the opinion that they would contribute largely to "the practical dispatch of business in the conduct of your court."

To force prompt disposition of all cases, the District Judges are urged to adopt a rule providing that when any case might have been brought to trial but within a year has not, notice shall be given to the counsel and the parties to such proceedings of the first term of court following Jan. 1 each year, thirty days in advance of its opening, and if no action is taken in such cases within that period of grace, the court shall, upon opening the term, enter an order of dismissal.

The district courts are urged to adopt a rule which would prevent the continuance of cases to another term by agreement of counsel. Other engagements of counsel should not be accepted as a reason for a continuance, it is held, and no continuances should be allowed except for good cause shown by affidavits, such as the sickness of a party or unavoidable absence of an important witness.

It is also suggested that the courts at frequent intervals should fix times for the hearing of motions and the settlement of issues. Postponement of matters on such calls should not be permitted, the conference agreed, except for causes that would justify continuance of a case set for trial.

Another suggestion, designed to prevent the delay frequently incident to the selection of a jury, is the adoption of a rule by the District Judges whereby the judges themselves would conduct the examination of prospective jurors. Should counsel on either side desire an additional inquiry to ascertain the jurors' qualifications beyond that conducted by the Judge, the new rule would require that he submit the questions for presentation at the Judge's discretion.

CHRISTMAS SEALS ON SALE.

Campaign Begun for Funds for 1925 Anti-Tuberculosis Fight.

The sale of Christmas seals, the proceeds to be used to fight tuberculosis, will begin today according to announcement by the New York Tuberculosis Association, 244 Madison Avenue. The effort to sell the seals will continue up to Christmas.

"In that narrow interval of little more than three weeks," said Harry L. Hopkins, director of the association in a statement yesterday, "we must raise such funds as we may be able to get together with which to conduct our work of fighting tuberculosis in this city during the year 1925. Hence we are compelled to make an intensive effort during this short period and we certainly need all the help we can get.

"New York's death rate from tuberculosis has been cut down almost every year in the last quarter of a century. In 1898, out of every 100,000 New Yorkers, 283 died of tuberculosis; in 1923, only 96. Although the tuberculosis mortality is thus seen to be steadily decreasing in New York City, the problem remains a large one and challenges constant attention. The Department of Health reported on Oct. 1 of this year that there were 28,097 cases of tuberculosis in the city."

REPUBLICANS URGED TO OUST RADICALS

SAYS PARTY IS THREATENED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Exclusion of the La Follette Senators and Representatives who withheld support from Coolidge and Dawes in the November election from membership in the Republican organization in Congress is urged in an editorial published today by The National Republican, a weekly newspaper of this city.

George B. Lockwood of Indiana, former Secretary of the Republican Committee, is editor of the publication, which speaks at times for the regular organization in the two houses.

The editorial asserts that it is the duty of the Republican leadership in the House and Senate to drive La Follette supporters from the fold.

"The scuttlers should be thrown overboard if they are sufficiently lacking in honor and self-respect to demand toleration longer from the crew of the ship they have vainly sought to sink," says the editorial, which follows in part:

"Not for punitive purposes, but as a measure of self-preservation, the Republican Party should set its face firmly against the astounding proposal that public officials elected as Republicans who in the last campaign passively or actively sought the defeat of the Republican national ticket shall be permitted to participate in Republican councils or be accorded recognition as Republicans.

"Unless Republican leadership possesses the courage and wisdom to obey the clear command of the people at the polls on Nov. 4 to accept party responsibility, party appeal to public opinion cannot successfully be made in the Congressional elections of two years or the Presidential election of four years hence.

"This year's national election was an epochal triumph of courage and common sense. The Republican national campaign was based upon the theory that party nomenclature must be a reality and not a fraud. The open and implied pledges of this campaign should not now be repudiated or forgotten.

"Senator La Follette announces that he returns to Washington to coordinate and reorganize the forces behind him preliminary to the next campaign. Shall he and his sympathizers be permitted longer to plan from within the Republican camp an attack upon the Republican policies?

"The pusillanimity of such a course is inconceivable. Against it would arise a wave of protest from the rank and file of Republicanism and from honest men in general certain to submerge all those responsible for such a betrayal of party and public trust."

BLOCKADE OF MOROCCO IS STARTED BY SPAIN

General Primo Rivera Says Present Withdrawal Is Largely an Economic Movement.

MADRID, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—General Primo Rivera, President of the Military Directorate in Spain, who at present is in supreme command of the Spanish forces in Morocco, has revealed for the first time the plan of the military operations now in process of execution.

In an interview with the correspondent of the Madrid newspaper ABC at Tetuan, the Spanish soldier-statesman said the withdrawal of the Spanish forces from their positions in Morocco would continue until a definite line of defense had been established. He lamented the fact that the exigencies of the situation did not permit of a speedier retreat.

The plan of the Spaniards consists of an armed and economic blockade of the Spanish zone in Morocco. Spanish land, sea and air forces are being concentrated along the coast, which is to be fortified so as to be a virtually impregnable wall to keep out smugglers and Moorish rebels.

General Primo Rivera urged that since the Moors must live they must come to the Spaniards for provisions. These they would not receive unless they submitted to the Maghzen, the native Governor, who is friendly to Spain. Primo Rivera said he hoped sooner or later the plan would bring about a restoration of peaceful relations between the Moors and the Spaniards.

The new Spanish line of defense will be one long system of trenches, fortified by the most modern implements of warfare. The road to Tangier and other places along the coast will be behind this line, so as to insure unhindered passage.

As regards the French zone in Morocco, General Primo Rivera said this angle of the situation was being studied and would be attended to shortly.

The consolidation of the new Spanish line, according to Primo Rivera, will take not less than six years. In conclusion he said that in carrying out his plan Spain would bring the entire Spanish zone under the authority of the native Government, but that Spain had no thought of abandoning it.

HUNT CHILDREN IN SWAMP.

Police Search for Little Sons of Woman Killed by Train.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Nov. 27.—Lieut. John Murray and four other Perth Amboy policemen searched in vain today in swamp lands between Perth Amboy and Port Reading for trace of James Antal, 4, and his brother Joseph, 1, who have been missing since their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Antal, was killed by a train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey's tracks at Sewaren on Saturday night. She had been warned away from the crossing, but suddenly ran in front of an approaching train, according to the gateman.

The children were seen with their mother an hour before she was killed. She did not take them to the home of any relative, the police say, and they want to ascertain whether any harm came to them.

Mrs. Antal was buried today in the Hungarian Cemetery here after a church service. She lived at 695 Charles Street, Perth Amboy, with her husband, Anton. He is making a canvass of homes of friends and acquaintances in the hope of finding the children.

HEARING DAY IS SET FOR A NEW SUBWAY

WORK ALREADY BEGUN

Section Under School Now Being Built at Fort Washington Avenue and 173d Street.

The Board of Transportation announced yesterday that it had fixed Tuesday, Dec. 16, at 11:30 A. M., for a public hearing on the proposed form of contract for the construction of the Washington Heights subway route from Columbus Circle to 193d Street and Fort Washington Avenue.

One small section of this route has been under actual construction since August, a little more than a month after control over rapid transit construction was transferred from the Transit Commission to the city by organization of the Board of Transportation. This is the section under the public school now being built at Fort Washington Avenue and 173d Street, where the new subway structure forms part of the foundation of the school building. The Board of Estimate appropriated $240,000, for the construction of this part of the subway and transferred it to the Board of Education for immediate use so that the construction of the school might not be interfered with when construction of the subway was started.

The Board of Transportation is resorting to the same expedient through negotiations with the trustees of the proposed Broadway Temple at 173d Street, and has authorized the procurement of easements under the Broadway Temple property before construction of the temple is started in order to facilitate subsequent subway building at that point.

The Washington Heights subway will extend from Columbus Circle up Central Park West, Eighth Avenue, St. Nicholas Avenue, Broadway and Fort Washington Avenue to 193d Street. Detailed drawings for the entire route are being prepared, and it is expected that the work will be divided into fourteen different construction sections to facilitate work and reduce to a minimum the time required to finish the job.

Invitations to contractors to bid on construction will be advertised soon after the forms of contract are approved. Construction contracts for a considerable part of the route can be let a short time after approval by the Board of Estimate. The consents of property owners necessary for the location of the route have been obtained, and all of the preliminary work incidental to validation of the route has been done.

The Washington Heights subway will have four tracks, two local and two express, from Columbus Circle to 168th Street, and two tracks from 168th Street to the terminal at 193d Street. Under Central Park West the four tracks will be carried in two decks, those on the lower level being the express tracks.

The Board of Transportation has planned to have all subway entrances and exits along Central Park West entirely on the west side of that thoroughfare, thus making it unnecessary for passengers to cross the highway and minimizing the danger of accidents. The board has planned to erect, where possible, all future subway stations everywhere with mezzanine platforms reaching both northbound and southbound tracks to eliminate the hazard to passengers of crossing the highway above on entering or leaving the subway.

WOOD ALCOHOL BLINDS WILLARD MACK, ACTOR

Willard Mack, the playwright and actor, has been temporarily blinded in one eye for a week and is only now able to see fairly clearly with his other eye, he said yesterday over the telephone from his room in the Mount Vernon Hospital. Wood alcohol, he said, caused the condition.

"I've never made a promise to Broadway," he asserted, "but I make you one now. The next person that sees me take a drink I promise to kiss and pin a rose on him. I've been taught my lesson. No more hootch for me."

Mr. Mack said he expects to leave the hospital today, but he will have to wear dark glasses and will undergo treatment for some time. About ten days ago, he explained, he and a party of friends were motoring through New Jersey when a sudden desire came over them to have a drink. They stopped a group of laborers near Summit and asked whether the Volstead act was being enforced in those parts. In reply, one of the workingmen took a bottle from his pocket and the men accepted his offer, Mr. Mack said.

The effect was almost instantaneous, he said. All believed they had gone blind. With the exception of Mr. Mack, the others went to the hospital, where they were treated. He returned to his Pelham home, but the next day he joined the others. His condition, he said, was accentuated by a congestion in one lung, which bordered upon pneumonia.

MME. SIMONE PLAYS IN "AMOUREUSE"

AMIOT IN HUSBAND'S ROLE

Valet de Chambre	Fred Davy
Mme. Henriet	Blanche Martal
Mme. Chazal	Fernande Roussey
Catherine Villiers	Juliette Verneuil

Mme. Simone apparently has a special fondness for plays which stress marital unfaithfulness and infelicity. "Amoureuse" ("In Love"), which opened last night at Henry Miller's Theatre, although less salacious than might be expected, centres about a wife married eight years who overwhelms her husband with her attentions, interfering with his work and tyrannizing over his every act and thought until in desperation he threatens to leave her.

She thereupon has an affair with his most intimate friend, but soon tires of him, and when her husband returns confesses her infidelity and seeks once more to dominate him. Except for a few light spots furnished by the friend before his affair, there is an almost perpetual quarrel between the husband and wife, which continues even as they are reconciled at the very end. Fortunately the play is very short, despite excessively long intermissions. Only the excellent acting of the three principals relieves it from drabness.

The first act opens in the Feriauds's home. Etienne, the husband, is a successful scientist, and is about to depart for Florence to address a congress of medical men. His wife, constantly interrupting his preparations for his departure and upbraiding him for not caring more for her, finally persuades him to give up the trip. They plan a quiet tete-a-tete at home. The second act shows the husband already regretting his decision not to go to Florence. His imaptience at her overfondness of him which furnished the material for the quarrel in the first act gives way to his reproaches of her for never letting him do his work, and for ever interfering with his plans and hopes. She threatens to leave him, and he announces his intention of going away for good.

At this moment their friend Pascal Delannoy, who figured in the first act in an incidental capacity, arrived on the scene. In love with her even before she married Etienne, he finds that she in her desperation is prepared to give herself to him. The last act, a week later, shows all three again in the Feriaud house. She is full of reproaches of herself for her action, and the friend is disappointed by her coldness. The husband orders him out, whereupon she confesses her actions and the play winds up in the final stormy scene in which, after he threatens to desert her again, they decide that it is better to live together and quarrel than to separate.

Mme. Simone threw herself into the part with her usual complete absorption. The intensity of her acting saved the play from the boredom which necessarily attaches to an incessant family quarrel on the stage. M. Raoul Henry as a friend furnished a few much needed light touches. M. Amiot, in the role of the husband, gave an admirable performance throughout.

RHINELANDER'S BRIDE SAID TO BE GRIEVING

Her Counsel Announces That He Is Preparing Answer to Annulment Suit.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Samuel F. Swinburne, local City Judge and attorney for Mrs. Leonard Kip Rhinelander, said at his office here today that within a few days he will file an answer to the suit brought by Rhinelander for the annulment of his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones on the ground of fraud. Rhinelander in his complaint said his wife had negro blood, although she told him before their marriage she was white.

Judge Swinburne said he had been informed that Mrs. Rhinelander is suffering extreme nervousness and weeps a great deal as a result of her husband's action for annulment. He did not indicate the nature of the answer he will file to the suit on her behalf.

CHAPLIN AND BRIDE AT HOME

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 27.—Charles Chaplin sped through Hollywood by automobile today bringing to his Beverly Hills home of forty rooms a new bride, who until Tuesday morning was Lita Grey, his leading lady in the films. The Chaplins came in a special car from Empalme, Mexico, the wedding place, to Shorb. There they left the train, saying they wished to escape publicity.

However, reporters and photographers were off the train before they were and after many protestations by the movie comedian that he was seeking to escape public attention, he and his bride went the rest of the way in an automobile. When he reached Beverly Hills Chaplin said:

"Just tell everybody we are happy and thankful and glad to be home," the comedian said.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The chlorine gas treatment for colds has been administered to employes in the General Electric Works here during the last ten days, with a cure in 75 per cent. of the cases. It was said that the rest of the patients were improved and that the treatment, still in an experimental stage at the local works, would be extended to accommodate a larger number of employes at one time.

The cure is under the direction of Dr. Glenn Smith, the works physician. Six employes are treated at a time, a room being used in which they may read, write or continue small tasks. It was said that the works, employing upward of 20,000 persons, finds that common colds afflict at least 500 employes continuously, necessitating a loss of time and reducing efficiency.

Roman Singers Greet America.

The Roman Choir, which is coming here for a tour, gave a Thanksgiving concert yesterday aboard the Conte Verde, two days out from New York, in response to a telegram from Frank W. Healy of San Francisco transmitted to the vessel by radio. The sixteen singers are arriving tomorrow in charge of Father Antonio Grimaldi, artistic director, and Maestro Angelo Negri, conductor. When the Conte Verde comes up the bay from Quarantine tomorrow the choir is again to sing to the passengers and to the crowd ashore as she docks at Pier 55, North River.

Necessities First, Saving Second, Luxury Third

It is very hard to save money unless you put saving ahead of everything else. Sometimes that is the wise thing to do and sometimes it is not.

We received this letter from a client the other day:

> "I have received the circulars, read them, and like the plan of investment. Now I am trying to save $200. I wish it were possible to tell you how long this will take, but coats will wear out, teeth need filling, and eyes need new glasses. When these things have all been attended to I hope to save a bit."

Perhaps if this client would set aside definitely each month so much as a saving fund she would find that she still had enough left to pay for the things that were absolutely necessary, because she would refrain from buying some unnecessary things if she did not have the money handy.

When you have saved $200 or more, then buy one of the Guaranteed First Mortgage Certificates sold by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and guaranteed by the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company.

HYLAN AND NO TRANSIT.

Mayor Hylan's platform for next year's municipal campaign is already determined: Plenty of grievances for the people of New York, but no subways. A community facing the near prospect of transit relief would not be a community groaning under the heel of the "traction crowd." Popular contentment curtails the opportunities for a champion of the people. From the Mayor's point of view it may be good tactics to write letters to Mr. McAneny and Mr. Dahl instead of digging subways. Possibly he may ride into office next year on a popular grievance. The trouble is that the people of New York City cannot ride to and from their work on the back of a grievance. They must have subways and cars.

This is bound to be the outstanding issue next year. Four years more of Hylan means four years more of delay in subway building. And that means almost a decade before additional transit facilities on a scale commensurate with the city's needs can be made available. It is a situation fraught with two alternatives. The city will continue to grow as it has done during the last ten years and submit to transit conditions compared with which the present state of affairs is Arcadian. Or the growth of the city will be checked by the sheer physical impossibility of moving about from place to place. For a little while the present outrageous conditions may be endured. Then the automatic check on the city's growth will set in. Even today the cost in public health and comfort may be easily translated into money values that far exceed Mr. Hylan's "higher-fare" bogy. The crippling of housing development by lack of adequate transportation is still more easily rendered into money values. The great areas in the Bronx and in Queens that have been filled up in recent years under pressure of the housing shortage have been made possible only by the subways planned and begun before Hylan. If Hylan with the Hylan ideas had come into office four years earlier than he did, the "people" whose cause he has so close at heart would now be paying excessive rents for congested homes. There would be no way of escape to the outer regions of the city.

The latest communication from the Hylan pen—at least, at the moment of going to press—ends with a characteristic clarion call to the effect that you cannot fool all of the people all of the time. This is quite true; and in this lies the main hope of escape from Hylanism. It is scarcely conceivable that the people of the city, with the issue adequately presented, will consent to go on indefinitely being fooled by the Hylan brimstone "Interests" and the Hylan rainbow subways. The history of Mr. Hylan's transit activities justifies the doubt whether the Mayor really wants better transit for the city. Whenever the promise of relief has taken on the semblance of reality Mr. Hylan has cried off. At the present moment he is engaged in combating Controller Craig's scheme for municipal buses, than which nothing a little while ago was dearer to the Hylan heart. For years he clamored for Home Rule as the answer. Governor Smith and the Legislature gave him Home Rule, but subways are still impossible. Mr. Hylan must now have relief from the debt limit to the tune of $275,000,000. The chances of securing consent to such an amendment from the present Legislature or of getting the amendment itself in time for use within the next four years are nil. But that hardly matters. Mr. Hylan plans to ride into another term at the City Hall on the back of the debt-limit amendment, and the people of New York will continue to ride on one another's backs in the congested subways.

The preliminary spadework just begun on fusion or independent movements for next year must be directed toward a different objective than in former years. It is not a question of misgovernment, which is often an abstract proposition to the masses. It is a question of the obstinacy of one man, based either on self-interest or spite, or both, and affecting the intimate daily affairs of every person in New York whose work takes him out of his home. That is a concrete issue which can be presented to a community so vividly as to make short work of Hylan's rainbow policies. It is inconceivable that the city will remain permanently satisfied with the familiar placards announcing Mayor Hylan's Play Streets, Mayor Hylan's Park Benches and Mayor Hylan's Ornamental Shrubberies. Where is the placard proclaiming Mayor Hylan's Subways?

THE PROHIBITION UNIT.

If Congress were not under the heel of the Anti-Saloon League, it would give the greatest weight to the recommendations which the conference of United States Senior Circuit Judges, presided over by Chief Justice Taft, asks Attorney General Stone to make in his annual report. Take the Prohibition Unit out of the Treasury Department, these Judges say, and put it where it belongs, in the Department of Justice. Let every cent appropriated by Congress for enforcement be spent under the direction of the Attorney General. Then, in the opinion of these men of old experience, confirming the opinion of the Federal District Judges, the law will be more effectively enforced.

It is generally known that the Federal courts are cluttered up with prohibition cases. An agent's merit is estimated by the number of arrests he makes. Put the business in the Attorney General's hands, the Senior Circuit Judges tell Mr. Stone, and > the attempted prosecution of trivial, futile and unimportant cases which now crowd the dockets, through the ill-advised zeal and practical ignorance of prohibition agents, can be avoided, and only those cases taken up and pressed which will really deter the principal offenders, and in the preparation of which District Attorneys will have a personal responsibility.

That is an unprejudiced, authoritative opinion. On the day it was given the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League was urging Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Stone to support the Cramton bill, passed by the House and pending in the Senate. This unites enforcement work in one separate bureau in the Treasury Department, makes the Prohibition Commissioner subject only to the Secretary of the Treasury, and deprives the legitimate users of industrial alcohol, steadily obstructed by the Prohibition Commissioner, of their present right of appeal to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The only desirable part of this bill is the extension of the merit system to the appointment of Federal prohibition agents. That is wise and necessary and should have been done from the first; but it is neither necessary nor wise to accompany this reform with an extension of the ill-used powers of the Prohibition Commissioner and the retention of the Prohibition Unit in the Treasury.

Again it must be said that the worst enemies of prohibition and prohibition enforcement are its inflamed advocates and guardians.

CONNECTICUT INSURRECTION.

It is surprising to find quite a number of Connecticut Republicans unworthy of their blessings, of which the chief and primal is State Chairman J. Henry Roraback. Nobody could be more obliging. The selection of candidates for State and national office he takes upon himself, thus relieving busy men and women of all care and responsibility in a business which he understands much better than they. He brought the admirable, the fortunate, the universal Hiram Bingham from New Haven to Hartford, installed him as Lieutenant Governor, had him nominated and elected Governor this Fall, had him nominated as Senator, and presumably has arranged to have him elected next month.

What could be simpler and easier? Mr. Roraback promised that Mr. Bingham should be nominated Senator in 1926. Circumstances have permitted an earlier assignment. A lot of straight-laced Nutmeg Republicans pretend to be scandalized. Deserving as Mr. Bingham is, they hate to see him, like Cerberus, two gentlemen, Governor and Senator, at once. Chosen Governor, he should serve as Governor. Those who voted for him have a right to demand that. This is the merest precisianism. He will serve. He aches to serve. If elected Senator on Dec. 16, he will be inaugurated as Governor on Jan. 7. Then he will resign and be whisked away to Washington, and Lieut. Gov. Trumbull will be promoted. All this without the slightest bother to the Republican voters. Who are these curious impertinents who object to Mr. Roraback's kind offices and those he gives to the admirable Hiram, and swear they'll vote for Hamilton Holt, Democrat?

> My loyalty to the Republican Party and high regard for its record of public service will not permit me to support Colonel Bingham. Neither would my devotion to the fine political traditions of Connecticut.

He isn't asked to support Bingham as Bingham, but Bingham as the reflection, representation, political nursling and ward of J. Henry Roraback. What is the Republican Party of Connecticut? J. Henry Roraback. What is the finest political tradition of Connecticut? J. Henry Roraback, the newer and the nobler Charter Oak. But what could be expected of Lake, a Harvard man moving and moping in worlds unrealized and un-Rorabackian?

TO "TREASURE ISLAND" BY AIR.

Some have had the notion that the Isle of Pines was Stevenson's "Treasure Island." There are traditions of treasure buried there in the days long gone. Some treasure has actually been discovered and recovered. But the real treasure of this enchanted isle of the Carib Sea is on its surface, in its trees and gardens, its springs and salubrious air. That its dreamy shores, just below the Tropic of Cancer, can be reached by seaplane, as Colonel Keenan, now en route to his estate there, hopes, brings it close upon our sea borders. It is about as far from Balabaño, the sponge-fishing centre on the south coast of Cuba, as Poughkeepsie is from New York; and a few years ago the only public means of reaching it was by a superannuated Hudson River steamboat which made infirm trips weekly, threading its way slowly among the keys in the calm, shallow waters to the little capital, Nueva Gerona, of Spanish memories, situate on a river a little way inland, to be less accessible to the pirates.

But bringing this island nearer us should not give the title of possession. Mr. Root, when Secretary of State, said that the United States had no substantial claim to it. As the treaty of relinquishment (made in 1904 and favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in 1906 and again in 1922) is likely to come up for consideration in the Senate this Winter, it will be well to keep in mind what Mr. Root said in further comment on the status of the island:

> At the time of the treaty of peace which ended the war between the United States and Spain the Isle of Pines was and had been for several centuries a part of Cuba. I have no doubt whatever that it continues to be a part of Cuba and that it is not and never has been territory of the United States. This is the view with which President Roosevelt authorized the pending treaty and Mr. Hay signed it, and I expect to urge its confirmation. Nor would the rejection of the pending treaty put an end to the control of Cuba over the island. A treaty directly contrary to the one now pending [in 1905 and still pending] would be necessary to do that, and there is not the slightest prospect of such a treaty being made. You may be quite sure that Cuba will never consent to give up the Isle of Pines and that the United States will never try to compel her to give it up against her will.

According to Dr. James Brown Scott, a high authority on international law, this opinion is shared by the Supreme Court, as evidenced by a decision in 1907; also by Secretary Hughes. It is to be hoped, moreover, that it is shared by the Senate and that the treaty will be roused from its mañana slumbers and ratified at this session. Our honor is pledged to Cuba in this matter. Cuba has made the grants of coaling and naval stations in consideration of which this relinquishment was to be made. Besides, there is no excuse for our taking this one little ewe lamb of an island from Cuba when we have "exceeding many" such possessions of our own.

WAGES AND INDUSTRY.

Mr. Gompers is reported to have called upon labor, in his closing speech at the convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso, to resist all attempts to reduce wages, "no "matter what the result may be to the "industry." Mr. Gompers's phrasing is unfortunate, even from labor's point of view. It is not his opposition to wage reductions that is objectionable, but his apparent disregard of industry.

In the first place, he does violence to common sense. Assume a situation where an industry must reduce wages or go out of business. It is true that the natural fears of the employer sometimes generate a pessimism in such matters not strictly in accord with his balance sheet; but suppose a union has been convinced of this alternative by the figures themselves. In such a situation we believe that even Mr. Gompers himself would urge his followers to accept a reduction, rather than a cessation, of wages.

Mr. Gompers's declaration also cuts athwart a growing sentiment in the labor movement itself. The preservation of their industry has of late emerged as the conscious policy of the more progressive union leaders. This phrase, "the good of the industry," is constantly on the lips of such men as Morris Sigman, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, whose presentation of a bust of Mr. Gompers at the convention is reported to have brought tears to the eyes of his veteran chief. Ironically enough, it is in the so-called "radical" unions that the idea has rooted and grown. But it has been a natural growth after all.

The "radicals" in the labor movement, scorning the lowly, traditional aim of a "fair day's pay for a fair day's work," hitched the wagon of their hopes to the star of industrial ownership and control. The circle of the old-line labor leader's thought did not include the industry at all: it was concentrated on the pay envelope and the time clock. But with the "radical" it has been different. He has always been thinking in terms of the industry. With the growth of the union came an increase in power and responsibility and in first-hand knowledge of the complexity and sensitiveness of the mechanism of production. The dream of its catastrophic capture vanished. But the interest in the industry remained—plus a conviction that the workers themselves have a stake in it, a stake which should be widened and secured without endangering the title itself. It has been the so-called "radical" unions that have entered most closely into contractual relations with their employers; it has been they who have done the pioneering in the dark continent of industrial relations—impartial arbitration machinery, "law and order in industry," unemployment insurance, joint sanitary standards.

So it has come to pass, through the devious ways of industrial providence, that the radical has become conservative and the conservative radical—that is, if the word conservative means one who conserves and if radical implies the opposite. Mr. Gompers, scorned as the arch-reactionary by the lefts, urges a fight "no matter what may be the result to the industry"; while to Mr. Sigman, head of the most socialistic union in the Federation, disregard for the industry's preservation is pure and simple heresy.

BEAR MOUNTAIN BRIDGE.

One may imagine Old Sol exclaiming, as he caught sight of the tide of automobile traffic flowing above the Hudson's flood by way of the Bear Mountain Bridge yesterday morning, "Well, it was high time!" Since the Revolutionary War the population of New York had grown from 20,000 souls to 6,000,000, and at last a bridge for vehicles and pedestrians has been thrown across the river at a point where always it had been badly needed. What a great city Peekskill might have been with a bridge at its back door before the Civil War! How much more populous Putnam and Westchester Counties! The best trans-river means of transportation devised had been the Tappan Zee Ferry, abused for its limitations by motorists in our time. The Garrison-West Point service could not be thrown in for full measure. That also was a trial of the spirit. Just where the Bear Mountain Bridge spans the Hudson was the strategical spot for the relief of traffic congestion along the banks of the lower Hudson. This bridge will be the key to open a scenic and historic territory of vast extent to a motor public from far and near. What a boon to be thankful for on the holiday dedicated to gratitude for favors received from celestial and mundane sources! It should have been put into Governor Smith's Thanksgiving proclamation.

No more waiting at ferries in stalled automobiles — yes, and sleeping through the Summer night in them—to get across from one side of the river to the other. The Bear Mountain Bridge is broad enough to accommodate all who come. And what a setting it has among the mirrored hills! What approaches of surpassing beauty! It invites all America to come and be bewitched. And it is not the only engineering wonder of the locality. There is the concrete highway that winds round the crest of Anthony's Nose, and the rival road on the other bank climbing Storm King, blasted out of the wall of the Hudson. And beyond, both ways, is delectable country, forest, hill, river and lake, extending for hundreds of miles. What Revolutionary memories there are in the Hudson Valley about West Point: remains of forts still to be seen, dim traces of earthworks, old houses haunted with shades of the patriots, trails and byways where precious blood was spilled, points of vantage where Washington and his Generals stood a-gaze; not far off at Newburgh the shrine of the Father of His Country.

What a stride forward in educational values will the Bear Mountain Bridge be! And what a part it will play in the recreation of the people who use it! All the territory roundabout is outdoors, a beautiful country for driving, hiking, fishing and camping. The more the bridge is patronized the less there will be for the doctors to do. For eighty cents to a dollar, according to wheelbase, you can cross in your car; for ten cents on your legs. Was there ever so much value for so little? No man could be a pessimist going over Bear Mountain Bridge, looking down at the shining flood or up at those noble highlands. Five thousand motor vehicles can pass over in an hour, with objectives as far away as Corey Hill, Boston, or Nob Hill, San Francisco. The bridge offers a highway to the White Mountains, the Catskills and the Adirondacks, to the State parks of New York and New England, to the highlands of Pennsylvania, without the necessity of passing through New York City. It is the link of a thousand crossways. The bronze tablet unveiled by Mrs. E. H. Harriman bears the speaking inscription: "Dedicated to all who, with "thought, labor and loyalty, have contributed to the construction of this "bridge and highway." If the inspiration did not come from Edward H. Harriman, the initiative was his. Extending for miles west of Bear Mountain is the forest tract which he set aside for the use of the people. What better monument could a man have than the wild park and the graceful bridge that links it with the east bank of the Hudson?

LOWERING LAKE LEVELS.

Attorney General Stone rightly affirms that the issues involved in the dispute between the Chicago Sanitary District and the Federal Government about the diversion of waters from Lake Michigan for Chicago's drainage canal "affect vitally the interests of a "whole nation, and are of a magni-"tude not easily exaggerated." As a matter of fact, they also affect international interests, for Canada is one of the principal protestants against the demand of the Chicago Sanitary District for more water. She joins complainants in all the States bordering the Great Lakes who charge Chicago with prime responsibility for lowering the waters of the lakes almost two feet within the last few years.

Of the right of the Federal Government to determine how much water Chicago may take there can be little question. Despite the many disputes in the past as to the jurisdiction of interstate waters, the use of the Great Lakes is now regulated by treaty with Canada. Under these circumstances it is for the Federal Government and not for a State or municipality to interpret the treaty. Furthermore, inasmuch as the use of the Great Lakes affects the vital interests of many States, it is only natural that Washington should have the final say.

On the question of fact, however, views are much more conflicting. The protesting parties say that Chicago, by using about twice as much water from the lakes as she is entitled to by treaty, is rapidly lowering the lakes. They predict that if the present heavy drain continues all the channels in the lakes will soon have to be deepened and some harbors will become unusable. As it is, the deeper draught boats have been obliged to carry lighter loads on certain runs, thereby decreasing their earning capacity. It is feared that this may cause a rise in freight rates. There are those in Chicago, however, who stoutly deny that their drainage canal is responsible for lowering the water level, and assert that the waters of the lakes showed a fifteen-inch decline in the decade ended in 1910; and that although Chicago was then blamed for this change, the waters almost immediately began to rise again, and soon thereafter regained the previous level. This, they say, shows that there is a certain periodicity of rise and fall in the lakes, and that the waters drained off by Chicago cannot be held responsible for the present low level.

Two other questions are involved. One is the necessity and advisability of disposing of Chicago's sewage by such antiquated and unhygienic measures as by a drainage canal. The polluted waters are forced down into the Mississippi, killing fish and making the banks unsavory. The other question is whether or not a canal connecting the lakes with the Mississippi region is economically wise, and, if so, whether it should not be enlarged or altered. Should this prove desirable, and should some wise system of waste drainage be devised, it would be possible to construct enough locks to make a well-developed waterway capable of carrying large tonnage. The engineering difficulties involved are not extreme. Rather is it a question of the capacity of greatly extended inland water traffic to compete with the railroads and trucks.

Chicago's interest in these problems is naturally very great. But there can be little doubt that they concern the nation, and not alone that city, and that they must be settled with a view to national and international interests.

UNHALLOWED ANTIQUITY.

"Knickerbocker" is synonymous in Manhattan with antiquity, but in the case of the hospital on the upper west side antiquity is not hallowed. Some years ago a father received word from a corner drug store that his son had been run down by an automobile. Arriving there, he found that the hospital ambulance had beaten him. At the hospital he found that the boy was already under treatment, but in a building so ancient and so lacking in the requisites of modern sanitation that he despaired of the result. Inquiry reassured him. The staff was second to none in the city. Fully conscious of the handicap under which they labored, they spared no possible precaution. When the patient recovered the father became one of the hospital managers and is now taking part in a "drive" for a new building and new equipment.

The Knickerbocker began in 1862 as a tent dispensary for sick and wounded soldiers in the Civil War. Becoming an incorporated Manhattan dispensary, it found quarters in a rented building. Its present building dates mainly from 1875, in part from 1885. In 1914 a new site was purchased and in 1922 a nurses' home was built as the first wing of a new hospital. The present drive is for a one-hundred-bed emergency hospital to cost $700,000, a dispensary and social service building to cost $250,000, and a private room building to cost $300,000. The hospital serves the largest ambulance district in the city, including the whole west side between Fifty-ninth Street and 145th Street. In 1923 its three ambulances made 4,668 accident calls.

The emergency hospital building has served forty-nine years, and this is the first plea for endowment. Those who have lived in this district for even one year without being run down have cause to be very grateful—but more and ever-increasing cause to provide for a dubious future.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

No Reason for Abandonment. Both the report of Dr. McBride, the New Jersey Commissioner of Labor, and that of the American Chemical Society on the manufacture of tetra-ethyl lead as an addition to gasoline are of great as well as varied interest. Both take with proper seriousness the dangers incidental to the manufacture of this peculiar substance, and Dr. McBride, while he admits that the company fully met all the requirements of the law as to the protection of the workmen, calls attention to the fact that it is one thing to provide the facilities for such protection, but the enforcement of their constant use is quite another, as is shown by the deaths that occurred among the men employed at the Bayway factory. Human nature is such that familiarity with such perils almost always results, after a while, in disdain of them and a carelessness which easily can have fatal results. The men found themselves inconvenienced in their work by the gas masks which at least would have decreased the perils of their occupation, and therefore did not wear them as persistently as they should. Herein, in Dr. McBride's opinion, evidently lies such responsibility as rests on the company; it did not see to it that the needful precautions it had prepared always were taken, though it knew and should have remembered that its employes were skilled workmen, not trained scientists who thoroughly understood the situation. This responsibility was moral rather than legal, but it was no lighter on that account. The Chemical Society's report was along another line. It saw in the deaths at the Bayway factory not a sufficient reason for abandoning the use of a substance by means of which a large economic gain could be effected—that is, a considerable increase in the value of gasoline as a source of power. The report recalls that in many other instances just such a price has been paid in learning how to achieve like results, and it holds that with the knowledge now available there is little or no fear of further fatalities in making tetra-ethyl lead; and as there is no measurable risk to the public in its proper use as a fuel, the chemists see no reason why its manufacture and sale should be abandoned. That is the scientific view of the matter, as opposed to the sentimental, and it seems rather cold-blooded, but it is entirely reasonable. The making of explosives is not stopped merely because it necessarily is a dangerous industry, and nobody suggests that the building of airplanes should cease, though every flight is at some risk of life.

Dirigibles Do Have Uses. Not everybody is as enthusiastic as are the Germans over flying ships lighter than air. Such craft properly enough have come to be called "dirigibles," not because they are any more dirigible than machines heavier than air, but because they are balloons that have been made dirigible, and it is this fact that the name always recalls to those who give it a little thought. And in spite of all the praises given to the dirigibles, and in spite of their possessing some superiorities to airplanes, they do, and always will, have much of the balloon's fragility. The use of helium instead of hydrogen does free the dirigible from the danger of explosion, but it is at some cost of lifting power, and therefore of utility as a weight carrier. The superiority of the dirigible to the airplane lies in the longer flights it can make, in its ability to keep the air for much longer—practically endless—periods, and in the fact that it can travel as slowly as may be desired and can "hover" over one spot long enough for the taking of careful observation of what lies below. It is these qualities that have turned the attention of Arctic explorers like Nansen toward the dirigible. They no longer are interested in making "dashes" to the Pole. That has been done successfully at both ends of the world and does not need or promise to reward repetition. The old obsession clings, however, to those who once have ventured into polar regions, but they want to travel by something better than than dog sleds. A dirigible in either the Arctic or the Antarctic would be trusted only by the bravest of men, but to them it seems safe enough, and they are eager to take the risks for the sake of the better and far more extensive observations that can be made with the help of a machine that can stay aloft indefinitely, traverse thousands of miles, and have a fair chance of getting back home. They know that they cannot win the glory or, at any rate, not the sort of glory attained by those who first "discovered" the Poles, but there still is much to learn about those desolate regions, and some of it may be of practical as well as scientific value—if there is any distinction between the two, which there probably isn't.

More Listening Than Real Hearing. Reports from listeners-in who have "heard Europe" are becoming more numerous as the week of special efforts in this direction goes on, and as the enthusiasts gain skill in tuning for stations so distant. The expected advantage from using an hour when darkness covers the whole Atlantic has been realized only in part, however, and it still is the fact that the ethereal waves travel eastward more easily than westward. At least they seem to, with broadcasting and receiving as they are. Before long, presumably, the difference will be made to disappear.

Meanwhile, all the American sending stations, instead of most of them, scrupulously should observe the rules laid down for the long-distance game and stop their own activities promptly at 11 o'clock. A few keep going for several minutes after that hour, thus adding difficulty to the attempted achievements and depriving the enthusiasts of their first chance to hear the foreign announcers telling what they are going to do. This grievance is the greater because the time thus taken from the foreordained hour has been devoted in several instances to the useless and irritating task of running over the names, letters and wave lengths of the foreign stations. Almost everybody interested already has that information, obtained from the newspapers, and the few who haven't cannot get it as announced over the radio unless they happen to be stenographers with pad and pencil ready or have phenomenal memories.

The Reward as Yet Is Small. None of the listeners who have succeeded in hearing something from the foreign stations reports that the feat had any reward except its own accomplishment. It is interesting to get sounds from thousands of miles away, but the chance of hearing any sounds comparable in themselves with those sent out by our own stations is at present so small as to be negligible. Some of the music broadcast in Europe is good, of course, but it is apt to be the same as, and no better rendered than, the music "put on the air" here. Indeed, the distance hunter rarely is paid for his pains otherwise than in satisfaction with a triumph which he naively thinks of as his own, though it is so only in a degree amusingly slight—unless he has made his own receiving set. Ability to get distant points is of next to no real and intrinsic value to metropolitan listeners, the New York stations, or some of them, providing entertainment and edification of far higher class than those in our dear hinterland. It is the dwellers in that hinterland that have true need to hear from afar—from New York, that is.

THE SITUATION IN SPAIN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The New York newspapers are publishing full reports of the "proclamations" of Vicente Blasco Ibañez as a martyr in the cause to liberate a nation enslaved by ruthless tyranny.

What Blasco Ibañez or Bernard Shaw or d'Annunzio may say undoubtedly has a news value, due to the great publicity achieved through their literary productions. Reputations such as these, achieved in a single, specialized branch of the arts, lend such a glamour to their names that the great public of the United States is apt to believe what they say as gospel truth, particularly when Blasco speaks regarding a country like Spain, about which Americans as a whole know very little.

The United States would not tolerate any of its citizens writing about the President, his Cabinet and the country itself in the way that the Spanish Government, even during the so-called directorate régime, has allowed Blasco Ibañez and Unamuno to write and talk. The liberty they have enjoyed is nothing short of license.

Swung high across one of the buildings in Madrid there has been for many years a sign, "Club Republicano." Can there be a greater liberty than this? In a country of 22,000,000 people there are twenty-three odd hundred newspapers, magazines and periodicals of all creeds, of every kind of political affiliation.

Liberty of the press reached such a degree of license and articles were constantly published so damaging and destructive of public confidence by men so impractical and in a mental state of such extreme folly that the present Government has tried to put a curb on this situation, and undoubtedly great good will be accomplished, though the procedure adopted at the moment is unfortunate and bears an appearance of censorship. But with rare exceptions it is a censorship such as the chief editor of any American newspaper exercises over his subordinates.

There is no country that I know of with greater freedom for every law-abiding citizen that minds his business than there is in Spain.

Why should Blasco Ibañez and Unamuno direct their attacks against the private lives of the King of Spain and General Primo de Rivera? Why should Blasco Ibañez dedicate his life to his country from Paris and then proceed to insult it with the most libelous and false statements? Why should he be in such company as Alba (not the Duque of Alba, but the politician Alba), who escaped from Spain with his nest well feathered, and why should he render tribute to Caillaux, banished from France for seven years, recently pardoned and again angling for power?

Great, clean, well-organized American business like the International Telephone and Telegraph Company has obtained an important concession to reorganize the telephone system of Spain, an enterprise that will run into many millions of dollars and is undoubtedly a forerunner of much American interest and business activity in Spain. As soon as the award of this concession was published a publication in France announced that this meant that enormous supplies would be purchased in the United States, whereas if they were purchased in France it would help the franc to recuperate, and proceeded to attack the Spanish Government for allowing this contract to go to an American corporation.

It is gratifying to feel that the poverty-stricken Spain of the last century has saved and progressed sufficiently in a generation to buy back from French bankers the bulk of its railroad securities and of many other enterprises.

Not France or the French people but a strong political financial group that may get into power and which seems to have adequate means of publicity through the American press are keenly interested in placing in power in Spain a Government that will listen to its persuasive commissions and divide with it the booty.

Spain is not fighting the Moors alone in Morocco; she is fighting this political financial group, and one of the battles is being fought in the American press. Spain has no propaganda in the United States and she must depend upon American publishers with their magic news and information gathering organizations to take an interest, to get informed and to present a true picture of facts to the American people.

POSTLUDE.

The slender bow is silent. . . The applause—
I am drawn back from far. . .
A still deep wood—
A mystery of hushed leaves, whispering,
Where he came stepping.
Who came stepping? He—
This one who held the bow and drew its length
Across dumb strings, to make a miracle. . .
Without a blemish, and without a spot. . .
Satin, and splendid, and as white as wool!

I closed my eyes. . . Oh, inconceivable—
Immeasurable heights! Oh, radiance!
Oh, blithe and magic melody that dripped
Like living waters from a living spring!
Ships . . . going out, and never coming back . . .
Valleys of shadow . . . lovely hills of home . . .

Oh, like some small, blind Milton, sitting there,
I saw all things that ever music made!

Hearing, I saw the heaven and the earth
That shall not pass away . . . O Golden Boy, Stand in your place! . . . It is the Place of Stars!

REPORTS PROGRESS IN LIMITING WASTE

SHOWS BIG DEATH TOLL

"Most Challenging of All Is the Waste of Human Life," He Says —Urges Greater Cooperation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—America's prosperity in the fiscal year which closed on June 30, as shown by the rise in farm prices, better railroad conditions and a trade balance of $757,000,000, is set forth at length by Secretary Hoover in his annual report, made public today, and a summary of which was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Nov. 18. Mr. Hoover refers optimistically to the Dawes Plan and the improved trade and finances of Europe.

"A definite constructive national program has been developed for the elimination of waste in our economic system," he says. "The need is plain. The American standard of living is the product of high wages to producers and low prices to consumers. The road to national progress lies in increasing real wages through proportionately lower prices. The one and only way is to improve methods and processes and to eliminate waste. Just as twenty years age we undertook nation-wide conservation of natural resources, so now we must undertake nation-wide elimination of waste. Regulations and laws are of but minor effect on these fundamental things.

Says Standards Can Go Higher.

"But by well-directed economic forces, by cooperation in the community, we can not only maintain American standards of living—we can raise them," says Mr. Hoover, adding:

"We have the highest ingenuity and efficiency in the operation of our industry and commerce of any nation of the world. Yet our economic machine is far from perfect. Wastes are legion. There are wastes which arise from widespread unemployment during depressions, and from speculation and overproduction in booms; wastes attributable to labor turnover and the stress of labor conflicts; wastes due to the intermittent and seasonal production, as in the coal and construction industries; vast wastes from structures in commerce due to inadequate transportation, such as the lack of sufficient terminals; wastes caused by excessive variations in products; wastes in materials, arising from lack of efficient processes; wastes by fire and wastes in human life.

"Against these and other wastes the department, acting always in cooperation with the industries, has for the last three years developed an increasingly definite program. As these manifold activities of the department are based upon cooperation with industry and commerce, none of them leads to paternalistic ends."

Declaring that "the greatest waste is periodic slackening of production and resultant unemployment," Secretary Hoover reviews briefly the work of the National Conference on Unemployment in 1921 and says that the report on "unemployment and the business cycle" which was made by a committee of the conference, attracted world-wide interest and did much to curb the beginnings of a dangerous boom in 1923.

Calls Building Waste Unnecessary.

A second committee of the unemployment conference undertook the study of seasonal operation in the construction industries. "It was shown conclusively that custom, not climate, is mainly responsible for the seasonal ups and downs in building and that these evils are largely unnecessary and can be eliminated," Mr. Hoover says. "For most types of construction it is now possible to build the year round in all parts of the United States.

"The elimination of these wastes would strengthen the entire business structure, for construction is the balance wheel of American industry. The value of yearly construction in the United States is more than $5,000,000,000. If building falls off there is always a slackening in many other lines of industry, resulting in unemployment, decreased purchasing power of employes and further depression."

The practical result of the department's campaign for simplified processes in manufacture is shown in the report. For instance, paving bricks, with sixty-six varieties, cut to five, and yard lumber, in which 60 per cent. of the old styles has been eliminated.

"Estimated annual savings by the industries as a result of this method of national waste elimination," the report says, "range from $500,000 in one commodity field to $250,000,000 in another. These savings eventually find their way back to the consumer, either in lower prices or better quality, or both. All such efforts definitely advance competition."

Sees $1,000,000,000 Saved as to Coal.

On the subject of coal the report says: "The industry is now on the road to stabilization. The benefits lie not only in the provision of coal to the consumer at lower prices than have been attained at any time since the beginning of the war. The gradual elimination of the high-cost and fly-by-night mines is bringing about a greater degree of concentration of labor upon a smaller number of mines, the increase of days of employment per annum and thus a larger annual return to the workers.

"The inherent risks in the industry will be decreased because the efficient and stable operator will no longer be subjected to the type of competition that comes from those mines that exist only to take advantage of profiteering periods. No better example of cooperation to secure the elimination of national waste can be presented. The past year, as compared to the year 1920, shows a saving to the consumer of about $1,000,000,000, which must be reflected in decreasing costs of production in every avenue of industry and commerce."

Points to Waste of Human Lives.

Secretary Hoover discusses with equal clarity the problems of cooperative and economical marketing, the reduction of housing costs, radio and aviation progress. But in calling attention to the appalling waste of life in this country Mr. Hoover rises above the routine of an annual report. He says:

"The most challenging of all wastes is the waste of human life. There is no more conspicuous example of that wastage in our modern American life than in the mounting curse of traffic accidents. During the past year the Department has taken the lead in an investigation of the tremendous human and physical losses due to accidents of this kind.

"With a view to bringing about a better public understanding of the gravity of the situation, and if possible finding a remedy for it, I asked the police officials, highway and vehicle commissioners, chambers of commerce, automobile associations and manufacturers, safety-first associations, engineering associations, insurance carriers, and labor organizations to join in the formation of a number of committees to investigate the whole subject.

"These committees are composed of representative men from all parts of the country. As soon as they have completed their work, it is proposed to call a national conference upon the subject.

"The gravity of the situation is well illustrated by the fact that even as I write the Committee on Statistics has brought in a report indicating that the deaths in 1923 were not less than 22,600, the number of people injured not less than 678,000 and the total economic loss not less than $600,000,000."

DEBUTANTES GUESTS AT HOLIDAY PARTIES

MRS. CARTER GIVES A DANCE

There were several entertainments for débutantes yesterday, although, as a rule, Thanksgiving is restricted to family gatherings. It seemed necessary to choose the holiday, as there are so many to be introduced this season that it is rather a difficult matter to find days enough without such encroachments. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Trow Carter gave a dance last night in the ball room of the Colony Club to introduce their second daughter, Miss Elizabeth W. Carter, who is a granddaughter of the late Robert Hoe of printing press fame. In advance of the dance, a dinner was given at the club by Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Sterling, uncle and aunt of the débutante. The dance guests included many of the older friends of the family, as well as the débutantes and younger members of society who have been at the previous receptions, dinners and dances of the season.

Mrs. Barclay Entertains.

In the afternoon, at her home, 5 East Seventy-eighth Street, Mrs. Reginald Barclay held a reception to introduce to the many friends of the family her second daughter, Miss Josephine Barclay. Receiving with the hostess and the débutante were Miss Bertha Barclay, who was introduced to society last year, Miss Alice Agnew, Miss Eleanor Auchincloss, Miss Mary Hand and Miss Jane Fraser. Mrs. Preston L. Sutphen and Mrs. Henry Alsop Riley were at the tea table. Mr. and Mrs. Barclay will give a dance for the débutante at the Colony Club on the night of Dec. 23.

Another reception of the afternoon was given by Mrs. William Lanman Bull Jr. in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton to introduce her daughter, Miss Elisabeth Worthington Bull, who is a granddaughter of Mrs. W. Lanman Bull of 500 Madison Avenue. Miss Bull, after leaving the Spence School, traveled in Europe with her mother. After the reception with dancing there was a dinner for the members of the receiving party and the young men who acted as ushers during the afternoon. Later Mrs. Bull took her guests to the Imperial Theatre to see "Rose-Marie," and afterward to the dance given at the Colony Club by Mr. and Mrs. Carter. Mrs. Bull's guests for dinner and the theatre were the Misses Katharine de Garmo Babst, Lois McCall, Cadence Hamilton, Frances Gibb, Kay Jordan, Edyth Elliman and Clara Oldfield Barclay, Sabine Baring-Gould, Frank Wells Warburton, George Gordon, Le Vere Fisher, Mitchell Kennerly Jr., George W. Richardson, W. Travis Gibb Jr. and Lawrence Turnure.

Erharts Are Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Erhart gave a dinner and dance last night at their home, 1,035 Fifth Avenue, for their daughter, Miss Henriette Erhart. After the dinner, which was for thirty young friends of the family, some of the married friends of Mr. and Mrs. Erhart came to the dance and supper that followed, and there also were included most of the débutantes of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving McKesson of 178 East Seventy-ninth Street gave a dinner last night at their home, afterward taking their guests to the Martin Beck Theatre for the performance of "Madame Pompadour." In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKesson, Miss Mary McKesson, the Misses Josephine Havemeyer Willcox, Nina Hudson, Florine Dana, Paula Murray, Eva Taylor and Olive Penniman, all débutantes of the season; also Harold Clark, Norman Cross, Charles Byron Sloane, George Grote, Paul Faurel, Benjamin McArthur, John Osterstock and Robert Walker. After supper at the Lido-Venice the young people of the party went to the various dances of the night.

Much will be done today and tonight for débutantes. Mrs. Richard de Wolfe Brixey will give a reception this afternoon at 420 Park Avenue to introduce her daughter, Miss Doris Marguerite Brixey. Another reception of the afternoon will be held at the Colony Club by Mrs. Charles B. Curtis of Litchfield, Conn., to introduce her granddaughter, Miss Caroline Cary Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Eliot Curtis. At the Lido-Venice today, Miss Millicent Barnard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Barnard will give a luncheon for Miss Helene Edmonds, a débutante.

GREET SANTA CLAUS AS 'KING OF KIDDIES'

FLOATS IN THE PAGEANT

Santa Claus chose Thanksgiving Day this year to come to town. With a retinue of clowns, freaks, animals and floats, the bewhiskered man in red, in sight of thousands of persons, arrived at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and three hours later was crowned "King of the Kiddies" on the marquee above the entrance to Macy's new store in Thirty-fourth Street near Seventh Avenue.

His expected arrival having been heralded several days in advance, a crowd estimated by the police at almost 10,000 gathered in Thirty-fourth Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues to cheer his approach and his subsequent coronation. Children were in the majority, but a large part of the throng was made up of grown-up men and women.

Santa came in state. The float upon which he rode was in the form of a sled driven by reindeer over a mountain of ice. Preceding him were men dressed like the knights of old, their spears shining in the sunlight.

From the start of the parade, at Convent Avenue and 145th Street, to its conclusion men, women, and more especially children, lined the walks, sometimes four and five deep. Led by a police escort, the parade passed down Convent, Morningside and Manhattan Avenues to 110th Streets, where it turned west to Broadway, to Columbus Circle, Fortieth Street to and down Broadway to Thirty-fourth Street, where it was welcomed by such crowds that a large force of policemen had its hands full maintaining the police lines.

The majority of participants were employes of the stores. There were, however, many professional entertainers who kept the spectators amused as they passed by. Beautiful floats showed the Old Lady Who Lived in a Shoe, Little Miss Muffet and Red Riding Hood. There also were bears, elephants, donkeys and bands, making the procession resemble a circus parade.

When Santa seated himself on the throne he sounded his trumpet, which was the signal for the unveiling of the store's Christmas window, showing "The Fairy Frolics of Wondertown," designed and executed by Tony Sarg. The police lines gave way and with a rush the enormous crowd flocked to the windows to see Mother Goose characters as marionettes.

He was born May 19, 1847, the eldest son of the eighth Duke of Beaufort, his other inherited titles, all several hundred years old, being Baron Herbert of Raglan, Earl of Worcester and Marquess of Worcester. WOULD EXTEND STATE BONUS

Bill to Compensate Dependents of War Dead Planned.

Dependents of soldiers from this State killed during the war will receive compensation at the same rate as that awarded to those surviving if a bill which will be introduced early at the legislative session next year passes and is approved by Governor Smith. Phelps, who was re-elected to the Assembly from the Tenth Manhattan District, will sponsor the proposal.

"There can be no sound argument against allowing the dependents of soldiers who gave their lives in the service to share in any award made to those who came through safely," Mr. Phelps said. "The defeat of an amendment providing for such an arrangement at the last session of the Legislature was the most flagrant breach of sincerity and good faith of which the Democrats were guilty. I shall introduce a measure to repair their failure to act and make it a first call upon my time and effort from the day the session opens until it is acted upon. I am confident that the Republican majorities in both houses will insure its passage."

The AMPICO

At Wanamaker's in the

Great Music—the Artistry of Great Pianists

A BOX at the Metropolitan Opera. A subscription to the New York Symphony or Philharmonic Concerts. Entree to the friendly and intimate circles of famous musicians. These are privileges few of us enjoy.

They are pleasures never missed in homes where music from the Ampico is heard.

For while the Ampico is not indeed Opera nor Symphony, it is great music, and the artistry of great pianists. It is the very heart and soul of the art of great musicians. Though apart from their persons, it is part of them.

The Ampico in the Marshall and Wendell Piano opens a new field of music enjoyment to thousands. At a cost surprising in its moderation it brings home to you in all the glories of their art: Rachmaninoff, Levitzki, Lhevinne, Rosenthal and their Olympian contemporaries. It makes their playing your pleasure. Their artistry the entertainment of your guests. Did you know that these pleasures are so available to you as they really are?

For your home this Christmas—why not give the great gift of music, always satisfying, ever new—the Ampico? Payments are extended over thirty months. Initial payment is nominal. Let us explain the Wanamaker plan without obligation to you.

Only at Wanamaker's will you find gathered in one place these great musical instruments: the Ampic in the Chickering, the Celebrated Knabe, the Marshall and Wendell. In grand pianos, the Chickering, Celebrated Knabe, Schomacker, Emerson, Lindeman, Marshall and Wendell and Premier. In player pianos, the Autopiano, Cambridge and Premier. In Uprights, many of the above and others.

Walk-Over

PROFILE

A new height heel, and a new flare to the high-pitched strap. A foretaste of the mode for spring. Bronze kid, $12.50. In patent, black, or tan russia calfskin.

Agrees with the present mode and the styles to come!

The mode today is a clinging one, and the Paris mid-season openings, just over, forecast the mode for spring. Shofter, more clinging than ever, the mode will be, and shoes—to match—must also cling. This one does. It is made with the uncopyable Walk-Over narrow heel. That is a scientific pearl-pendant shape given to the whole back part of the shoe that makes it cling as closely as the signature on a love note, and almost as affectionately. You can see its smart style. You must wear it to know its clinging, comfortable and smart fit.

From the Founder's Writings

It is Quite Possible to Have Too Much to Do and thereby allow some things to be neglected to one's disadvantage.

It is the experience of most business people that postponing what need not be done immediately only adds greater burdens for the days further along.

The only remedy for this is to get through with each day's work on the day it arrives and turn over the surplus to another, and thus prevent its accumulation.

"It's Never To Late to Mend"

This little note is for personal application.

John Wanamaker

C'est Paris

"C'est Paris" envelope is a perfect reflection of the model which has received the cachet of the best dressed women in the French capital.

This envelope has the safety fastening which is a new and important feature of smart Parisian bags. A famous jeweler of the Rue de la Paix has put this fastening on the outside under the flap. A leading maker of leather goods on the Faubourg St. Honore puts it at the top of his bags. We with all modesty, believe that we have placed this fastening in a much more ingenious and practical part of the "C'est Paris" envelope—and surely in a much less conspicuous place.

BIG DAY IN ARMY AND NAVY

Thousands of children in Indian and cowboy costumes and other fancy dress roamed the streets, besieged the subway stations, and went from door to door begging for pennies, according to the quaint custom of New York, yesterday, while big Thanksgiving dinners and celebrations were held in the city institutions.

"You can judge what a big day it was here," said Warden Joseph A. McCann of the City Prison on Welfare Island, "when I tell you that for the time being all the prisoners forgot about their cross-word puzzles and went down to the auditorium in the old Industrial Building, where the Keiths gave a vaudeville show.

"After and before that many of the prisoners put in their time on the puzzles. It was a holiday and they did not have to work. They had a field day at it yesterday because dozens of new dictionaries have been floating here recently. The puzzles come in the papers and in the books and when a good fellow has filled out one he erases all the pencil marks and passes it along. Some of them go almost crazy at night in their cells over them, and it took a tremendous showman and dinner yesterday to keep their attention."

There was some brisk trading in three-letter words and upward while the prisoners marched along the cinder path to the improvised auditorium, but once inside they all put their pencils aside, according to Warden McCann, and enjoyed the show that was furnished by E. F. Albee, while they passed around several thousand cigars and several hundred pounds of candy.

Enjoy a Big Chicken Dinner.

The prisoners also had a big dinner in which chicken was the principal dish, and this was accompanied by menus in which Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis took occasion to link Mayor Hylan with Thanksgiving Day and to say many kind and thoughtful things about both. There was a special dinner, but no entertainment, for the inmates of the psychiatric wards and the almshouses, and it was reported that cross-word puzzles had not made the progress that would be expected in those institutions.

At Sing Sing there were big dinners for all the prisoners, including the twenty-two men in the death house. After the dinner the prisoners were entertained by a showing of the film "The Ten Commandments."

Five thousand men had Thanksgiving dinner at the Navy Yard, Brooklyn. There were 4,500 sailors attached to fourteen warships, two Coast Guard cutters and one receiving ship, 200 marines in barracks, 200 disabled men in the Naval Hospital and a number of civilian workers at the Navy Yard. Red Cross workers entertained the men in the hospital and two naval bands furnished music on board the ships. Many of the men were given leave of absence after dinner.

The 1,500 army officers and men at Fort Hamilton enjoyed the rations of nineteen ounces of turkey allowed each man by the army regulations, together with mince pie and other delicacies. All drills were suspended for the day and many men took leaves.

Thanksgiving Day was generally observed at institutions on Staten Island. These included the Sailors' Snug Harbor, Actors' Home, Mount Loretto Home, the Sea View Hospital and the County Jail.

At Mount Loretto, which is in Pleasant Plains, the 1,000 boys and girls attended early mass, celebrated by the Rev. M. C. Fitzpatrick, the head of the institution, and at mid-day enjoyed turkey. In the afternoon the children performed plays appropriate to Thanksgiving to audiences of visitors.

Old Sailors Get Extra Plugs.

Each of the 900 old mariners in the Sailors' Snug Harbor, many of them retired commanders who saw service on the old-time clipper ships, received an extra plug of tobacco with his Thanksgiving dinner.

A dinner and entertainment in the afternoon marked the day's celebration at the Actors' Home in West New Brighton, where about 100 elderly actors are spending their declining years.

The 1,000 patients at Sea View Hospital, the municipal tubercular sanitarium at New Springville, heard a concert by the New York Police Glee Club.

Turkey was fed on Ellis Island to those about to be deported yesterday. Big birds were roasted at the immigrant station for 500 persons. Several of these were stowaways about to be shipped back and others were men and women who had been declared undesirable.

In the Bronx County Jail, Tremont and Arthur Avenues, Warden Edwin Butler provided a big meal for the sixty prisoners and in the jail annex at the Bronx County Court House, 161st Street and Third Avenue, twenty-two women and minors were fed.

One of the biggest Bronx celebrations was held at the New York Catholic Protectory, 1,900 East Tremont Avenue, where there are 1,300 boys and 600 girls. There was a mass at 7 A. M. and at 10 A. M. a football game was played between two of the classes. Dinner was served at noon and vaudeville programs were provided for the afternoon and evening.

At Lincoln Hospital dinner and entertainment was provided for 254 patients and almost 200 of the hospital staff.

Fordham Hospital supplied 245 dinners to patients and a special entertainment was provided in the afternoon. The doors were thrown open to visitors. Late in the afternoon a dinner was served to the working staff.

Patients in the United States Army Base Hospital No. 81, at Kingsbridge Road and Sedgwick Avenue, had a feast and in the afternoon the 800 wounded veterans were entertained by a quartet of the Y. M. C. A.

Nurses Visit Impecunious Sick.

More than 1,700 persons sick in their homes among the city's poor were visited yesterday by nurses of the Visiting Nurse Service of New York of 99 Park Avenue. The service has 248 nurses, and each of them spent Thanksgiving Day calling on sick people. Among the very needy cases baskets of provisions packed by the nurses themselves were distributed. The nurses said they found many cases which had been overlooked in the listing of needy cases for Thanksgiving charity distribution. By reporting these cases to other charitable agencies they were able to obtain food and cheer for many poverty-stricken homes.

At Roosevelt Hospital, Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue, 350 patients had turkey at noon. There was one exception, however, and that was Earl Sande, the jockey, who was returned to the hospital a few weeks ago when kidney trouble followed his recuperation from injuries received in a fall from a horse at Saratoga last August. Sande was too ill to eat turkey, it was said at the hospital, though his condition is not considered grave.

Lazarus Levy, keeper of the West Side Jail, his eleven assistants and seven persons held as material witnesses ate turkey at the jail, while fifty prisoners ate fifty-five pounds of chicken.

St. Andrew's one-cent coffee stand at 31 West Eighth Street served 2,000 persons with dinner from 11 A. M. to 6 P. M. and also provided baskets of food for families in the neighborhood.

Seven hundred persons, the patients and staff of St. Vincent's Hospital, Eleventh Street and Seventh Avenue, enjoyed a regular holiday dinner, and at New York Hospital, 8 West Sixteenth Street, 300 patients and workers were the guests of the institution at a turkey dinner.

There were sixty women in the Jefferson Market Court Jail at dinner time yesterday, and these had a typical Thanksgiving dinner. Warden Peter A. Mallon was in charge.

Salvation Army headquarters in Fourteenth Street reported that dinners were served and baskets provided for the poor at the Bowery Hotel, the Army's Forty-eighth Street Industrial Home and other places throughout Manhattan and The Bronx.

At Presbyterian Hospital, Seventieth Street and Madison Avenue, a dinner was provided by Mrs. John Stewart Kennedy, widow of the former President of the institution, for 500 persons.

The Lexington Hospital celebration was in the form of a dinner for sixty private patients and at St. Bartholomew's Clinical Hospital a six-course dinner was served to 100 patients. Music was provided by an orchestra.

Have a Radio Entertainment.

Two hundred patients at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, 210 East Sixty-fourth Street, enjoyed a radio entertainment while they ate turkey at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, Gunhill Road and Bainbridge Avenue, the Bronx, was the scene of a merry all-day celebration, when the families of the patients gathered to cheer them up. Patients and guests enjoyed a dinner at noon and vaudeville and a concert in the afternoon and evening. Similar celebrations were held in the Home for Incurables, Third Avenue and 158th Street, and at Seton Hospital, Riverdale, the Bronx.

Bellevue Hospital provided meals for the 740 men, 455 women, 103 boys and 91 girls housed there and in allied institutions. Five thousand pounds of turkey and chicken, with their companion dishes, were disposed of. The Welfare Island section of the hospital was provided with 1,700 pounds of turkey for the 1,700 patients there.

Flower Hospital, 163d Street and Eastern Boulevard, had a dinner for 350 patients and employes, following church services.

Alimony jumpers and other prisoners in the Ludlow Street Jail also enjoyed a feast. There were 28 at dinner, a small number compared to the celebrations of other years.

Dinner Goes on Undisturbed As Justice Quenches Blaze

A chimney fire filled the library in the home of Supreme Court Justice Phoenix Ingraham, 49 East Eighty-third Street, with smoke yesterday afternoon while the Justice, his wife and daughter and several guests were at Thanksgiving dinner. It did no damage and was put out by Justice Ingraham with a chemical extinguisher.

A call to the Fire Department was sent in, but the fire was out before the arrival of the apparatus.

THANKSGIVING FEAST BEFORE ALTAR IN PARIS

Fruits and Vegetables Associated With Day Are Displayed at Church Service.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Americans in Paris celebrated Thanksgiving Day with two impressive church ceremonies. The first was held at the Madeleine and brought together not only a great number of Americans but many French friends of the American colony. Every seat in the great church was filled and all available standing room was occupied. The church was beautifully decorated with French and American colors and throughout the ceremony the color guard of the Paris Post of the American Legion stood to the left of the altar with the American and the post flags.

Mgr. Chaptal presided at the ceremony and the sermon was read by Curé Flynn, who, after explaining to the French persons the significance of the celebration, preached a short sermon in English and then read the proclamation of the holiday by President Coolidge.

In the audience were Ambassador Herrick, Ambassador Daeschner, former Consul General Thackara, Consul General Skinner, Sheldon Whitehouse, representatives of President Doumergue and of Premier Herriot.

After the President's proclamation had been read the Archbishop shook hands with Mr. Herrick and assured him of the gratification of the French in Paris felt in joining in the Thanksgiving service.

The celebration in the American Procathedral was more strictly American. The congregation was practically all American and on a table in front of the altar were massed all the fruits and vegetables which are associated with Thanksgiving.

HYLANS SPEND DAY QUIETLY

Stay at Home Until Late Afternoon, Then Visit the Sinnotts.

Thanksgiving was essentially a home and family holiday for Mayor and Mrs. John F. Hylan. They spent all of the morning and the greater part of the afternoon at their residence at 959 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, and took dinner there.

Late in the afternoon they left to spend the evening at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sinnott, in Schenck Court, Brooklyn.

There were no callers at the Hylan home.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—At Cambridge today Arthur Goodhart gave a Thanksgiving Day luncheon for American students at Cambridge. There were 108 guests, of whom ninety were Americans. The chief speakers were Dean Gayley, head of the American University Union, and A. C. Benson, Master of Magdalene. The latter said it was excellent for Cambridge to have Americans there and he hoped there would be many more present next year. He described the English as being more philosophic, while Americans were more dynamic.

CLERGY URGE NATION TO HELP THE WORLD

CYNICISM IS CONDEMNED

Trinity Rector Deplores Tendency to Ridicule Respectability—City's Churches Filled Yesterday.

All the churches and synagogues held special Thanksgiving services yesterday, and seldom if ever have they been so largely attended on a Thanksgiving Day. In Fifth and Park Avenues, in the vicinity of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in Central Park West and other parts of Manhattan the church parade was almost as large as on a Sunday.

The burden of many of the sermons yesterday was that America, because of her great prosperity and her strong position in the world, should feel the responsibility of doing her share to solve international problems. A number of clergymen declared that Americans were too grudging in the way they gave thanks for their own blessings.

In all churches of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, a high mass was sung at 9 o'clock for the blessings of the past year. Every Lutheran Church had public worship at 11 o'clock. Synagagues held services at 10:30. The Episcopal churches had early celebrations of the Holy Communion and a preaching service in the forenoon. Other Protestant churches had an 11 o'clock worship.

"There is a present-day fad which is sweeping our country and which we hope will soon pass away," said the Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Church, in his sermon there yesterday morning. "It is the fad of cynical cleverness, which tends to ridicule respectability and morality. It is accounted clever today to dub all that we have called righteous and moral as conventional and Victorian.

Not All of Life Is Ugly.

"An apostle of this clever school of thought has said recently that 'no virtuous man—that is, virtuous in the Y. M. C. A. sense—has ever painted a picture worth looking at, or written a symphony worth hearing, or a book worth reading. And it is highly probable that the thing has never been done by a virtuous woman, either.'

"He praises an author who has had the fearlessness to avoid the respectable and the wholesome—'those two devils who so often betray even the most intelligent Americans.' How silly all this is may not always be apparent to the unthinking, for it sweeps away with a grand gesture as insignificant the works of the greatest minds of all time."

Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, preached at the Thanksgiving mass there and read in English the prayers for the civil authorities. "The United States is the only country which sets aside a special day for all to go to church and render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings bestowed," said Mgr. Lavelle. "And it is a fact of which we have a right to be justly proud." Following the parochial mass the annual memorial mass was sung for the United Councils of Greater New York of the Catholic Benevolent Legion. The celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Francis A. Osterman of the staff of St. Boniface's Church, and the preacher was the Rev. John B. Kelly.

Our Thanks Too Perfunctory.

The Rev. Dr. Paul E. Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street, pleaded for "the grace of gratitude," a characteristic sadly lacking in many Americans, Dr. Scherer said.

"Our acknowledgment is a bowing acquaintance and a strained courtesy with very little about it that seems like spontaneous gratitude," said Dr. Scherer. "Otherwise a Thanksgiving Day would not be necessary. We make a gesture of stiff acknowledgment."

There were more than a thousand people in St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, the rector, announced that the offering would go to buy coal for the very poor.

"A thankful heart is the greatest blessing man can know," said Dr. Stires. "While other Governments are shaking and in peril a great election has swept over America from ocean to ocean and has left American institutions unshaken, left the principles upon which it has been founded stronger than ever. But the nation needs to be reminded that God's hand has directed its destinies and that its great wealth and power should be used with wisdom and kindliness."

The Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, preached at a union service there to an audience which included the Fifth Avenue and the Central Presbyterian congregations.

"One way to insure America's continued peace and prosperity is to make her indispesable to the world," said Dr. Sockman.

"This, however, will not be done merely by making her the depositary of the world's gold. The piling up of material possessions here will only invite attack. An aloof attitude of self-sufficiency on the part of wealthy America is bound to arouse the envy of other countries. Our security lies in strengthening our non-competitive possessions. We must make this country so recognized for her justice, her ideals of government, her honesty of business, her fraternity of spirit that the other nations will say that America must be preserved as a spiritual balance wheel for the rest of the world. Other lands, even Japan, will then come to look upon us as their hope, not as their rival."

Bishop Herbert Shipman, preaching in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, where he substituted for Bishop Manning, declared that the building of the Cathedral was the greatest work and the most patriotic work ever undertaken by the Episcopal Church in this city.

"Patriotism and religion belong absolutely together," said Bishop Shipman. "Armies and navies do not and can not bring peace, but the real peacemakers are those who work for the best interest of Government."

Justice Thomas C. T. Crain of the Supreme Court delivered an address at the Thanksgiving service in Temple B'nai Jeshurun, 257 West Eighty-eighth Street.

"What we need today," said Justice Crain, "is a return to the simple faith of the ancients. We need men like Abraham and Moses and David and Isaiah. We need to feel once more that we are walking with God."

The Rev. Dr. Israel Goldstein, the rabbi, said his congregation approached the day "with hearts overflowing with gratitude because it is entering its one hundredth year."

God Claims All Races.

In St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Parish, Broadway and Vesey Street, the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas, the vicar, said, "We have been equally blessed who dwell in many lands under various Governments. God claims all races. We know no distinction when we face necessity or behold valor and strength."

The Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill, preaching at a union service in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, said Thanksgiving Day was more than a holiday in the lesson that it teaches, a lesson that comes down from Christ.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, associate minister of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, preached at a union service in the Collegiate Reformed Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street. He said that, while we of the United States were giving thanks "we should not forget the sufferings of the rest of the world—the breadlines in Europe, the disasters in China and the lamentations that rise above ancient Bible lands."

Radio Compass Guides a Flier in the Fog In Its First Test by the Army Air Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The first test of the "radio compass" guide for aviators on an airway flight promises the end of all fears for the flier who now must largely guess his way when fog or haze obscures his view of the earth.

Radio compass mechanism, perfected after long experiment by the Army Air Service and Signal Corps to overcome the handicap of low visibility in flying, was given its first practical test yesterday in a flight between the airway points of Dayton, Ohio, and Moundsville, W. Va., by Lieutenant George W. Goddard. The results are viewed as having an important bearing on the development of commercial aviation.

While a constant stream of signals flowed between the radio towers at the two places, Lieutenant Goddard, flying in a haze, and without attempting to guide by landmarks, was kept on a virtual beeline route by a special receiving apparatus that told him when he was sliding off his course.

When he was on the straight course he heard only dashes in the signaling between the towers. When he got off to the left he was warned by hearing a dash and then a dot, repeated at intervals of ten seconds. Similarly, a dot and a dash signal warned him when he was swerving too far to the right.

Lieutenant Goddard wore a specially-designed helmet, tight fitting and equipped with earphones, and the plane as an aerial carried a wire 300 or 400 feet in length, held down by a weight.

The receiving set on the plane was grounded to the motor, and the plane was equipped with long exhaust pipes to remove the sound of the motor so the pilot could hear the signals.

"It was not necessary for me to keep an eye on the ground," Lieutenant Goddard said after landing here from Moundsville. "I found the way directly and without difficulty."

The flier said he thought the radio compass equipment soon would be extended to cover ultimately all points in the country on airway routes.

ANSWERS MAGAZINE WRITER

Calvary Pastor Severely Takes to Task Rupert Hughes, Who, He Says, Sneered at Puritans.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, West Fifty-seventh Street, in a Thanksgiving sermon there yesterday morning severely took to task a recent magazine article by Rupert Hughes, in which Mr. Hughes minimized the part which religion plays in the history of this country.

"All the way through our history, despite our shortcomings as a people, we have, nevertheless, more fully than any other nation perhaps in history, exemplified the great motto that is stamped upon our coins, 'In God We Trust,'" said Dr. Straton. "And these things cannot be offset by any mistakes of the misguided nor by any extremes to which the Puritans, at whom Mr. Hughes sneers, may have gone.

"We cannot develop this nation in strength on a diet of overheated houses, lazy hours, fancy food, cigarettes, ice cream cones, chewing gum, lip sticks, rouge pots, petting parties, joyriding, risque plays, mushy movies, off-color vaudeville jokes, licentious literature, indecent dressing, degraded dancing, gambling by men and women alike, cabarets, Sabbath desecration, disrespect for parents, disregard for authority, divorce, and the general glorification of the flesh over the spirit, without hope of heaven or fear of hell, and all of it founded upon the Epicurean maxim, 'Dum vivimus vivamus,' or the equally pagan philosophy, against which the word of God warns us, 'Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die!'

"The Bible comes to us today with the credentials of an age-long vindication in history when it says, 'The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.'

"Can this nation, then, founded in faith, conceived, born and nourished by the forces of religion, renounce now this source of its greatness without sacrificing its freedom, losing its righteousness, and rushing on to inevitable ruin?"

HARVARD MEN PRAISE YALE'S ENTERPRISE

Kenneth Macgowan, director of the Provincetown Playhouse and Greenwich Village Theater, wrote yesterday to Professor George P. Baker congratulating him on the opportunity offered through the $1,000,000 gift of Edward S. Harkness to Yale University, by which Professor Baker becomes head of the Department of Dramatic Art there.

Mr. Macgowan's letter is only one of many received by Professor Baker at 77 Park Avenue, where he is staying at present. It read:

"My dear Professor Baker: Eugene O'Neill and Robert Edmond Jones join me in congratulating the American theatre on the opportunity which has been opened to you at Yale through the generosity and the artistic perception of Edward S. Harkness. As Mr. O'Neill was a student in your palywriting course, and Mr. Jones and I were associated with you in the producing work of the Harvard Dramatic Club prior to the founding of your 47 Workshop, we had long felt keenly the restrictions under which you had to labor. As Harvard graduates, we are not exactly happy over the defeat which our university now suffers at the hands of its historic rival, yet we cannot help rejoicing that at last you are to be given, through Mr. Harkness's million-dollar endowment, the proper opportunity for the development of your work in playwriting and stagecraft. And we would venture to put at your disposal whatever facilities our two theatres, the Provincetown Playhouse and the Greenwich Village Theatre, and our staff may have for cooperating with you.

"I am giving this letter to the press, because we want the general public to understand the attitude of certain Harvard men of the theatre toward your reluctant decision to give up your work at our university and accept the call from Yale. Ever faithfully,

"KENNETH MACGOWAN."

COOLIDGES GIVE THANKS IN CHURCH

GOVERNMENT OFFICES SHUT

Veterans at the Various Hospitals Are Provided With Special Dinners.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The national capital put aside official duties today to join the nation in observance of Thanksgiving Day. All Government departments were closed.

Attending services in the morning at the First Congregational Church, President and Mrs. Coolidge had a quiet program for the rest of the day before partaking of a Thanksgiving dinner at the White House in the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, their guests. Gifts of turkeys and various delicacies from friends and admirers had amply supplied the White House table for the occasion.

Among the religious services in the day's observance in the capital was the annual Pan-American mass at St. Patrick's Church, which high officials of the State Department and members of the Diplmatic Corps, according to tradition, attended. Archbishop Curley of Baltimore and the Most Rev. Fumasoni-Biondi, Apostolic Delegate, were the presiding church dignitaries for the mass, and the Rev. Dr. George W. Johnson of the Catholic University delivered the sermon.

Veterans at the various hospitals in Washington and vicinity were not forgotten and Thanksgiving dinners were provided for them.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The French Academy elected three new "immortals" this afternoon to fill the vacant chairs of Frédéric Masson, Pierre Loti and de Freycinet. Three other chairs still remain empty—those of Anatole France, Maurice Barrès and Comte d'Haussonville.

The new members are Georges Lecomte, Emile Picard and Albert Besnard. Journalist, author, playwright, historian and critic, Georges Lecomte holds a distinguished position in the world of letters. His political biography of Georges Clemenceau is considered among the best things of its kind. Notable also are his works on the impressionist school of painting. He is President of the Authors' Society of France.

Emile Picard is a member of the Academy of Science and a professor at the Sorbonne. His equations theorems are known the world over.

Albert Besnard is director of the Beaux Arts Academy. Among the best-known representatives of academic art in France, he decorated the amphitheatre of the Sorbonne and other public buildings and recently painted the Pope's portrait.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A unique ceremony will accompany the dedication on Sunday of the monument erected by the City of Besançon to 1,500 of its sons killed in the war. Instead of discourses by officials, silence will prevail throughout the ceremony. The business of the city, including cafés and cinemas, will be closed.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the city's population will file before the monument placing flowers on the altar. The silent ceremony was suggested by the Mayor, and the Municipal Council accepted it by a unanimous vote.

CLOSE PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

Several to Be Idle for 2 Weeks Owing to Scarlet Fever Epidemic.

Because of the epidemic of scarlet fever, Health Officer Charles V. Craster of Newark, has ordered several parochial schools closed for two weeks.

Seventy-two cases of the disease, in a mild form, have been reported to the Health Department, sixty-four of them being among children who are pupils at the parochial school of St. Rose of Lima.

The peak of the epidemic was reached yesterday, it is believed, when twenty-one additional casese were reported.

CHRISTMAS CHARITY FOR GERMAN NEEDY

SHIPLOAD PRECEDED HER

Five British war mothers who lost sons in the European war were at the pier of the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland yesterday to say good-bye to Miss Persis Meacham Pomeroy, sailing on that ship to superintend the distribution of Christmas charity among German needy children and the aged. Miss Pomeroy supervised the loading of a cargo of new clothes and fabrics for the German destitute before she sailed. The cargo was loaded in Philadelphia aboard a Christmas ship which has sailed for Germany.

In addition, she shipped aboard the Deutschland, on which she sailed, fourteen boxes, weighing 500 pounds each, packed with Christmas bags for the poor of Germany. In each Christmas bag is material for a dress, petticoat or pair of trousers.

Miss Pomeroy was accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Boldt of the German Red Cross. Miss Pomeroy represents a number of American women's religious organizations active in sending Christmas cheer to the impoverished inhabitants of the Ruhr and Rhineland. A delegation of twenty-three women, including the five British war mothers, went to the pier to see her sail. One of the British war mothers wore five gold stars.

Fritz Land, production manager of the Universal Film Company of Germany, was also a passenger on the Deutschland.

"California is ideal for pictures," he said. "I do not wonder that Los Angeles has become a centre. With the exception of two months a year any set may be taken in the open air. In Germany we have to work inside all the year around."

Lorenz Hagenbeck, head of the Hagenbeck wild animal circuses of Germany, who came to America to dispose of a surplus of wild stock, boarded the Duetschland on Wednesday night and remained in his cabin, due to a fracture of the leg he sustained in a fall while in Detroit.

The Deutschland carried ninety-five first, ninety-three second and 131 third-class passengers, including many persons returning to Germany for the first time since the end of the world war.

On the Grace liner, Santa Ana, sailing for South American ports, was a delegation from the Vatican on its way to Peru to attend the anniversary of the Battle of Ayacucho, in which the Peruvians gained their independence. Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union, sailed to represent the union at the Peruvian celebration. Others sailing on the Santa Ana included Mrs. F. Hultgren, wife of the Argentine Minister to Sweden; Robert Cushman Murphy of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, with his wife and two children; M. H. Blatz and A. W. Whitney as delegates to the Pan-American Scientific Congress to be held shortly at Lima, Peru.

The passengers of the Santa Ana also included A. W. Whitney, Chairman of the American Engineering Standards Committee, and M. H. Bletz, Special Agent of the United States Department of Commerce who will attend a conference at Lima, Peru, on the standardization of the manufacture and shipment of goods in North and South America.

Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, daughter of the late President Wilson with her husband and their three children, sailed on the United States liner America. For the last two years Dr. Sayre has been in the diplomatic service of the Siamese Government. He hopes to arrange commercial treaties between Siam, France and Italy.

MORE THAN 5,000 CROSS BEAR MOUNTAIN BRIDGE

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The Bear Mountain Bridge was opened to traffic today. The new structure, which was dedicated yesterday, is the most southerly bridge across the Hudson, spanning the river from Bear Mountain to Peekskill.

Although the bridge was opened at 7 A. M., traffic did not begin to become heavy until about noon. In spite of the threatening weather, many sightseers journeyed to the bridge to say that they had been among the first to cross it. By 1:30 o'clock it was estimated that 1,500 cars had traversed the structure. By 4 o'clock the number had increased to 5,000.

The stream of cars continued so heavy that officials had no time to figure receipts for the first day. Most of the vehicles crossing the bridge were passenger automobiles, and the number was about equally divided between those going east and those bound west. About a dozen police guards were on duty to regulate traffic. The traffic decreased steadily as night fell.

The work of erecting toll houses was completed for the opening of the bridge so that there was little delay in the payment of toll. The bridge is owned by the Bear Mountain-Peekskill Bridge Corporation, of which E. Roland Harriman is President. The width of the roadway is 38 feet, sufficient to permit the passage of two lines of automobiles in each direction simultaneously. Outside of the roadway, on either side of the bridge, are two five-foot walks. The total length of the structure is 2,257 feet.

HOLIDAY ROISTERERS WRECK A BAKESHOP

Dinner trade was over in the bakery of Borchers & Schnatterer at 1,555 Avenue A, near Eighty-second Street, and Paul Schnatterer, his wife and their young daughter were enjoying a few minutes' rest last evening when the door opened and three genial young men entered. As the proprietor advanced one of them said pleasantly, "Happy Thanksgiving, baker," and ended the salute with a cream puff that struck the baker in the face.

The other two added their expression of good wishes in the shape of chocolate eclairs, tarts and other pastry with such enthusiasm that within a few minutes they had depleted the display stock of the shop and had sent the bespattered baker, his wife and child to the shelter of the counter. The interior of the shop looked as if a cycline had struck it.

"Good luck, baker," said one of the visiting trio as the door shut. By the time the baker got a policeman the three merry visitors had disappeared.

Yonkers was so "dry" over Thanksgiving that there was not an arrest or an arraignment in Yonkers City Court yesterday for intoxication, which is a record not equaled on Sundays or holidays in Yonkers for years.

The oldest inhabitants cannot remember a Sunday or a holiday when there was not a prisoner to be arraigned for going on a spree. Judge Charles W. Boote convened court yesterday, as customary on holidays, but there was not a case to be heard. The only business transacted was the acceptance of bail for a defendant charged with receiving stolen property, who asked that the case be adjourned one week without a hearing.

TERRORIZE A WOMAN AND STEAL HER $270

Mrs. Rose Paster was alone in her husband's delicatessen store at 369 Lenox Avenue, near 129th Street, shortly after 11 o'clock last night when three negroes entered with pistols and forced her into the rear room. Before the thieves entered, Mrs. Paster had taken the day's receipts, about $270, from the cash register preparatory to closing the store, and put them in a pocketbook behind the counter.

While two of the robbers held pistols at her head the third examined the empty cash register. Just then a customer appeared. The negro told him that the place was closed for the night and locked the door after him. Then he returned to the rear room and informed his confederates there was no money in the cash register, whereupon all three pressed their pistols against the woman's head and threatened to kill her unless she uncovered the hiding place of the money.

Mrs. Paster then gasped out that they would find the money behind the counter, and after the leader of the robber trio had uncovered it, all three backed into the street and disappeared.

The descriptions of them given by Mrs. Paster tallied in some respects with those of three negro hold-up men who in the last month have perpetrated several robberies in Harlem, in one of which they shot a victim.

Early yesterday morning, when traffic was practically at a standstill, James Cunningham, ticket agent on the Nineteenth Street Station of the Second Avenue elevated road, left his booth to look after the heating apparatus. As he went into the porter's room a man sprang at him from a corner, pressing the point of a pistol to his chest, so Cunningham later told the police. The man motioned him to sit down in a chair and warned him to make no outcry for ten minutes. Then he went out, locking the ticket agent into the porter's room.

Cunningham told the police he waited ten minutes and then got out of the room and returned to his ticket booth. There was no sign of the robber and no sign of the cash he had had there. He told the police of the East Twenty-second Street station there was $70 of Wednesday's day receipts and $53 of the night's receipts, a total of $123. The police searched the neighborhood, but could find no trace of the robber.

Two armed men yesterday morning held up the barber shop of Andrew Cali at 193 Richards Street Brooklyn. They got $58 from the cash register and two diamonds rings valued at $300 from Cali and his barber, Angelo Stephano.

When the bandits entered Cali thought they were customers and called out, "Next!"

"I'm next, all right," said the first of the two men as he drew a pistol and leveled it at Cali, his companion doing the same to Stephano. "And now you step into the back room and move fast." They bound the barbers back to back by their hands with heavy twine. They then rifled the cash register, took the rings and escaped in an automobile. Cali and Stephano were released half an hour later, when several customers entered the shop.

Magistrate Albert M. Vitale in Essex Market Court yesterday held in $5,000 bail each for examination on Saturday Tony Scarpullo of 112 East Fourth Street and Thomas Calabria of 155 Norfolk Street. They were arraigned on a charge of suspicion of robbery. Detective Frank Newkirk of the Fifth Street station charged that the prisoners on Wednesday night had, with three companions, held up and robbed fifty dancers in the Palais Social Club on the ground floor of 112 East Fourth Street. The bandits lined up the young men and women dancers and took their jewelry and money, escaping with loot estimated at between $500 and $1,000. The two prisoners were in the hall when the police arrived and were arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the robbery.

5 TO DIE IN CHAIR JAN. 15.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 27.—A communication was received by Acting Warden Thomas McInerney of Sing Sing today from Albany which necessitates arranging another wholesale execution for the night of Thursday, Jan. 15, when five condemned men will be put to death.

After arrangements had been made for putting to death four men Thursday night, Dec. 11, word was received that Edward Smith, Florenz Lerma, Onifry Biginoff, Harry Malcolm and Cornelius Short must die the week beginning Jan. 12. The five will go to the chair Thursday, Jan. 15, it was announced tonight.

Edward Smith was convicted in Erie County, Harry Malcolm in Buffalo, Florenz Lerma in Buffalo, Onifry Biginoff in Monroe County and Cornelius Short in Sullivan County.

The four due to die in December are John Rys of Suffolk County, Ambrose Geary of Erie, John Leonard of the Bronx and Nicholas Ferrenti of Broome County.

DIES FROM STAB WOUND.

Victim Told Surgeons He Did Not Know His Assailant.

A man who said he was John Bullatti, 38 years old, a carpenter, of 663 East 188th Street, the Bronx, died soon after he was admitted to the Fordham Hospital yesterday from a stab wound in the chest. He told surgeons that he had been stabbed by a man he did not know during an altercation at 188th and Hoffman Streets on Nov. 16 at 10 P. M.

Detective Nylan of the Bronx Park Station has been assigned to investigate the case. He said it had been learned that the wounded man had refused to permit his family to call a doctor, and when his condition became worse yesterday they decided to notify the police.

War Department Reports That Property Costing $3,166,373,933 Was Sold Up to June 30.

AVERAGE IS 36 PER CENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—In its disposition of surplus property since the close of the World War the War Department has received and turned into the Treasury about 36 per cent. of the cost value of the stocks old. In his annual report, released tonight, Dwight F. Davis, the Assistant Secretary of War, revealed that the total amount received from surplus property sales to June 30 last was $1,095,661,186. The original cost value of this property was $3,166,373,933.

The original cost value of property disposed of during the fiscal year 1924 was $187,733,437, and for this the Government was able to receive only $27,836,625. The cost value of the surplus property disposed of was given by Mr. Davis as follows:

Transferred to other Gov't departments.	27,501,528.81	363,229,186.56

Mr. Davis said that as considerably more than half of the surplus disposed of during the year consisted of used materials and broken up ammunition, the percentage of recovery was somewhat reduced during the year, despite the fact that the average recovery on all sales to June 30 last was 36 per cent. of the original cost of the property sold. The average percentage of recovery on sales plus transfers, the value of the transfers being estimated on the basis of replacement at 75 per cent. of their original cost, is given by Mr. Davis as approximately 41 per cent.

Mr. Davis asserted that seventy-one important sales were arranged for and advertised during the year, and that advertising to the amount of $175,021 was placed in newspapers and business papers during the year.

Discussing plans for next year, Mr. Davis stated that the cost value of surplus property on hand for disposition at the beginning of the current fiscal year was $68,127,086, for which $27,304,439 represented the cost value of land and buildings and $40,822,647 the cost value of other surplus to be liquidated.

"In view of this reduced amount," said Mr. Davis, "it is hoped that in another six months I will be able to recommend that the remainder be sold by the supply branches in a manner similar to that now employed for the sale of salvage property, thus making it possible again to reduce the personnel and activities of the disposal branch."

Mr. Davis explained that the disposal of surplus War Department real estate by sale and salvage during the fiscal year 1924 involved a very great amount of operative and administrative labor, during which 120 separate projects were disposed of at 77 different stations. The number disposed of in the New York, or Second Corps area, was 21 projects. The proceeds of sales of real estate by public auction, sealed proposals, negotiation, transfer or exchange was $2,139,635.

The Income from Leases.

Properties whose usefulness is in abeyance during times of peace, but whose military value for future use is considered undoubted, have been leased to municipalities or private individuals at the current market rate, Mr. Davis said, or, in certain cases, turned over to other departments of the Government by permit revocable at the will of the Secretary of War. The income from leases for the past two years is shown below:

	Number.	Amount.
Increase	157	10,954.72

The total annual rental rates covered into the Treasury by the War Department was decreased by approximately $49,000 by the transfer of the army supply base at Charleston to the Shipping Board.

WHEELER FEARS DRY SHIFT.

Predicts Bootleg Flood if Justice Department Takes Control.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The proposal of the recent Judicial Conference of Circuit Court Judges that prohibition enforcement be concentrated under the Department of Justice would result, in the opinion of Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, in making the present situation "worse, not better."

Saying the proposal had been rejected many times "as unwise," Mr. Wheeler, in a statement made public tonight, declared control of industral and non-beverage liquor "cannot be appropriately transferred to the Justice Department" and "we would be swamped in bootleg liquor."

"To put the responssibility for all of this work in the hands of District Attorneys," he added, "would jeopardize enforcement in many sections where these officers are now failing. They could cover their failure completely under the proposed plan."

WOMAN KILLED BY GAS.

Found Dead on a Couch With a Book in Her Hand.

Tracing the odor of gas from the hall to the two-room apartment of Albert Paterson and his wife, Catherine, 52 years old, at 335 West Seventeenth Street, last night, Mrs. Edith Hanson, janitress, discovered the lifeless body of Mrs. Paterson on a couch. Patrolman Harry Revell of the West Thirtieth Street Station called an ambulance from New York Hospital, and Dr. Holt said the woman had been dead several hours.

As the body was lying on the couch with a book in one hand and gas escaping from a light jet, police believed that she was reading when the gas light was accidentally extinguished. Her husband was said to be visiting his brother in Springfield, Mass.

SPANISH SINGER WINS IN OPERA 'COMEBACK'

Elvira de Hidalgo Applauded on Return to Metropolitan After Many Years.

Elvira de Hidalgo came back to the Metropolitan fold last night, and it was a "comeback" to be envied by many less fortunate, who shall be nameless, in the local opera temple's forty seasons. On the stage where Hidalgo had so shrilly piped as a 17-year-old girl in her former début, March 7, 1910, there reappeared after many years a woman ripened and matured in voice, physique, personality and art. Spanish from toes to eyebrows, with an assurance won on the wide world's stage, she was on terms with the holiday night house before a note was sung. And it was the same old opera, Rossini's "Barber of Seville," which she had vainly essayed before, and which itself is soon to celebrate a century in Old New York.

Mme. de Hidalgo's Rosina had the flavor of Spanish saffron, a warmth of sun and sand, a colloquial richness from the very soil. Her parlando passages, flirtatious and smiling, made the talky recitatives go like the snap of the whip to a thoroughbred. She may nervously have gone wide of the mark in a few topnotes of "Una Voce Poco Fa" in the balcony scene, but "a voice" certainly it was, and the audience applauded its full-bodied middle range, such a voice of the people as you'd hear in Seville. In the "lesson scene" she interpolated Meyerbeer's Shadow Song from "Dinorah," sharply daring comparisons, and Chapi's "Las Hijas del Zebedeo," of her own Spain.

Mr. Chaliapin, indisposed, was out of the promised cast, Mr. Didur resuming deftly, as usual, his rôle of the rude village song teacher. Chamlee was the amorous Count, Malatesta the old man, De Luca the barber. Mattfeld, Reschiglian and Paltrinieri filled out the ensemble and Papi conducted to a crowded theatre.

CHRISTMAS READING.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

The Boston Symphony.

Serge Koussevitsky made his first appearance in New York as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra last night in Carnegie Hall. The reputation of the musician had preceded him. The hall was filled to capacity with an expectant audience. The orchestra, according to the new rule established by this conductor, tuned off-stage and filed in a few minutes before him. When he appeared Mr. Koussevitsky, who carries himself with uncommon dignity, took a thorough survey of the house before he turned about to begin the concert.

His command of the orchestra, though evidently modified last night by nervousness, has advanced since the writer heard his first concert of the season in Boston. The orchestra, then a splendidly developed organization, has gained materially in sensitiveness and elasticity, in edge and snap, in the capacity to respond instantaneously to the wishes of the leader. The leader himself is a commanding figure, immediately felt on the stage. Perhaps his methods surprised some who had leaped to the conclusion that as a virtuoso conductor Mr. Koussevitsky would rant and rave and gesticulate wildly. On the contrary he was poise and self-restraint personified. He made few, but expressive, at times dramatic gestures. He secured effects which had a fineness of quality that few orchestras under any leader achieve today—and this with a minimum of visible effort. He carries himself effectively. He has a good back. That is important for a successful conductor—a good back.

The program consisted of the Vivaldi concerto in D minor for orchestra and organ, as edited by Alexander Siloti; Weber's overture to "Oberon"; two of the Debussy nocturnes, "Nuages" and "Fetes"; Honegger's orchestral movement, "Pacific 231," and Scriabine's "Poeme de l'Extase." The music permitted of a very wide range of expression and style. Mr. Koussevitsky utilized to the full his opportunities. Reading of the Vivaldi concerto was classicism itself. It was clear, unforced, unexaggerated. The strings in the slow movement played "piano" and "pianissimo," not with a tone suggestive of blotting paper, but with vibrancy and sing—with true quality. There was always the sense of proportion and reserve power, which proved one of the outstanding qualities of a concert with a conductor who—rather strangely, as the event proved—had for years been reported as one fond, even at heavy cost, of climaxes. The Vivaldi concerto, as an opening number, is a test for any orchestra, for any conductor. It was passed triumphantly.

A first concert is never one which gives a final estimate of a conductor's powers. He naturally chooses compositions for which he believes he has a particular flare, and which are likely to impress an audience. He is particularly on his metal, and the tension of the occasion, if it is not to his marked disadvantage, is likely to help him with his men and his public. Therefore, conclusive estimates of Mr. Koussevitsky are to be avoided. At the same time the evidence of his first concert in this city is extremely promising. He turned from the classicism of Vivaldi to give a very individual and romantic reading of the Weber overture, one which in its poetry and romanticism would, we believe, have delighted the composer. Not only the strings, but the horn of the opening, sounded magic from far away. There was unprecedented delicacy and diaphonous tone quality. The circus character that most conductors give to the fast movement was avoided, so that even the more theatrical measures of Weber had a beauty that was not of the world and the garish day. And how refreshing it was that this movement did not rush helter-skelter to its conclusion, that the lyrical theme was sung by the strings, and not turned off hand-organ fashion.

The concert was really in two halves not precisely indicated by the intermission. The climaxes of speed and sonority came with the music of Honegger and Scriabin, but before he reached Honegger Mr. Koussevitsky was to demonstrate a finer scale of values, a more subtle and elusive beauty than he had yet attempted, in the Debussy Nocturnes. To play Debussy's orchestral music is not only to be a skilled, but a highly intuitive musician. There are certain colors, certain balances, that cannot be precisely indicated, even by the most careful indications in the score. A hundred times we have heard those extraordinary opening progressions of the wind instruments in the "Nuages" —certainly a very quintessence of the rare and incomparable genius of Debussy. Never before had they the precise surface, the clearness, but softness of timber that Mr. Koussevitsky, with the masterly aid of the wind players of the orchestra attained. There was similar fineness of feeling in the English horn solo: it usually stands out, like a black charcoal stroke against a delicately shaded background. Last night this exquisite timber was sketched against the gray of the other instruments as only a deeper intensity that sometimes emerged from and sometimes mingled with them. And this, too, was fortunate: the movement was not dragged, and it was never heavy. This piece, "Clouds," has no weight, no substance at all, and yet there is inherent in the score the miraculous precision of the greatest musical genius that modern France has produced. The whole orchestral color and sonority in these Debussy pieces, a beauty that makes the throat tighten with its poignancy and wonder, was entirely different than in any other performance of the evening. It had almost a volatile essence; if it had been one shade less substantial it would have vanished from hearing. Perhaps this, almost too subtle an achievement for the spaces of Carnegie Hall, was the true artistic climax of the evening.

Honegger's piece is now well known in New York, but it has not been so well interpreted. It had much more musical quality and cumulative development than at previous hearings, and all the notes were played. The beginning was much quieter—a mere whiff of breath from the monster locomotive in repose; it was also more gradual; the climax was reserved until the proper movement, and the broad, massive conclusion gave greatly added dignity and significance to the composition. Scriabine's tone poem, on similar principles, was given a nobler line, and a wider arch than is ordinarily its wont, and the music, with Mr. Krasser, became a veritable rhapsody. It is gorgeous, sensual, and sensational too, in its nature; it is nevertheless an emotional expression — with the trumpet theme that mounts intrepidly on wave after wave of orchestral tone—and a perfectly magnificent splotch of color. Mr. Koussevitsky took his tempi more slowly than most and built his climax more carefully. Perhaps his tempi were here a little slow for the somewhat dull acoustics of Carnegie Hall, but they gave the music unusual solidity, and made the final moments the more impressive.

Further concerts will show in more detail the musical individuality of this gifted leader. They may materially modify early impressions of his musicianship. But certainly the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in its technical quality and its expressional capacities, has reached a height it had not held for years following the outbreak of the war, and certainly it faces an exceptionally interesting season.

Conductor, Artur Bodanzky.

Listening to "Parsifal" one is reminded of the reply Richard Strauss made to certain inquirers who asked if he thought that the question of copyrights of this opera should be decided by a jury. Strauss answered, "Yes: when you find me in all Germany one juror with the brain of a Richard Wagner!"

And so, when it is a question of the value and artistic importance of Wagner's last work it is easy to dissertate upon its inequalities, the mélange of that which is theatrical, sophisticated and genuinely dramatic, the jumble of philosophic and religious ideas which would have driven another composer to madness instead of the composition of a festival play. For all that, the work is by Wagner, and it is Wagner of a special period and phase of development. A complex personality is revealed in variour aspects; some strong, others weak; some true, others, perhaps, false. But as a whole the opera casts its spell, and its greatest pages have beauty, a wisdom and pity not found in other of Wagner's scores.

That it is imperfect need not be considered. There are not many commentators or operagoers, any more than there are jurors, with the brains of a Richard Wagner, and there is enough greatness in the music to more than recompense for shortcomings.

The performance yesterday was of familiar and generally excellent qualities. The stage settings, with one exception, were admirably evocative of the conceptions of the composer. The exception was that of the garden of the flower-maidens, which is old-fashioned and ineffective. But the scene of Klingsor's summoning of Kundry, the temple scene, and the scene in the last act were imaginative works of art.

Mr. Bodanzky accomplished much with the score. The cast was largely that of last season. Mr. Laubenthal's Parsifal is perhaps his best rôle. It is "guileless" in the early scenes without lacking emotion, and the moment of suffering and realization of the kiss and the cry of "Amfortas. Die wunde," was a focal point of the drama. Mr. Whitehill's Amfortas has been often described and given the high praise which is its due. Mme. Matzenauer's Kundry had commendable restraint and dignity in the scene with Parsifal in Klingsor's garden; it even survived the swan-boat effect of her entrance; in places, however, it lacked vocal quality.

Mr. Bender's Gurnemanz is intelligent and well sung, and this may be said, with some reservations on the vocal side, of Mr. Schuetzendorf's Klingsor. The small parts were thoughtfully adjusted, saving the presence of the flower-maidens, who, for some reason, seldom visualize the picture conceived by the composer. The audience derived obvious edification from the performance.

VIENNA THEATRE CLOSES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—The Socialist Democratic luxury tax has resulted in the collapse of another playhouse—the Carl Theatre. This is one of Vienna's oldest theatres, where formerly Raimond Nestroy played and where Duse made her name. The actors and actresses are endeavoring to continue without a director.

Other theatres are expected to collapse in the near future unless the taxation policy is changed.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Music Box Revue" has again been postponed and is now announced to open next Monday.

The play in which Dorothy Dalton is to be seen will be known as "Undertow" instead of "The One Way Street." It will open in Detroit Dec. 29.

There will be a special performance of O'Neill's "S. S. Glencairn" at the Provincetown Playhouse this afternoon in honor of Firmin Gemier. Many well-known players have been invited to attend.

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" will be given by Gemier's Odean company as its farewell offering at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theatre tomorrow night, instead of "The Taming of the Shrew," as previously announced.

An open matinee meeting of the Jewish Theatrical Guild of America will be held at the Bijou Theatre on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

KOPPISCH GETS TOUCHDOWN

Try for Field Goal Fails as Orange Turns Tide of Battle—Simmons and Foley Are Stars.

In a hard-fought and well-played game at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon the Columbia football team closed its season by losing to the powerful Syracuse University eleven by a score of 9 to 6. A crowd of 40,000 persons saw the Blue and White outrush Chick Meehan's players during most of the contest, only to lose by the margin of a single field goal.

Syracuse did all of its scoring by the field goal method, while Columbia was successful in pushing one touchdown across. Three times Jack McBride of the up-State eleven dropped back for goals from placement and three times the ball sailed over the crossbar, but once it was between the uprights by less than its own width.

A wind blowing into the stadium from the southeast caught McBride's second kick and held it on its course long enough to score the 3 points that ultimately meant victory. All three placements were made from about the 30-yard mark, with Simmons holding the ball. One of the goals came in the second period, one in the third and one in the fourth, while Columbia's touchdown and extra point were made in the second.

Koppisch Drops Ball.

Despite Syracuse's three field goals, the Blue and White eleven would have won had not Koppisch dropped a beautiful pass from Pease in the final period, a pass which was the exact duplicate of the one on which he scored his team's touchdown near the end of the first half.

What looked to be the break that was to carry Columbia to victory came on Kirchmeyer's punt to Foley early in the final period. Foley let the ball bob out of his hands, and the ever-alert Wagner was on it like a hawk as the Columbia side of the field went wild.

With only twelve yards to do and four downs to do it in, the chances of the local team seemed bright indeed. Kirchmeyer tried the Orange line, and the effort netted two yards. Then came the play that will remain indelibly stamped on the mind of every Columbia rooter for what it might have meant.

Pease took the ball from centre and feinted as if to skirt an end as Koppisch darted off in the other direction. The play was perfectly masked, and although failure to diagnose it had already enabled their opponents to score a touchdown the Syracuse players were once more fooled. Pease shot the ball squarely into Koppisch's hands with the speed of a bullet. Koppisch was standing on the 10-yard line with the goal line and the promised land before him, and then he dropped the ball. It was Wallie's last chance. The greatest football player and all-around athlete that Columbia has ever boasted missed with that fumble the chance of winding up his football career in a blaze of glory.

Koppisch left Columbia as he found it, beaten, but in a very different sort of defeat. When he came to the Heights the object was to keep the other team's score down. The aim of this year's team has been to run its own score up, and though it failed to take the final hurdle, the record is a good one. It lost to a great team from Syracuse, but that team and 40,000 spectators know that it put up a hard battle.

Krissel's Kick Is Blocked.

With that fumble Koppisch missed his big chance, but there was still hope for his team. The score was tied and three points would have been much better than none. So Coach Withington sent in another Wallie, Wallie Krissel, to try his hand at a drop-kick. Krissel was no McBride and he had no Syracuse line to protect his kick. He took too much time and the Columbia forwards faltered, with the result that the ball scarcely left the ground.

It struck in the midst of a charging horde of Orange jerseys, bounded back past the kicker as he made a futile dive for it and rolled on toward midfield, with no less than five Syracuse players in hot pursuit and no one between them and the Columbia goal. It seemed a sure touchdown, but when Simmons finally scooped up the ball Ray Kirchmeyer sprinted into the play from nowhere and dragged him down from behind.

Temporarily the final tragedy for Columbia was averted, but it was not for long. The Lions' opportunities had come and gone one after the other. It was time for Syracuse to take a hand at the business of offense and it took it.

The Orange backs, led by the redoubtable Simmons, who was a thorn in the side of the Blue and White defense all afternoon, ripped and smashed their way to the 15-yard line before Columbia finally braced and took the ball on downs. Kirchmeyer then kicked out to Clark and the little halfback snatched up the ball and, covered by some beautiful interference, sprinted diagonally across the field for 35 yards before he was finally halted.

Here was the ball in position for another of McBride's kicks, but before Simmons could take advantage of it his team was set back 15 yards for holding.

That might have discouraged some teams, but not Chick Meehan's. Simmons simply handed the ball to Jimmy Foley and that worthy took the 15 yards right back on a sparkling slash straight through the heart of the Blue line.

Syracuse Again Leads.

A line buck failed to gain and it was up to McBride again. He fell back to the 27-yard line, took plenty of time and drove his eleventh field goal of the season squarely between the uprights. There might have been the shadow of a doubt about that one in the second period. There was no doubt about this. It put the Salt City eleven in front for the second time. It was also the right time and the Syracuse side gave the appropriate thanks.

Columbia was beaten, but it was not quite through. There was one more thrill to come. Syracuse kicked off over the goal line and, after an interchange of punts and with less than a minute left to play, Pease uncorked a 20-yard pass squarely into the arms of Chip Healy, a younger brother of Jeff, famous Columbia athlete and war hero who was killed at Château-Thierry. The ball was at mid-field and Columbia was begging for Koppisch to take it.

"It's his last chance, let Wallie run with it once more," was the burden of the plea that swept through the Blue and White cheering section. Everybody, including the Syracuse team, thought that was what was going to happen, but Pease fooled them. He took the ball himself and, skirting an end, went flying down the side line. For one breathless moment it seemed that he might get clear. Then two Orange jerseys bore him from the side, 20 yards from where he began his journey, but still 30 from his goal. That was about all. On the next play Syracuse intercepted a long pass and the game was over.

Koppisch Near Exhaustion.

It was probably just as well that Pease did not try Koppisch again. The Buffalo boy was very tired in the closing periods. Fierce tackling and close watching had taken their toll and he was not the same Koppisch that kept the Syracuse secondary defense dizzy all through the first period. Three times in that first quarter he was the heart and soul of marches that carried his team to within striking distance and three times he and his mates lacked the final punch to jam it over the line.

The first two times, once inside the 15-yard mark and once inside the 10, Columbia refused to take anything short of a touchdown. The last time Pease tried a drop kick, but it didn't even come close. This period was all Columbia, with the Lions making five first downs to the invaders' two, but Syracuse got under way early in the second and soon had three points on McBride's first field goal.

The Orange was threatening to do even more when Pease intercepted a long pass and checked a march that had begun on the Orange's own 4-yard mark and continued to mid-field with the busy Foley carrying the brunt of the attack. After that neither team could gain, but on an interchange of punts Pease got the ball and returned it fifteen yards, after which a penalty took it to the 30-yard line.

There it was that Columbia made its lone scoring play. Pease passed the ball to Koppisch far out on the end. It was almost a lateral pass, but it left the Columbia captain with practically a clear field before him. Two men stood in his way, but Wagner took out one of them and Koppisch side-stepped the other and then raced on across the goal line unmolested. There was a sort of half-hearted pursuit, but the Orange players knew as well as every one else present that it was fruitless. Koppisch being taken from behind is one of the things that simply doesn't happen.

It might have been a pretty race if Chet Bowman had been in the game, but, unfortunately, he wasn't. The Olympic sprinter got in for one play at the beginning of the second half, but was hurt and retired immediately.

The statistics of the game, as well as the score, show how evenly the teams were matched. Each earned seven first downs, although Columbia got several others by virtue of penalties. Four times Syracuse lost 15 yards in that way, and at least twice these penalties occurred when a touchdown seemed imminent. The Orange also was set back 5 yards on four occasions for offside play. Columbia, on the other hand, did not suffer a penalty in the entire contest.

All in all, it was a good game, hard-played throughout and, with its shifting fortunes, interesting to watch. After it was over Syracuse started for the Coast with the knowledge of a great victory well won, and Columbia was left behind with the comforting thought of having given one of the strongest teams in the East an extremely close call.

DETROIT IS VICTOR IN HYBRID CONTEST

Beats Toronto, 30-18, in Game Played Under Canadian and American Rules.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—The University of Toronto was beaten, 30 to 18, by the University of Detroit in a hybrid exhibition here today, played partly under American and partly under Canadian rules.

The first half, under Canadian rules, introduced Detroit to the lateral pass, frequent punts and open field running without interferences—all features of the Canadian game. The half ended 18 to 3

In the final periods, however, Detroit, playing the game it understood, overcame the Toronto lead, scoring four touchdowns on forward passes and line plunges that bewildered the Canadians.

Warren Snyder, captain and middle half of Toronto, brought the crowd to its feet in the first minute of play when, on the first line-up of scrimmage, he circled the left end and sprinted 75-yards for a touchdown. Following this Detroit scored its only point of the half when Philliport, Detroit fullback, kicked a goal from the 15-yard line.

A Detroit fumble resulted in a Toronto touchdown when Campbell, outside wing, recovered it and sprinted for the score. He kicked the goal. Pequegnat, Toronto left half, scored the last Canadian touchdown, going over the line after recovering a blocked Detroit punt.

Snyder opened the second half with a 35-yard run-back after the kick-off, but Toronto was helpless on attempts to smash the Detroit line and Detroit got the ball near midfield.

A long pass, Philliport to Desroches, put the ball deep into Toronto's territory and Schlickmeyer, in two smashes, carried it over. Brennan plowed through for the second touchdown a few minutes later, while the third one came on a 25-yard pass, Philliport to Desroches.

The last touchdown came after a 30-yard run by Philliport and a 12-yard gain through the line by Brennan. Philliport carried it over for a touchdown but failed to kick the goal. Two previous attempts at place kicking for the added point proved successful and the other point was added on a pass to Desroches.

35,000 WATCH THE BATTLE

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 27.—The University of Pittsburgh Panthers, after playing indifferently throughout the season, rose to their greatest heights and sprang one of the big upsets of the season by defeating Penn State on Forbes Field this afternoon by a score of 24-3 before 35,000 fans.

The Nittany Lions were the favorites to win, but the game developed into a debacle for them. The Pitt team used a diversified attack, alternating smashing-line plays with the overhead game. The Centre County eleven became demoralized in the last half. Its much-vaunted line crumbled under the incessant pounding directed against it, and proved no match for the fast-charging Pitt forwards.

The Blue and Gold team played as if inspired. While the first touchdown came after a fumble, nevertheless the three in the second half resulted from drives down the field which could not be halted. The Lions' only score was a field goal by Prevost from the 36-yard line in the first period. Brown, Gustafson, Harding and McCutcheon, the latter being a substitute player, were the outstanding luminaries in the baffling attack used by the Panthers.

Penn State First to Score.

The Lions were the first to score in the first period. A bad pass went over Brown's head and rolled over the Pitt goal line. Brown, however, picked up the ball and was down on the one-foot line. On the first play he punted to Lafferty on the 30-yard line. The Panthers braced, and the Blue and White was unable to advance. Prevost dropped back and kicked a beautiful placement goal from the 36-yard line. It was not until the second period that the Panthers were able to score. Twice Gwosden made attempts to deadlock the game with placement kicks, but he was unsuccessful.

A bad fumble paved the way for the Panthers' touchdown. Early in the second quarter, Pitt being unable to advance, Brown punted from midfield to Lafferty on the State 12-yard line. Lafferty fumbled and McCutcheon recovered for Pitt. Being unable to advance, Gwosden tried his third placement kick, but Michalske broke through and blocked the kick, Gwosden recovered the ball for the Panthers on his own 20-yard line. Harding skirted right end for 3 yards. Brown broke away, and filtering through the first line of defense, carried the ball to the State 2-yard line. Gustafson, on two tries, carried the ball over for a touchdown. Gwosden missed his placement goal trying for the extra point.

Panthers Stage Drive.

The Panthers scored early in the third period. A drive which started in midfield took the ball to the State 19-yard line. Gustafson crashed through centre for 4 yards and on the next play Harding broke away at right end and took the ball for a first down on the Lion's 9-yard mark. Gustafson hit centre for 4 more yards. Brown then carried the ball over for a touchdown, finding a gap at right tackle. Gwosden scored again near the close of the period, receiving a forward pass after a run of 15 yards.

Harding scored the last touchdown in the final period. With the ball on the 8-yard line, a forward being faked, the State forwards being drawn in, and then McCutcheon crossed them by crashing over the final touchdown. Gwosden miss all four attempts at placement kicks. It was Pitt's farewell appearance at Forbes Field and they will play in their new stadium next year. The Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame boys, who play on Saturday, were spectators at the game.

ALABAMA DEFEATS GEORGIA FOR TITLE

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 27.—Alabama won the Southern Conference championship here today by defeating Georgia, 33 to 0, before a crowd of 18,000 persons. The Bulldogs went into the game favored to win but were forced to fight with their backs to the wall throughout the game.

The Crimson eleven has a record of five Conference games won without a loss although defeated last week by Centre, a non-Conference team. Compton's toe gave the Alabamians two field goals in the first quarter. A touchdown was added in the second quarter. The Bulldogs tightened until the fourth quarter when the rout began.

Plunges by Hubert, end runs by Brown and forward passes snagged by Caldwell were largely responsible for 20 points rolled up in this quarter.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 27.—Missouri University today defeated Kansas, 14 to 0, here today, thereby winning the Missouri Valley Conference title. Two touchdowns in the third quarter and two tries for point, which were successful, won for the Missourians. Kansas threatened in the closing minutes of the game, but Missouri checked the advance in the shadow of its goal. The crowd was estimated at 20,000.

Whiteman, the plunging left halfback, was the first to cross the line for the victors. He hit the line at centre and went twenty yards, falling across the goal when tackled. A little later Jackson, quarterback, ran sixty yards through a broken field, but he was stopped before reaching the line. Three plays later he took the ball and went over. Whiteman kicked both points after touchdowns. The game was a thrilling one and the playing of Jackson, Whiteman and Bond came in for much applause.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 27.—Before a crowd of 20,000, the largest football gathering that ever witnessed a game in this State, the West Virginia University eleven this afternoon defeated the Washington and Jefferson by a score of 40 to 7, thus avenging the defeat meted out by W. and J. last year.

The battle was witnessed by Governor Ephraim Morgan and Governor-Elect Howard M. Gore, both graduates of West Virginia.

In winning today the Mountaineers rose to their greatest heights of the year, and the victory over Washington and Jefferson was doubly sweet, as it also avenged in a manner the defeat handed West Virginia earlier in the season by Pittsburgh, for Pitt had fallen before W. and J. before the Presidents measured gridiron strength with the Mountaineers today.

The spectacular offensive displayed by West Virginia today caught the Presidents by surprise and they were swept along before the smashing attacks that pierced the W. and J. line or drove over it with finely executed forward passes. W. and J., fighting desperately, threatened time after time and got within the scoring zone, only to falter, save in one instance. When pressed hardest the West Virginia defense held the stanchest, and the W. and J. attack could not make gains against this stonewall defense at critical times.

In the opening period West Virginia launched an attack that netted a touchdown and in the second period two were scored. A single touchdown came in the third quarter, but in the final period, taineers again attacked with fury and gained two more touchdowns. It was the first time in any of the annual clashes with W. and J. that West Virginia, in defeat or victory, scored more than two touchdowns. The victory, with its score of 40 points, closed the season for the Mountaineers and put them at the top as high scorers of the Eastern elevens with a total of 282 points.

Farley, Nardacci and Ekberg carried the brunt of the attack in the first half, while Ekberg's powerful line smashes sandwiched in with forward passing was the undoing of the Presidents in the closing periods. Davis played a wonderful game at tackle, as did Graham and Oliker at ends.

Hadden and Niehaus punched the Mountaineer line with terrific force at times, and Harmony, Kopf, Reese and Wild engineered forward passes for long gains. W. and J.'s heavy line proved no match for the lighter West Virginians, who charged them off their feet throughout the game.

MARQUETTE TRIUMPHS OVER VERMONT, 61-7

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 27.—Marquette University closed its football season this afternoon by running rough shod over the University of Vermont eleven in an intersectional game. The final score was 61 to 7. Vermont scored its only touchdown in the first quarter when Winchenbach, right tackle, recovered a blocked punt and ran 20 yards to Marquette's goal line. Tarpey passed to Yarnall for the extra point.

Thereafter, Vermont never threatened. Its only first downs were made on penalties. Marquette, on the other hand, marched up and down the field before the 15,000 persons who turned out to see the battle despite cold weather.

Marquette's first touchdown was scored in the first two minutes of play when Leichtfuss took Curtin's forward pass and ran 30 yards to the goal line. Captain Dilweg scored the second on a pass and the third on a triple pass. The fourth was scored by Jimmy King, who broke through tackle for 15 yards to put the ball across and the fifth by O'Neill, who got the ball on a quadruple pass and ran 40 yards.

Dilweg intercepted a pass and sprinted 50 yards for the sixth touchdown aand Shotola ran 60 yards around end for the seventh. Curtin plunged over the centre of the line for the eighth and Leichtfuss broke through tackle to score the tenth and last touchdown. Goal after touchdown was missed twice. Captain Dilweg was the Marquette star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will attend the Army-Navy football game to be played in Baltimore Saturday afternoon. They will travel to Baltimore by automobile and will have luncheon as guests of the city before proceeding to the football field. Conforming to tradition, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and their guests will occupy seats on the Navy side of the field during the first half, changing between halves to the Army side. The party will return to Washington immediately after the game.

38 ARMY PLAYERS REACH BALTIMORE

But Midshipmen Return to Annapolis in Evening—Will Leave Tomorrow Morning for Game.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 27.—The cadets and midshipmen who will battle in the annual Army-Navy football tilt in the stadium here Saturday met there today, but in a different spirit from that which will prevail two days hence.

The West Pointers, thirty-eight strong, arrived here today, and, almost immediately after detraining, were whisked to the stadium to see the game between Johns Hopkins and the University of Maryland.

The Navy players, too, had unexpectedly turned up on the scene to witness the contest and inspect the playing field. Between halves the two service squads got together for an exchange of greetings.

The cadets will make their headquarters at Johns Hopkins with a practice session scheduled on the John Hopkins field tomorrow morning and a workout in the stadium in prospect for the afternoon.

The Navy squad returned to Annapolis tonight, and with the make-up of the eleven which will take the field Saturday practically decided a short signal and formation drill, similar to one held today before the departure for Baltimore, is on the program at the Naval Academy for tomorrow.

The Navy team will not come to Baltimore until Saturday morning, when the squad will make the short trip by automobile. The regiment of students, numbering nearly 2,000, will follow shortly afterward in three special trains. Likewise, the cadets will not depart from West Point until the day of the game.

Navy Has Light Drill.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—A morning practice session of moderate length was given the Navy football squad by Coach Folwell and his assistants today. Preparations for the game against the Army in Baltimore Saturday will end with another brief period tomorrow.

This afternoon the football squad and coaches embarked in autos and went to Baltimore to see the University of Maryland and Johns Hopkins playing there in the Stadium. It was considered a good opportunity for the players to size up the field and get the feel of it. Members of the Navy and Army squads fraternized during the intermission with the utmost friendliness, in spite of the strong rivalry which will show itself in Saturday's game.

It is very likely that Chillingworth will start at right guard Saturday instead of Eddy, and that Wellings will be chosen for right halfback over Hirst and Albertson. No doubt exists as to any other player in the line or back field.

The selections made the Navy strong in most of the department of kicking. Chillingworth can boot the ball further by ten or fifteen yards than any other member of the squad, though Hamilton has shown improvement in this line. Eddy is the best of the place kickers, though Flippin and Shapley perform fairly well and Wellins is by far the best drop kicker of the squad.

Naval people frankly concede that the Army is better individually this year, particularly as to the back field, but many feel that the difference is not so great but that the midshipmen may fight to a triumph. The Navy is, in fact, not expecting any of its backers to break loose with brilliant dashes, but it lays reliance upon the speed and coordination of its line plays.

Cadets Feel Confident.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The Army football squad having finished its training period yesterday departed for Baltimore early this morning. Thirty-eight players, coaches and handlers were in the party. There was no announcement of the Army line-up for the game, but it is now thought that Davidson will be at left end in place of Baxter, Saunders at right tackle and Yeomans at quarterback, although the coaches stuck to their statement of yesterday that the line-up would not be decided until the arrival of the team at Baltimore.

In the party today were Line Coaches Jones and Parker, End Coaches Neyland, Sasse and Meyers andBackfield Coach Vidal. Head Coach John McEwan had preceded the party and was to join them at Baltimore.

The spirit of enthusiasm runs high in the Army camp, the cadet body holding a big rally last night. Another big demonstration is planned for tomorrow evening. The coaches, however, always pessimistic, do not share the same confident view as expressed by the cadet corps. Before departing, Jones, line coach, said:

"Army expects its hardest fight of the season Saturday. It is not underestimating Navy's strength. It believes the midshipmen to be a resourceful, aggressive eleven which will battle to the last ditch."

Shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday morning the cadets will be on their way to Baltimore. The command will be in charge of Colonel Merch B. Stewart, commandant of cadets. Two special trains will carry the West Pointers. Immediately following the game, assembly will be sounded and the cadet body will be marched to the waiting trains for the return trip.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27.—Old Andrews Field, scene of Brown University athletic struggles for a quarter of a century, today passed gloriously into the realm of discarded gridirons as the 1924 Brown football team wound up its season with a 20 to 6 victory over Colgate. It was most fitting that an old battle-ground, which will be replaced next year by a modern stadium, should feel the pounding of victorious Brunonian feet on its turf in a football classic in which the vanquished as well as the victor carries off a share of the laurels. The game was played this morning before 7,000 persons.

It was not an easily earned victory that the Bear won today, for a worthy opponent with only a few days' respite after a grueling contest with Syracuse, was fighting and fighting with all its might from the opening to the closing play. It was this never-say-die spirit of a maroon-clad team that kept the Brown score to 20 points and gave to itself a hard-earned touchdown.

The crowd was thrilled many a time by the daring and spectacular play of members of both teams. To the game's spectacular aspect Keefer, Klump, Mishel and Pohlman of Brown and Tryon, Mehler and Stratton of Colgate were the chief contributors. Klump was the first to bring the spectators to their feet when in the first period, after a touchdown by Pohlman, he tore his way through a broken field for fifty-one yards after he received the Colgate kick-off on his own 5-yard line. Keefer, replacing Klump at left half in the second period, even outdid his predecessor by breaking through the Colgate line and carrying the ball fifty-eight yards for the third touchdown. The second tally had been made earlier in the same period on a forward pass received by Stifler.

Colgate's best playing was done in the third and fourth periods, when the team employed both straight football and forward pass to Stratton, a substitute end, putting across its lone touchdown, which came toward the end of the game. Tryon, the Maroon's great plunging halfback, who was held in check for most of the game, unloosed a long forward pass to Strattton, a substitute end, with the result that Colgate scored from its own 40-yard line, twenty of the sixty yards to the goal being made on the pass and forty on Stratton's run. On the kick-off by Brown, which followed the touchdown, Tryon demonstrated his great broken field running ability carrying the ball back from his goal line to Brown's 49-yard line.

The forward pass was indeed an important weapon throughout the game, three of the four touchdowns being made as a result of its use. It also accounted for many of the yards Colgate gained, especially in the latter part of the contest, when Brunonians were scampering all over the field trying to solve the puzzling plays.

The forward pass which gave Brown its first touchdown was thrown by Myers to Pohlman while Brown stood on the Colgate 25-yard line. Pohlman easily caught the ball and ran with it 15 yards to the goal. The second touchdown was almost a duplicate of the first. It was made also from the 25-yard line on a forward pass from Myers to Stifler. Each of these two times Brown arrived at its scoring position on an advantage in the exchange of punts and but little line rushing. The team's only long long march, that of 45 yards from midfield to Colgate's 5-yard mark, ended in its being held for downs after some fine runs by Klump and Mishel.

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 27.—The eleven of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the Virginia Military Institute team battled to a scoreless tie at Maher Field here today in their twenty-third annual Thanksgiving Day encounter while a crowd of 20,000 watched the struggle, which, during the greater part of the game, was waged in midfield.

White, the rangy fullback of V. M. I., tried to boot the ball over from placement, but it sailed wide. Rutherford, the kicking ace of V. P. I., tried a drop-kick from the 50-yard line, but his heroic attempt fell short by a matter of a few inches.

In the final period both elevens launched overhead attacks, end runs and line plunges, but so evenly were they matched that these desperate efforts were to no avail.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—For the first time in four years Penn had something to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day, when the Red and Blue team turned on Cornell today and baffled, buffeted and beat the big Red eleven with a brilliant airline attack that was practically perfect. Out of the crisp November sky came Penn passes that paved the way to a 20 to 0 victory over the warriors from Ithaca, and some 56,000 persons saw the complete rout of Gil Dobie's charges.

Penn has scored greater triumphs over its ancient rival that has been coming down from the land that lies far above Cayuga's waters since 1893, but it is doubtful if any victory was ever so sweet as that scored today in the thirty-first meeting of the two teams. Cornell was all that stood between the Red and Blue machine and an undefeated season. Cornell was the foe that had turned back the Pennsylvania team for three successive years. But Cornell couldn't stop the overhead attack that Pennsylvania launched today. The victory gave Penn its first undefeated season in sixteen years.

There was little jubilation among the Penn players after the game, however, for the fact soon spread that Clark Craig lay in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital with concussion of the brain, which came as the result of a beautiful tackle that halted a flying Cornell runner on his way to an open field. The injury to Penn's star end was suffered in the first period after Captain Rae McGraw had punted deep into Cornell territory.

Patterson took the kick on the fly and started full speed for the open spaces that appeared ahead. He shook off one Red and Blue tackler, cut toward the centre of the field and then cut out again to speed down the side lines. But just as he seemed to have shaken himself free Craig came over from the side and hurled himself on the flying Red streak, bringing him to earth with a thud that was heard from one end of the field to the other.

Player Rushed to Hospital.

When one of the players who had hit the cold, hard earth with such force failed to get up again every one thought it was Patterson who had been hurt, but when the mass of players disentangled itself it was seen that the tackler and not the tackled remained on the ground. Craig was carried from the field unconscious and taken immediately to the University Hospital. Tonight his condition was reported as uncertain.

George Thayer, a substitute wingman, was sent in to replace the injured star, and before the afternoon was over he had earned a place among the great Penn ends of the year. It was Thayer who took McGraw's pass and scored the first touchdown for the Red and Blue, and it was Thayer who later recovered a fumble on Cornell's 15-yard line and gave Penn the ball in the enemy territory, the third and last touchdown coming soon afterward.

Thayer had to scramble for the first touchdown, and up to that time Cornell had been the most threatening of the two teams on the field. Twice the Red machine had driven deep into Penn's territory, only to be turned back by costly fumbles. Finally, McGraw got off a long punt that soared high and rolled so far that when it was finally downed by big Ed McGinley, Penn's great tackle, it rested on Cornell's 8-yard line. Plunges at the line failed to net more than 5 yards, however, and Cornell was forced to punt out of danger.

The Aerial Attack Begins.

McGraw took the ball in midfield and zigzagged his way back ten yards to Cornell's 40-yard line. Then Penn produced its passing game. The first toss, McGraw to Laird, carried 16 yards, and the second, McGraw to Thayer, covered the remaining 24 yards that carried the ball across the goal line. The second toss nearly failed twice, before the substitute end finally dragged it down out of the air and placed it safely behind the last white chalkmark.

The Penn captain was chased backward ten yards before he was able to throw the ball, the big Red line coming in on top of him like a tidal wave. Backward he ran, looking for one of his teammates that was free. Finally he stopped, turned and hurled the ball through the air. Molinet, the Cuban back of the Cornell team, leaped up to knock it down, but his fingers barely touched it before it fell to earth. Thayer drew it to him as he fell across the goal line. Kruez quickly added the extra point by a placement kick.

That was only the beginning of Pennsylvania's passing game, however, for a few minutes later the fleet Jesse Douglass reached into the air to grab another of McGraw's tosses and dodged his way to another touchdown. A blocked kick gave Penn the chance, McGinley breaking through the Red line and throwing his big body in front of the ball as it sailed off Whetstone's toe. Coleman recovered it for Penn on Cornell's 42-yard line and then out of the air another pass fell into Red and Blue striped arms.

The pass did not travel through the air more than 5 yards, but once Douglass got his hands on the ball he was off like a deer, speeding along the side line and shaking off or outrunning Cornell tacklers that came in his path. Finally, Molinet was all of the Red horde that was left between him and the goal, and the last menace to his onward march was quickly passed. Douglass simply gave him a foot and took it away again as the Cuban lunged at the leg that wasn't there. Once away Douglass could not be caught and on he sped over 30 yards to the second touchdown.

Douglass Intercepts Pass.

The third score came through the air also, but this time it was a Cornell pass that went wrong, instead of a Pennsylvania pass that went right, which paved the way for six points more. Morris, the Cornell guard, had intercepted a Penn pass at midfield and the Red machine from Ithaca evidently decided to play at Penn's own game. Patterson tore through the Red and Blue line for ten yards, but not satisfied with the success on the ground, Wester decided to attack through the air.

His toss, however, went into the waiting arms of the speedy Douglass and the track star was off again on another long dash. This time he ran 65 yards, shaking off the few Cornell tacklers who got in his way and outracing the rest, who soon realized that pursuit was hopeless.

With twenty points piled up against it in three periods, the Cornell dreams were shattered and never again did the Ithacans threaten. Their chances had come earlier in the game with nothing to overcome in the way of a Pennsylvania lead, but they had failed when on the brink of success.

Before the game was more than five minutes old the Red machine started rolling down the field with a steadiness that promised to sweep the opposition before it, just as it had when such stars as Chuck Barrett, Eddie Kaw and George Pfann had supplied the fuel. But this time there was no great flame to light the way. Instead, there were only immature boys groping their way through the Pennsylvania defense and that defense was impassable when the shadows of the goal posts reached out and touched the ball in Cornell hands.

Starting from their own 11-yard line, the Red warriors plunged and plowed ahead for three successive first downs, but as the ball was carried into Penn's territory, Cornell was met with a stronger defense than it had faced previously and was forced to punt.

Cornell Renews Drive.

Later, after Patterson had pranced back to Penn's 38-yard line before he was halted by Craig's flying tackle, the Cornell machine started rolling again. Molinet plowed forward five yards and then skirted off tackle for a 19-yard gain, putting te ball on Penn's 14-yard line. A Cornell score seemed inevitable, and onward rolled the Red machine.

Molinet tore open the line for two yards and Patterson skirted the end for three more. But on the next play, Whetstone fumbled and the alert McGraw pounced on the ball. Soon after, Al Kruez kicked the ball well out of danger with a 56-yard punt.

Whetstone, however, retruned the punt, as the second quarter started, with a beautiful spiral that soared through the air and rolled 6 yards, and when Kruez again attempted to kick out of danger he failed miserably, the ball going almost straight into the air and falling into Cornell hands on Penn's 20-yard line. Here again was a chance for CoCrnell, and still the game belonged to either team as the Red and Blue's first touchdown was still to be made.

Patterson plunged at the line, but he found ahead him a mass of Red and Blue tacklers who threw him without a gain. A forward pass, Patterson to Whetstone, was completed, but the latter was downed as soon as he touched the ball and the advance was only two yards. Still, Cornell was within striking distance, but another fumble came at this inopportune time and Papworth, a Penn tackle, pounced on it.

McGraw attempted to kick out of danger again, but Captain Henderson of Cornell swept in from his position on the left wing and blocked the punt. The ball rolled loose and Henderson was headed for it with a clear field over the fifteen yards that separated him from the Pennsylvania goal posts. McGraw, however, was just as determined to get to the ball and as he dove to knock Henderson out of the way he reached out one arm and drew the ball to him

The Miracle That Failed to Appear.

Thus were four Cornell chances turned back before the second period was half over. Through those early minutes of the game it seemed as if Gil Dobie had taken the wreck that was made of his great machine which had rolled through three seasons without defeat and built up a new vehicle that was just as powerful. But Dobie had no spare parts that would fit the vacancies left by the loss of George Pfann, Pat Cassidy and Floyd Ramsey, and he could work no miracles, despite the belief in some quarters to the contrary.

The lean and gloomy coach of the Ithacan eleven did manage to assemble a team that outplayed the Pennsylvanias in everything except passing and points. But these passes meant touchdowns and the touchdowns meant points and victory.

Cornell outrushed Pennsylvania by many yards, gaining consistently around the ends and through the lines, but the gains were made in the Red's own territory or in midfield. Cornell made eight first downs to Penn's two, but Penn completed five forward passes out of nine attempts and intercepted one of Cornell's tosses, while the Ithacans were able to complete only three out of nine.

The day was crisp and cold, with a breeze that blew squarely across the field and favored neither team. In the stands were gay colors of the contending warriors, and every available inch was packed with cheering spectators. Some said that it was the largest crowd that ever saw a Penn-Cornell game, but such is the cry that goes up each year when the stands are jammed to capacity. Certainly no greater crowd will see a game at Franklin Field until the seating capacity is increased.

It was the last game of a rather poor season for Cornell—a season in which the Ithacans have fallen before Williams, Rutgers, Dartmouth and Penn. It was not the end for Pennsylvania, however, for the Red and Blue must make a long trip to the Coast to play California in a post-season game on New Year's Day before it will be able to cast off the moleskins.

FORMER STARS SEE GAME.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—Football heroes of bygone days and many outstanding figures in the modern game were prominent in the gathering that witnessed the Cornell-Pennsylvania battle this afternoon. Close to thirty "old timers," men who gained gridiron fame while wearing the Red and Blue, received a rousing reception as they paraded on the field behind the varsity band prior to the game. Their ranks included sixteen of the nineteen members of the famous undefeated team of 1904, among them such stars as Bill Hollenbach, Vincent Stevenson and Bob Folwell, now coach at the Naval Academy.

Others in the line were J. Truxton Hare, all-American guard when mass play was the vogue; Buck Wharton, another all-American guard; Jack Minds, former captain, and Andy Smith, coach of the California University eleven which Pennsylvania will play at Berkeley, Cal., New Year's Day. Smith, who also was a star of the 1904 team here, was cheered as the student band played "California, Here I Come," for his benefit.

A. A. Stagg and Bob Zuppke, coaches of the Chicago and Illinois teams respectively, which play here against Pennsylvania next season, were in the stands, together with such other prominent football tacticians as Bill Roper of Princeton, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Tad Jones of Yale, Captain McEwan of West Point, Clem Thistlewaite of Northwestern and Spaulding of Minnesota.

STUYVESANT BEATS MORRIS FOR TITLE

Excelling and outplaying its rivals in every department of the game, the strong Red and Blue football team of Stuyvesant High School yesterday morning defeated the Maroon team of Morris H. S. before 6,000 at Lewisohn Stadium and captured the Manhattan-Bronx scholastic football title for the third successive year. The margin of Stuyvesant's victory was measured by 35 to 0, a score which clearly indicated the superiority of the east side aggregation also.

Led by Captain Bill Sheldrick, Stuyvesant unloosed a varied offensive which had Morris defending its own territory practically throughout the game. A battering line attack, frequent end runs, with not a few spectacular dashes when Morris weakened, and effective use of the forward pass gave Stuyvesant twelve first downs against two for Morris as the Red and Blue advanced on their hollow victory. In the scoring the stars were Myers and McConnell, for each crossed the Morris goal line twice. The individual figure of prominence, however, was Sheldrick, who was a leader in a majority of his team's offensive plays and contributed as many successful placement kicks from the five touchdowns scored by his team-mates.

The cheers which went up from the enthusiastic admirers of the contending teams had hardly died away in the recesses of the concrete Stadium before Stuyvesant launched a spirited offensive which gave the Red and Blue a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. In consistent rushes Stuyvesant advanced steadily until within two yards of a score in the first five minutes, when Massari went over for the first tally.

Myers picked up a fumble within a few strides of the Morris goal line in the second period and scored the second touchdown, coming back soon after and, after recovering a blocked kick, racing forty yards for another touchdown. A twenty-yard run by McConnell gave Stuyvesant another touchdown before the period ended.

In the third period a short forward pass from Sheldrick enabled McConnell to score Stuyvesant's fifth touchdown.

Georgetown Prep Wins.

The alert playing of Dwyer gave the Georgetown University Prep School eleven a victory over Fordham Prep on the Maroon's field yesterday by the score of 13 to 6, in a game which was bitterly fought from start to finish. Dwyer scored the touchdowns which spelled victory for Georgetown, twice crossing the Maroon goal line in the first period. He recovered a Maroon fumble at a time when Fordham was figuratively backed against the wall after the opening kick-off, and went over from the one-yard line for his first score. Soon after Dwyer intercepted a forward pass and made a spectacular zig-zag run of 70 yards for the second touchdown. On the first score Dalley was successful in a placement kick for the extra point.

The Maroon made its touchdown in the second period when Walsh's punt was fumbled on the Georgetown 40-yard line and Fordham recovered the ball. The Maroon started a steady march down the field then and after three successive first downs Golle went over for his team's only score.

Frank Gargan, head coach of the Fordham football team and graduate manager of athletics, was operated on yesterday afternoon for acute appendicitis. Last night his condition was satisfactory and a speedy recovery is predicted by his physicians. Gargan was stricken yesterday morning and although he expressed a desire that the operation be postponed until after the Fordham-Georgetown game at the Polo Grounds tomorrow his request was overruled. He is a graduate of Fordham and has been head coach and manager of athletics for the past two seasons. Before that he was coach of the N. Y. U. team. The Georgetown game will be played tomorrow, Fordham officials said last night, unless there are unexpected developments in Gargan's condition.

DICKINSON BEATS BUCKNELL, 11 TO 7

M. GOODWIN RUNS 60 YARDS

Special to The New York Times.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 27.—Dickinson came from behind in the last period of the Thanksgiving Day game and defeated Bucknell by a score of 11 to 7 before a crowd of 8,000 persons. A pretty 35-yard drop kick from the side of the field by Nye gave Dickinson the lead and a safety after M. Goodwin fumbled a bad pass from centre added to the margin of victory. In the second quarter M. Goodwin skirted Dickinson's left end for a 60-yard gain and touchdown. Trimmer added the point just after the second half commenced.

One sustained line attack by the Rupp brothers advanced the ball the length of the field. A pass, P. Rupp to C. Rupp, ended the advance with Dickinson's first score. Nye failed in his attempted kick. After the first half Dickinson outplayed Moran's team both defensively and offensively.

Dickinson's team rose to new heights in duplicating its last season's feat of upsetting the Bison team. Brooks, who played a stellar game, recently had been operated on for appendicitis while Carpenter, whose entry into the game revived the Carlisle band, played his first game in three weeks.

Only in the second period did Bucknell show its offensive power when twice it advanced the ball the length of the field by stellar runs by M. Goodwin around left end, the first for 50 yards, the second for 60 and Bucknell's lone score. In the second half the Dickinson team broke through the Bison interference and threw Goodwin for losses before he was able to get under way.

Trimmer kicked off behind the Dickinson goal line at the start of the game and the ball was brought out to the 20-yard mark. Dickinson could not gain and punted to Blaisdell. Three end runs failed to gain for Bucknell and Goodwin punted. For the remainder of the period the ball was ineffectually rushed by Dickinson in its own territory, while Goodwin punted on the first down. Koster broke through and blocked C. Rupp's kick, and Dickinson recovered in midfield as the period ended.

After an exchange of punts in the second period Blaisdell picked up 4 yards through tackle. On the next play M. Goodwin skirted left end for 50 yards, being downed on his 20-yard line. Blaisdell crashed right tackle for 11 yards, but lost this when he fumbled on the next play. Two passes were grounded and Dickinson took the ball.

M. Goodwin thrilled the stands on the kick-off by returning the ball to the 50-yard line. This was Bucknell's only threat during the period. On the 15-yard line Paul Rupp passed to Christy, his brother, who fell across the goal line. Nye missed the kick. In the last quarter, however, Nye dropped back and kicked the pigskin at a difficult angle squarely through the bars from the 35-yard mark and the game ended shortly after.

Auto Racing, Turf, Soccer and Other Sports Attracted Great Holiday Throngs.

The appeal of sports to the American on a holiday continues to exert a greater influence year after year. In fifteen important football games, played in the East, the West and in the South yesterday, a total attendance of 321,000 persons was reported. It is safe to say that the other gridiron contests of lesser importance drew crowds which, added to the total above, would swell the grand total to more than half a million. The largest football gathering in the East reported was the crowd of 56,000 in Philadelphia to see the Cornell and Penn elevens engaged in their annual struggle.

Football was not the only sport that attracted its following, for it is estimated that at the three race tracks of Bowie, Tijuana and New Orleans, where those who follow the "sport of kings" gather, more than 50,000 persons were present. On the Pacific Coast an equal number saw the auto races at Los Angeles.

Soccer, a game that has a greater appeal abroad than here, is not a weakling by any means when it comes to counting devoted followers of the game and this sport, with walking, cross-country running and other outdoor activities, attracted great throngs in all parts of the country.

The twelve leading football games, showing the cities in which they were played, with the attendance, follow:

Columbia-Syracuse, Polo Grounds	40,000
Penn State-Pitt, Pittsburgh	35,000
Howard-Lincoln, Washington	25,000
V. P. I.-V. M. I., Roanoke	20,000

BONNIE OMAR SETS BOWIE TRACK MARK

Wins Thanksgiving Handicap at 1 3-16 Miles in 2:02—Old Record 2:02 3-5.

EDINBURGH BEATS TESTER

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 27.—Bonnie Omar, B. Reuge's three-year-old colt, this afternoon raced to a brilliant victory in the Thanksgiving Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward, the holiday feature at Prince George Park. The chestnut son of Omar Khayyam and Bonnie Mary, carrying 105 pounds and well ridden by F. Stevens, raced the mile and three-sixteenths over a fast track to a new course record of 2:02 flat. The former record was 2:02 3-5, set by the three-year-old King Solomon's Seal under 115 pounds on Nov. 29 last year.

Bonnie Omar was one of the outsiders of the eleven that went to the post, paying $47.30 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. The favorite, J. W. Bean's Donaghee, finished in the ruck. The victory was worth $7,310 to the owner of the winner.

In addition to riding the winner of the feature Stevens also piloted Joella J. to victory in a field of thirteen in the opening race and was second with Tester in the third number. Two favorites rewarded their followers among the holiday crowd.

Bonnie Omar gained his victory handily in the Thanksgiving Handicap. The three-year-old, bred at the Belair Stud, found the going to his liking under his light weight. Stevens got him away well from the middle of the lot at the post and he at once moved into the lead, displaying excellent speed. He had a battle with A. C. Bostwick's four-year-old Spot Cash and disposed of the latter after going six furlongs. Spot Cash faltered under his 116 pounds when the test came.

Bonnie Omar opened a big lead in the stretch run and passed the winning post five lengths in front of the Joaquin Stable's Plough Boy. Plough Boy had been rated off the early pace, slipped through on the inside rounding the far turn, and came to the outside through the stretch. He weakened at the end and lasted to gain the place by only a head from H. P. Whitney's Initiate.

Donaghee, Favorite, is Eighth.

Initiate made a slow beginning, saved much ground and took third money by a head from the Lilane Stable's Sunsini, which raced extremely wide all through and was going fastest at the end. J. W. Bean's Donaghee, the favorite, under restraint until entering the stretch, collapsed when called upon and finished eighth. The fractional times were as follows: 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:41 2-5, 2:02.

Edinburgh, G. Rabin's two-year-old chestnut filly by Sir John Johnson—Beatrice K., captured the Sunny South Handicap, a dash for all ages over the course of six and a half furlongs, beating J. F. Richardson's Tester by a head in an exciting blanket finish in which W. Law's Bigheart was a head back. C. A. Stoneham's Dry Moon, the favorite, finished fourth under top weight of 124 pounds.

Scratches cut the field for the Dixie Purse to four for the journey of a mile and seventy yards, restricted to the three-year-olds. It proved an easy victory for H. G. Bedwell's Senator Norris, which took the measure of H. P. Whitney's Miss Whisk by the wide margin of five lengths.

Joella J. Is Winner.

Two dashes for all ages over the course of six and a half furlongs opened the afternoon card. The first was an easy victory for the Victoria Stable's filly Joella J., in a field of thirteen. Thirteen also ran in the second division, the winner being G. W. Foreman's five-year-old gelding Elemental, which ran at the head of the procession all the way. Admirer got into close quarters rounding the turn, but finished with courage to take the place by a length from Despair. The winner, coupled with Despair in the betting, was the favorite, paying $7.70.

French National Tennis Play Will Be Open to All Comers

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The French tennis championships of 1925 will be open to all tennis players in the world, like the American and English championships, the French Tennis Federation has just decided. Heretofore only players of French nationality could compete. The Federation's committee on ranking is having great difficulty to reach an agreement concerning the respective positions to be allotted Borotra, Cochet and Lacoste for the 1924 season. The committee has practically decided to rank them as last year, or all even, "No. 1 players of France." It is pointed out that Lacoste in spite of victories over Patterson and O'Hara Wood in the Davis Cup matches, cannot be ranked higher than Borotra, who, besides winning at Wimbledon, defeated Lacoste twice. And then Cochet, who defeated both Lacoste and Borotra during 1924, cannot rank lower than either of them, especially as he was a finalist in the Olympic tennis.

SUNNYLAND CAPTURES TIJUANA INAUGURAL

Special to The New York Times.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Nov. 27.—A. B. nine-year-old gelding Sunnyland, by froth Handicap last Spring and the odds-on favorite, was badly beaten this afternoon in the race for the Inaugural Handicap, the feature of the opening day of the Winter season of the Tijuana Jockey Club. Runstar, after getting away well and running forwardly, began dropping back and pulled up lame.

The winner was the Bronx Stable's nine year old gelding Sunnyland, by Sunflower II.—Fair Anna, an 8 to 1 shot, which showed great speed from the barrier. He went to the front on rounding into the backstretch to open up a good lead. At the end he had enough in reserve to stand off the challenge of the International Stable's Postillion and win by half a length.

The winner carried 116 pounds and ran the mile and seventy yards in 1:42 4-5, only four-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance. Tangerine was four lengths back to take the short end by a neck from Poltova. Sunnyland, on which Griffin had the mount, paid $18.20 for a $2 ticket.

NASSAU IS WINNER AT NEW ORLEANS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—S. N. Holman's four-year-old colt Nassau this afternoon won the second running of the Thanksgiving Handicap, the featured number of the opening day's card of the Winter meeting at Jefferson Park, which will continue through the rest of the year. The mile gallop for all ages brought a field of eleven to the post, of which Nassau was the 9-to-10 favorite, backed from an opening of 6 to 5.

Nassau, with Mergler in the saddle, shouldered top weight of 116 pounds and ran the distance in the fine time of 1:40 over a fast track. The imported son of Nassovian and Phillistia, which has not started since the Churchill Downs meeting, where he won his last race, earned $2,050 for his owner by his victory.

The field was sent away to only a fair start. J. A. Coburn's four-year-old gelding Banter broke into the lead from his post position on the rail. He showed good speed under his light impost of 109 pounds and led the way to the stretch, where he began tiring.

Nassau, while breaking somewhat slowly, was well handled and Mergler soon had him in close pursuit of Banter for three-quarters of a mile. Nassau came to the fore in the stretch drive, but had to be hard urged to gain the decision by a length and a half from Banter. The Greentree Stable's Rinkey was four lengths back to take third money by a head from Nassau's stable companion, Bradley's Toney. The fractional times were as follows: 0:24 1-5, 0.48 1-5, 1:14, 1:40.

The Jefferson Park Inaugural Purse, a five-furlong dash for all ages, was a victory for the Greentree Stable's three-year-old gelding The Vintner, his first of the year. The son of Omar Khayyam and Mary Maud broke slowly and raced wide for most of the distance, coming with a rush just before reaching the stretch. In the drive he held on gamely to beat his stable companion, Wild Aster, by a neck.

Wild Aster was probably the best of the half dozen which were sent away to a bad start. The Ultimus gelding broke poorly and raced wide for the entire trip. He took the place by two lengths from T. H. Bernhart's Centimeter, which tired after making the early pace. The Greentree entry was made the strong favorite, backed down to 11 to 10 at post time.

50,000 SEE LOCKHART WIN $52,000 ASCOT

BAKER 2D ON FLAT TIRE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—A youngster of the dirt track speedways, Frank Lockhart, today drove his car to victory against a field of forty-three starters in the Ascot Thanksgiving Day road race of approximately 250 miles. His time for the estimated distance was 3 hours 21 minutes 40 seconds. A crowd estimated at 50,000 saw the race.

Lockhart made only one stop and that was within twenty-five miles of the finish post, when he flashed into the pits for a moment to drop his mechanic and thus lighten the load on his car.

E. (Cannonball) Baker, veteran transcontinental driver, who led the field for a great portion of the grind, was forced into the pits at the 150-mile mark with a flat tire, and never again gained the head of the procession. A second flat tire slowed him down on the homestretch, but he bumped his way into second money on the rim. C. A. Chamberlain was third and Ted Simpson fourth.

Lockhart's victory gave him a cash prize of $16,000, while Baker went home with $8,000. The remainder of the $52,000 offered in purses was graduated down to $1,500 for the ninth finisher. Al Menasco finished fifth and then there followed in order: Edward Dameier, Jack Thiele, Jack Vickers, Cliff Bergere and Edward Newton.

The race marked the first automobile road racing in Southern California in several years. The course included the regular five-eighths of a mile, the remainder of each lap, approximately five miles in length, being driven over a series of low, rolling slopes adjoining the bowl.

JOHNSON SEEKING CLUB.

Veteran Hurler Has Heart Set on Making His Home in West.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 27.—The heart of Walter Johnson, who pitched the Washington American Baseball Club to victory, still is set on making the West his future home.

When he was shown an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, which quoted President Thomas Hickey of the American Association as saying that the Washington twirler could raise enough money in St. Paul in twenty-four hours to finance the purchase of that city's club, Johnson only smiled a bit and said he had given no consideration to the St. Paul offer.

"All the information I have received regarding the St. Paul offer has come through the papers, with one exception," Johnson said, "that exception was that I was told several weeks ago that Mr. Norton, owner of the St. Paul club, was about to retire. I have received no offer of any kind and in fact, have given little attention to the matter."

YOUTH WINS WALK TO CONEY ISLAND

97 SURVIVE 10-MILE RACE

Winner Covers Route in 1:34:37, but Fast Time Prize Goes to Granville—Plant Is 18th.

A youngster worked his way through a field of ninety-seven rivals yesterday and won the fourteenth annual City Hall-to-Coney Island handicap walk of the Walkers' Club of America, held over a course of about ten and one-half miles, extending, by devious route, from the steps of City Hall to Ocean Parkway and Surf Avenue, Coney Island.

Harry Abramowitz, a seventeen-year-old member of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., competing in his second race, was the winner of the event, enjoying the distinction of leading ninety-six surviving rivals of the original field over the wind-swept finish line by the seaside where a crowd of several thousand gathered to cheer the pedestrians as they advanced on the end of their journey.

Actually Abramowitz finished in second position, but the disqualification of Frank Vasilopoulos, Greek-American A. C. representative, was recommended by all six judges, who reported that at different points along the course they had detected Vasilopoulos running. The disqualification gave premier prize to young Abramowitz, whose every step of the race reflected the careful drilling of his coach, Nat Osk.

Abramowitz started with a handicap of sixteen minutes, and finished the course in the actual time of 1 hour 34 minutes 37 seconds. As he finished, the young Y. M. H. A. athlete enjoyed a victorious margin of about a quarter of a mile on William Modin, a clubmate, who started off the 11-minute handicap mark and carried off runner-up prize, through the disqualification of Vasilopoulos. Harry Morrell, Morningside A. C. walker, who started with a time allowance of thirteen minutes, was third, followed by Peter Tranter, Hamilton, Ont., Y. M. C. A. standard bearer, the first Canadian walker to finish.

Five Walkers Disqualified.

Vasilopoulos was one of five starters who suffered disqualification for what the course judges reported as unfair walking. Another was C. E. Meisner, a member of the Canadian team, whose elimination as the order of finish was being checked up, also put out the team from across the country's northern border. The effect of this disqualification was felt also in the result of the team battle, for it cost the Canadians the point trophy. With the Canadians eliminated, the Pastime A. C. beat out Nat Osk's Y. M. H. A. quintet by the slender margin of a single point.

The Brazilian Cross wearers captured sixth, seventh, eighth, eleventh and twelfth positions in the score and emerged triumphant with the low winning aggregate of 44 points. The Y. M. H. A. walkers finished in first, second, thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth positions, for a total of 45 points. The Morningside A. C. and Greek-American A. C. were the only other clubs to finish full teams and were third and fourth, respectively.

Fast time honors went to Philip Granville, most prominent member of the Canadian delegation, who once held the American seven-mile heel and toe title. Granville, after a spirited struggle with Willie Plant of the Morningside A. C., America's premier walker, showed the way to Plant by about three yards in 1 hour 25 minutes 20 seconds. Plant finished two-fifths of a second back of his rival.

Granville, calling on every ounce of his reserve, managed to nip Plant in the shadow of the tape. The rivals finished, respectively, seventeenth and eighteenth. Third fast time prize went to Mack Weiss, Long Island Knights of Columbus Centre, who was ninth, off the 2-minute mark, in 1:25-34.

Veteran Hocking Takes Prize.

In the class for walkers over 60 years the daddy of the field was Alonzo Chamberlain, a limit handicap starter who modestly admitted to 78 years "young." Jim Hocking, silver-haired veteran who recently celebrated his 69th birthday, was the prize winner in this division, finishing in thirty-eighth position in 2 hours 3 minutes after starting with Chamberlain. The latter trailed home in ninetieth place, none the worse for the test of walking endurance.

In the struggle among the "youngsters" in the 40-year-old group Panos Anthony, Pastime A. C. walker, was the winner. He finished in thirteenth position off the 13-minute mark, in the actual time of 1:37:44.

In the other twelve-round battle Irish Paddy Flynn of Brooklyn received the decision over Paddy Ryan, Pittsburgh welterweight. Dave Holzman, South Brooklyn lightweight, won from Sammy Goodman of East New York in their six-round battle. KYRONEN FINISHES SECOND

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 27.—Superior knowledge of the mountainous nine-and-a-quarter-mile course enabled James Henigan of Boston to defeat twenty-two competitors today in the fifteenth annual Berwick marathon in 49 minutes 13 2-5 seconds, more than a minute slower than the record set by Willie Ritola in 1922. Five members of the American Olympic team competed.

Henigan took the lead on the first mountain and was never headed. At the finish he had a lead of more than 200 yards over Willie Kyronen of Finland, who finished in second place.

Johnny Gray of Philadelphia led for the first two miles, but dropped out at the fifth mile due to a strained tendon. He surrendered his lead at the two-mile mark to John Bell, Syracuse University runner, but Henigan overtook Bell on the first mountain.

WANDERERS' ELEVEN BEATEN BY GIANTS

New Yorkers Win by 2-1 Before 3,500 and Gain in American Soccer League.

BETHLEHEM TEAM VICTOR

Defeats Newark Football Club by 5-1—Gibraltar and Germany Also Triumph.

Scoring their second victory within a week, the New York Giants made another gain in the American Soccer League yesterday by defeating the Brooklyn Wanderers, 2 goals to 1, at the Indiana-New York Oval before a holiday crowd of 3,500 persons. Honors were even for the first half, at the close of which the score stood at 1—1. After these two goals had been shot the Wanderers missed a chance to take the lead when they failed on a penalty kick.

The Giants set the pace in the second period, but owing to the fine defensive work of the Wanderers they did not notch the deciding tally until five minutes from the end.

The line-up:

Holiday Yesterday on American Exchanges, Europe Open—Outlook on Stock Exchange.

All American financial and commercial markets were closed yesterday for the national Thanksgiving holiday; in its way a peculiarly appropriate occasion at this time, since observance of Thanksgiving Day was established by our American ancestors to express their gratitude for successful harvests. There have been Thanksgiving Days in the very recent past when spontaneous expression of thankfulness was considerably hindered, either by inadequate American harvests or by unremunerative American prices. But certainly no one, in or out of the financial district, will fail to recognize the windfall of fortune which Providence has showered on the American farm producer during 1924. It has changed the half-bankrupt Northwest into a prosperous community, has reopened the textile mills which three short cotton crops had closed, and it had a very considerable hand in defeating the party of unsound policies and political unrest at the Presidential election.

The outstanding item in the weekly statement of the Bank of France issued yesterday was a reduction of 83,266,000 francs in outstanding note circulation. This was viewed as significant in view of the general idea recently held that it may have been necessary to raise the maximum allowed on such issues during the period of active trade in December. The statement also shows that the State repaid the bank 300,000,000 francs. A gain in bills discounted was reported, but other changes were unimportant.

The slowly changing character of the stock market, since the remarkable demonstration of financial confidence reached its height about a week ago, has caused some questioning as to exactly what the market's future is to be. Nothing that has occurred in the past week could be called distinctly disappointing; indeed, the slackening in the pace which, a week or more ago, was carrying prices of all stocks upward in a whirl of speculative excitement, has been greeted by many thoughtful observers with relief. It gave good reason for belief that the financial community had not completely lost its head, and that a further rise in prices on an extensive scale would at least await the tangible development of events.

The question is always put at such times, however, whether the market may not already have gone too fast and too far, and, if so, what kind of movement is next in store. Such a question can only be answered tentatively and in the light of past experience. Ordinarily, the history of a genuine "bull market" has exactly resembled that of this season's market up to the present time. The furious initial buying, always based upon some concrete event, never continues uninterruptedly on its first scale of magnitude during many weeks. It usually changes into a slower movement, marked by lessening interest of the real investing public and by increasingly strenuous activities of the "pools" and "professionals," who try to provide the stimulus which no longer comes from conservative outside buying.

This second stage of the movement similarly runs its course; it usually makes way for a more or less humdrum market, resembling those which prevailed before the "bull movement" began, and undistinguished by spectacular flights of values. That stage is apt to end when concrete and visible events in trade and industry show whether the hopes of the first and enthusiastic rise on the Stock Exchange were warranted or not.

First Mortgage Gold Bonds, 5% Series A

Dated June 1, 1912 Due June 1, 1952

Interest payable June 1 and December 1 in New York. Callable at 105. Coupon Bonds, registerable as to principal. Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Trustee.

Issuance authorized by Wisconsin Railroad Commission

TAX PROVISION: Under the present law interest on these Bonds is payable without deduction for Federal Income Tax to an amount not exceeding 2% of such interest.

Wisconsin Gas and Electric Company does directly the entire commercial electric light and power business in 56 communities of southeastern Wisconsin. It also does the entire gas business in Racine and five other communities, the local street railway service in one, and in addition sells electric power at wholesale in sixteen other communities. The population now served directly by the Company is estimated at 275,000.

These First Mortgage Bonds, of which there will be $4,857,500 outstanding, are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on the entire property of the Company, subject only to $610,000 divisional liens on minor portions of the property. There is a large equity in the property over the Mortgage Bonds represented by the $6,090,000 outstanding junior securities.

Net earnings, as officially reported for the twelve months ended October 31, 1924, amounted to $1,194,012, or over 4⅓ times the annual Mortgage Bond interest, including this issue, of $273,475.

Wisconsin Gas and Electric Company is a subsidiary of The North American Company and its operations are under the supervision and control of that company.

What Better Security For Your Money?

The security underlying the bonds of conservatively managed electric light and power companies comprises plants and other physical properties maintained at a high standard of efficiency and furnishing an indispensable service. The security is fortified by earnings much more dependable than those of general industries; by large equities, represented either by the appraised value of the properties or by the market value of junior security issues, and also, in many instances, by customer ownership of preferred or common stocks.

TRACTION TALKS—No. 3

Busses vs. Trolleys

Some people seem to think that motor busses are soon to replace all surface cars in New York City. These persons probably fail to realize that in nearly every instance the local surface car companies hold perpetual franchises to the use of the streets in which they operate. For many years they have paid millions of dollars to the State and City in franchise taxes and repairs to pavements. The Law of New York State protects these companies from ruinous competition. In every instance where an "outlaw" bus line has been started in direct opposition to trolley cars the Courts have granted an injunction against it.

Odd Lots

By purchasing 10 shares of stock of the leading companies in 10 diversified industries, greater margin of safety is obtained than by purchasing 100 shares of any one issue.

Adverse conditions may arise in which any industry might be affected, but it is unlikely that the ten industries would be affected simultaneously.

BRITISH MARKETS QUIET BUT STRONG

GILT-EDGED ISSUES FIRM

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Owing to the closing of the New York market the foreign exchanges were quiet today with comparatively little movement in rates. Sterling closed unchanged at 4.63 7/16. French francs at 86.95, against 87.62½ on Wednesday, and Belgian francs at 95.20, against 95.67½. There appeared to be some demand for the franc currencies. The London rate of Holland moved against us, dropping to 11.47⅝.

In the stock market quiet prevailed, but the undertone was firm and confident, engendered by the manner in which the Government is handling the Egyptian situation, which is being fully maintained. Gilt-edged issues were in demand in anticipation of the release of £50,000,000 Government funds Dec. 1. The £6,000,000 loan of the Commonwealth of Australia bearing 4¾ per cent. interest is understood to be going well, but the list has not yet been closed. Among the industrial issues the steel shares were depressed by the unfavorable situation outlined in a recent speech delivered by Lord Furness. Brewery shares were active and strong, as this industry, despite the unemployment situation and uncertain trade conditions, is doing very well.

Money rates eased considerably today, although in the last three days there has been a pronounced stringency, with considerable borrowing from the Bank of England at 4½ per cent. Bar silver advanced ⅛d today to 33 9/16d for cash and spot delivery and to 33⅝ for futures. The cash discount is due to the large stock now available in London following heavy arrivals this week from America. Bar gold dropped 2d to 89s 10d per ounce, nominal, India having again cleared the market of supplies. Copper was steady at £63 13-16 per ton for cash. Tin and lead were higher, the latter being at the best price for the year to date.

Negotiations for an issue of Greek refugee loan are practically complete and an offering of these bonds is expected within the next few days. Messrs. Scrimgeour and De Zoete and Gorton are acting as the London brokers for the loan.

Insurance Company Purchased.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 27.—The Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company of Toronto has been acquired by the British American and Western Assurance Companies, headed by Wilfrid M. Cox, says an announcement here by officials of the latter companies.

CANADIAN BOND SALES.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 27.—Canadian bond sales for the week ended Nov. 22 amounted to $3,144,958, including $2,544,958 municipal bonds and $600,000 of corporation bonds.

The total of municipals for the year to date is $88,663,370 and of corporation bonds $58,234,299. The grand total, including $235,237,500 of Government bonds and $131,125,000 of railway bonds, now stands at $513,260,169. This compares with bond sales in the first eleven months of 1923 of $504,916,771.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Exchanges and Banks Closed Yesterday; Europe Open for Business.

The New York Stock Exchange, the Curb Market, Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York and all local and out-of-town commodity and security exchanges were closed yesterday in observance of the Thanksgiving Day holiday. Banking institutions also were closed. As a result business was completely suspended in this country yesterday. European exchanges and banks, however, were open as usual yesterday, as were the foreign exchange markets and the foreign commodity exchanges. Little business was done in international exchange, however, so far as this country was concerned, the trading being confined strictly between London and the continental centres.

Wall Street investment houses have run into a curious situation. They are much in the same boat as a grocer who sold out his stock and finds that a strong demand still remains, although he has nothing he can offer. In the case of foreign Government bonds, particularly, so it was observed recently, the Wall Street banking fraternity finds this condition is actually here. The demand for foreign Government bonds was probably never so good as today, as was evidenced, they believed, in the rather striking sale of French bonds, but thus far they have found little by way of new offerings that they can bring out.

According to one banker familiar with the railroad situation there is every reason to believe that the railroads will be in the money market on a laarge scale during the coming year. Some of the large expenditures in 1924 still remain to be financed. Aside from this, however, the railroads are planning to spend no less than $1,100,000,000 for new equipment and improvements during 1925, much of which will come under the head of capital expenditure, and a considerable part of which will be financed. Besides this, it was pointed out yesterday that there are numerous improvements which the railroads have been contemplating for years, including electrification, reduction of grades, cut-offs and so forth, which may be carried into effect during the coming year if the money situation continues favorable.

Our Surplus Gold and Its Disposal.

Instead of the cry of "too much gold" there recently had been heard an expression of belief among bankers that the "gold problem" of America will solve itself through the natural process of economic necessities. Already, it was noted in banking-house conversation this week, there has come into being the faint evidence of a trend indicating that Europe is at last beginning to make some call on the United States for gold, whereas before the movement had been entirely this way. In the same connection there have arisen several interesting questions in connection with recent large international loans. With both the German and the French loans the purpose was outlined in a broad and general way, but there still is conjecture as to whether or not the two borrowing Governments may not yet find it advisable to call to their countries some of the gold fund established here for their credit. In such a case, it was believed, there would be nothing at all to stand in the way of such export.

Steel Tonnage Prospects.

The statement of unfilled orders carried on the books of the United States Steel Corporation as of the close of November will not be issued until Dec. 10, but already Wall Street is looking forward to a favorable report from the company. This, together with the optimistic statements issued by the leading trade journals regarding conditions in the industry, accounted for the strength displayed in United States Steel common and the independent steel issues in Thursday's market. In regard to unfilled steel orders carried by the leading factor in the trade, Wall Street expects the company to report a gain larger than that recorded as of Oct. 31, 1924, which amounted to 51,490 tons. The increase to be reported will be a direct result of the large release of orders which came into the industry immediately following election day. Taken as a whole, however, Wall Street and the industry in general does not look for a rush of steel buying over the balance of the year. But the prospects for the first half of 1925 are generally considered very promising. In fact it has been estimated that the corporation's bookings by the close of the first quarter of 1925 will be a million or more tons larger than the total of 3,500,000 tons reported as of Oct. 31, 1925.

Many members of the New York Stock Exchange who have been in the habit in former years of taking a long week-end holiday over Thanksgiving will hurry "back to town" this year and hang out the "business as usual" sign. They take the position that this is the harvest season and they cannot afford to take an extended vacation at this time.

Oils and Coppers Still Hang Back.

With few exceptions the oil and copper stocks participated to a very small extent in the recent active markets. This is due, according to Wall Street explanation, to the fact that both industries are in a weakened technical position so far as the supplies of raw materials on hand are concerned. In the oil industry the huge surplus stocks which have been carried over from the past two years of record-breaking production is one problem which is entertaining the interest of trade leaders at the present. Leaders claim that this surplus will come in handy next year, especially in view of the recent sharp declines in domestic production. In the copper industry, surplus stocks are said to be about "normal," in view of current consumption, but whether this is true or not is a matter of conjecture. Some Wall Street interests are of the belief that the copper industry did not gain any friends when it decided to withhold production and consumption figures from not only consumers but also from investors. Under present conditions no one but the "insiders" know the real condition of affairs.

Reduced Taxes as an Earnings Factor.

A factor of admittedly considerable importance with regard to the income reports which corporations will make for the current year is the reduced Federal taxes which are chargeable against earnings along with expenses, and which must be deducted before any appraisal of net earnings can be made. The lower surtaxes made effective for the current year will make a difference in tax reserves that in many cases will amount to millions of dollars in favor of the companies, and these are expected to be reflected rather interestingly in the annual reports. Not a few corporations whose reports would otherwise show decreased earnings for 1924 will be able to show either smaller decreases by reason of the lower taxes, or increases, with consequent benefit to shareholders.

The Labor Situation.

Just at the time when the railroad horizon seems more clear than it has been for years a tiny cloud is appearing in the form of labor troubles. Here and there are minor indications that labor will sooner or later ask for a division of the increased earnings of the roads. Officials are not afraid of the Howell-Barclay Bill when it will come before Congress in December and for the most part they take the position that labor was so well treatted during the recent slackness in business that it should not expect an increase in wages at this time. Past experience, however, has shown that this has not always been the case, but to the contrary that every time the railroads were making a profit labor has not been long in demanding its share. While the situation at present is better than it has been for several years past there is no telling what the future may bring.

RISE IN STERLING EXPLAINED BY BANK

LEAVING MONEY AT LONDON

New York Not Drawing on Accruing London Credits, Which Earn More Abroad.

The most interesting feature of the past month, as stated in its monthly review of the markets, by Barclay's Bank of London, "has been the strength of sterling in terms of the dollar. In many quarters it was thought that the rate might suffer slightly during October, owing to seasonal requirements, but, although 4.45 was touched in the early part of the month, the undertone has since been remarkably firm.

"The political developments had very little influence and were entirely offset by the effects of the German loan, which brought about a strong demand for sterling and some selling of dollars, especially on Continental account. The Continent has been a large holder of dollars for some years past, and there seems to be no inclination to add to these balances. The usual Autumn buying of dollars, both on this side and in New York, has not been as heavy as usual, and it would appear that some proportion of the Autumn bills is being held in the United States, owing to the distinct easiness in American money rates and the better prospects in Europe.

"The strength of sterling is still more encouraging, in view of the fact that gold shipments, which usually find their way to America, have during recent months been going elsewhere, particularly to India. Although the bulk of the Autumn dollars has probably been acquired, it would not be wise to assume that requirements are entirely satisfied. Allowance must also be made for the December payment in respect of Great Britain's debt to America, but in this case also it is not unlikely that preparation has been made in advance."

CITIES SERVICE GETS ADDITIONAL PROPERTY

Acquires Gas Systems in Four Communities in Kansas for $6,000,000.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 27.—The gas distributing systems in Wichita, Hutchinson, Newton and Pittsburgh have been sold by the Kansas Gas and Electric Company, with headquarters here, to the Cities Service Company of New York, according to announcement made by L. O. Ripley, Vice President of the Kansas Gas concern, following completion of negotiations which have been under way in New York for several months. The purchase price is $6,000,000.

The Cities Service Company, one of the Henry L. Doherty group, will immediately organize a distributing company to take over the distribution of natural gas in these four Kansas cities. The Kansas Gas and Electric Company will continue strictly as an electric utility. It is a subsidiary of the American Power and Light Company, organized and directed by the Electric Bond and Share Company, New York City.

REORGANIZATION FINISHED.

Keokuk & Des Moines Bondholders Announce Completion.

One of the shortest railroad reorganizations on record has been accomplished by the Keokuk & Des Moines Railway Bondholders' Protective Committee, which announced yesterday that the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company's 4 per cent. bonds, together with back interest, were ready for distribution.

As the Keokuk & Des Moines Railway defaulted on Oct. 1, 1923, the new securities are ready for delivery within fourteen months from the time of default. During that time the Bondholders' Protective Committee, representing the 5 per cent. bonds foreclosed on the property, reached an agreement with the Rock Island, whereby that road purchased the Keokuk & Des Moines and paid for it in the 4 per cent. bonds of the Rock Island.

Geller, Rolston and Blanc are counsel for the committee, and the Farmers Loan and Trust Company is depositary. F. J. Lisman was Chairman of the Reorganization Committee.

REORGANIZATION OF

The Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad System

Under Plan and Agreement dated June 15, 1923, as modified February 29, 1924

To Holders of First and Refunding Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds and Seven Per Cent. Cumulative Adjustment Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company:

Pursuant to the decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Colorado, entered September 18, 1924, the properties constituting the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad System were, on October 29, 1924, sold in foreclosure of the Refunding Mortgage and the Adjustment Mortgage. By order entered November 20, 1924, said sale was confirmed by the Court. Proceedings will promptly be taken to complete as rapidly as possible the reorganization under said Plan and Agreement as modified and to issue the new securities in accordance therewith.

The distributive share of the proceeds of the aforesaid sale of the mortgaged properties which bondholders will be entitled to receive under said foreclosure decree will be approximately only $290 for each $1,000 Refunding Bond with the February 1, 1922 and subsequent coupons, and $242 for each $1,000 Adjustment Bond with the October 1, 1921 and subsequent coupons. Accordingly, bondholders who have not already become entitled to participate in the benefits of the reorganization by depositing their bonds under said Plan and Agreement are urged to do so immediately for their own protection. Deposits may be made with any of the depositaries named below, or with their respective sub-depositaries.

In order to permit such deposit, the time for the deposit of bonds under said Plan and Agreement is hereby extended to the close of business on December 30, 1924. After December 30, 1924, bondholders, as a condition of deposit under said Plan and Agreement, will be required to pay in cash $50 for each $1,000 bond deposited. The Reorganization Managers, however, reserve the right at any time after said date, in general or in particular instances in their discretion, to refuse to permit the deposit of bonds or to permit such deposit without such payment or on such special or general terms as they see fit.

Copies of said Plan and Agreement and of the Modifications thereof may be obtained from the undersigned Reorganization Managers or from any of the Depositaries.

OIL OUTPUT GAINS, DUE TO NEW WELLS

DECLINES ARE EXCEEDED

Production of Salt Creek Field in Wyoming Jumps From 52,500 to 60,200 Barrels.

Production of crude oil increased sharply last week, due to the heavy flow of new wells in both Oklahoma and north Texas, according to the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production last week was 1,963,600 barrels, a gain of 22,550 barrels compared with the previous week, when output averaged 1,941,050 barrels daily. In the corresponding week last year daily average production was 2,198,250 barrels.

Oklahoma, where several large wells were brought in during the last week, recorded a gain of 14,950 barrels, while north Texas reported an increase of 7,150 barrels in the daily output.

Reductions in output were reported in Kansas, California and the Gulf Coast and Southwestern Texas regions, but the declines were not sufficient to offset the gains reported. An outstanding feature in the report of the institute was the gain of 6,700 barrels in daily output in Wyoming, Montana and Colorado.

The output of the Salt Creek field in Wyoming jumped from 52,500 to 60,200 barrels. This showing of the Salt Creek field was considered significant in view of recent pessimistic statements regarding the future of this territory.

DAILY AVERAGE PRODUCTION.
(Figures in Barrels.)

	Nov. 22.	Nov. 15.	Nov. 24.
Central Texas	163,100	163,650	374,500
North Louisiana	58,700	60,150	57,800
Gulf Coast and Southwest Texas	131,950	135,150	94,300
Wyoming, Montana and Colorado	91,150	84,450	155,200

Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic Coast ports last week aggregated 691,000 barrels against 672,000 barrels in the previous week. Imports of crude oil amounted to 1,956,000 barrels against 1,959,000 barrels the week before.

PLAN LONGER RUNS FOR LOCOMOTIVES

When the savings of the railroads in operating expenses for 1924 are reviewed, account will have to be taken of the methods of increasing the length of runs for locomotives. This alone has contributed a considerable saving in 1924, as well as adding materially to the capacity of the motive power on most of the railroads.

Whereas, three or four years ago, a run of 300 or 400 miles for a passenger locomotive was considered out of the ordinary and 200 miles was considered as exceptionally good performance for a freight locomotive, there are today nine railroads which have regular runs of more than 500 miles for their passenger engines, and at least five on which more than 300-mile runs are maintained for the freight locomotives.

The longest runs for passenger locomotives, according to figures given in the New York Central Lines Magazine, is 815 miles, on the Southern Pacific. This run is without a change of passenger engines from Los Angeles, Cal., to El Paso, Texas. The railroad designed engines especially to make this trip. Although the train crews are changed three times, the same locomotive keeps going.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas has a regular passenger run of 678 miles, from Parsons, Kan., to San Antonio, Texas, without a change; the Union Pacific one of 640 miles, from Kansas City, Kan., to Denver, Col.; the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé boasts of one passenger run of 602 miles without change of locomotives, this being from Winslow, Ariz., to Los Angeles, Cal.

The Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific and the Atchison also lead in the length of freight runs. The Southern Pacific has one run of 453 miles, from Del Rio, Texas, to El Paso, Texas, and another of 387 miles, from Sparks, Nev., to Carlin, Nev., a distance of 387 miles. From Ellis, Kan., to Denver, Col., over the Union Pacific, is 337 miles, and the Atchison has a run of 310 miles from Los Angeles, Cal., to Needles, Cal.

Among the longer runs is that of the New York Central, which now operates its passenger trains from Buffalo to New York without a change of locomotives until they enter the electrified zone. This is a distance of 438 miles.

Recently Frank E. Russell, mechanical engineer of the Southern Pacific, set forth some of the economies accomplished by the long runs for locomotives.

"The advantages and economy of running locomotives over two or more divisions when topography of the country and operating conditions will permit," he said, "are as follows:

"1. Increased mileage. I have yet to learn of a single case where the extending of locomotive runs has not resulted in increased mileage over a period of time.

"2. Reduction in the number of locomotives required.—An increase in the locomotive mileage is equivalent to a corresponding increase of locomotives, and, as shown by the extension of runs by the Southern Pacific between Sparks and Ogden, the same fifteen locomotives made 68 per cent. more mileage after they were run through, which enables them to do the same work as twenty-five locomotives operating under the old runs.

"3. Increased railroad capacity.—Reduction in work for locomotives at small outlying terminals permits reducing the number of expensive tools required at such points where they are used only a portion of the time and permits assembling them at main terminals, where they can be utilized to greater advantage, thus reducing the investment in these facilities.

"4. Economy at terminals—Locomotives running over two or more divisions do not require at the intermediate points the attention of wipers, hostlers, ash-pit and coal-dock men, machinists and boiler inspectors. The cost of tuning a locomotive after it has run over two or three divisions is very little, if any, more than if similar attention had been given at intermediate points, and repairs can be made in a more substantial and workman like manner, as there are ample time and facilities to take care of them.

"5. Saving in fuel—During the year 1921 about one-fifth of all locomotive coal used, or about 25,000,000 tons, was consumed when the locomotive was not doing useful work. Waste of fuel on account of dumping coal fires and rebuilding fires, as well as fuel for keeping locomotives hot, is saved."

FORESEES NEW ERA FOR ELECTRIC TRADE

The progress of the electric light and power industry in the last twenty years points definitely toward a revolution in the electrical industry, and in a broader sense, to sweeping changes in the country's social life, according to General Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The only power which can utilize the most economical sources of energy and, on the other hand, be conveyed to the points where it is most needed is electric power, he says.

In a brochure issued on "The Future of Electrical Merchandising," General Tripp states that "superpower, as conceived and as being carried forward at the present time, contemplates the use of 220,000-volt trunk transmission lines stretching over wide areas and serving as a great reservoir into which may be poured power generated from all available sources in order of their economy. It looks forward to a time when water powers and gigantic steam stations, located in the coal fields or on tidewater, will be developed; and not only that, but to a time when the by-products of industrial operations, such as the gases from blast furnaces, &c, will all be conserved by turning these waste products into electric power, for which there will always be a market in the main 'pipe lines,' so to speak.

"This reservoir will take the surplus energy of existing power stations until, in the end, we will see great superpower systems balancing their requirements and surpluses through this central reservoir.

"It requires no special stretch of the imagination to conceive revolutionary changes in our social affairs brought about by this new, or rather improved, agency."

It is evident, General Tripp continued, that "on all sides the electric light and power industry is rapidly being merged and consolidated into fewer and larger systems. Conditions now are quite the reverse of what they were twenty years ago. Instead of being a series of local affairs, the electric light and power industry is now assuming national proportions, and this is inevitable, because the proper development of a superpower system must necessarily ignore State lines and other arbitrary limitations.

"It seems to me that the revolutionary changes which I have just described must profoundly affect the methods of distribution of articles of electrical manufacture, because the superpower systems of the future must of necessity be sensitive in the highest degree to public opinion, and any popular feeling that the price of electrical articles is extortionate will reflect itself not only upon the business of the public utility but upon its popularity." This cost of distribution as applied to all merchandise, according to General Tripp, lies at the bottom of "the current unrest and criticism of our present economic system." He goes on to say:

"The cost of distributing phonographs is seven times the manufacturing cost; washing machines, three and one-half times; furniture, five times; low-priced watches, six and one-half times, and electrical merchandise, three and one-half times. To these figures can be added an estimate supplied by the New York State Bureau of Markets, that the retail prices of perishable farm products average about five times the prices received by the producers."

Under the circumstances, the electrical merchandiser "has little to apologize for," General Tripp asserts, "but at the same time we are under a moral and business obligation to reduce our figure to the lowest possible value by studying every item of our selling expense and eliminating every one that is not thoroughly justified. This is being done in the case of production costs."

TO ELECTRIFY ROADS IN SUBURBAN CHICAGO

Illinois Central's Project One of Largest in Recent Years—Speed the Big Aim.

The Illinois Central's recently placed orders for electrical equipment not only assures speedy transportation service for one of Chicago's most congested areas not later than July 1, 1926, over thirty-seven miles of suburban lines, but, it is said, ranks as one of the foremost projects of its kind in recent years. The sections to be electrically equipped at the present time are those between Randolph Street, Chicago, and Matteson, Ill.; the southern terminal of the main suburban zone; Sixty-seventh Street and South Chicago, and Kensington and Blue Island. Electrical equipment has been ordered for a total of 120 motor cars and 120 trailers. The power supply will be 1,500 volts, direct current.

On the sections to be electrified the Illinois Central operates twenty and one-half miles of double track, nine miles of four-track line and three and three-fourths miles of six-track road. Units will consist of one motor car and trailer and will be equipped with four 250-horsepower motors. Thus a ten-car train will be nominally rated at 5,000 horsepower. Through the multiple unit system, such as is used on elevated lines, these trains will be controlled by a single motorman. Increased acceleration will be possible, and the number of trains operated can be considerably augmented if necessary. Approximately 70 per cent. of the order for electrical equipment was placed with the General Electric Company.

The change from steam operation on the sections to be electrified will also considerably reduce the smoke nuisance within the limits of the city. The electrified area will extend a distance of twenty-eight miles south of the Loop. All suburban trains in this area will be operated electrically. The cars will each seat eighty-four passengers and a maximum speed of sixty-three miles an hour will be possible under the plan of electrification.

ERIE INCOME GAINS.

The Erie Railroad, including returns from subsidiary lines, reports gross earnings of $11,459,139 for October comparing with $12,069,279 in the same month last year, and operating income of $2,218,251 against $1,867,134. The gain in operating income was due entirely to curtailment of expenses, as gross revenue dropped off compared with a year ago.

For the ten months ended Oct. 31, 1924, gross revenue aggregated $100,435,626 against $111,959,254 last year, and net railroad operating income $14,127,299 against $14,540,690 in the same period in 1923.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED.

Autocar Company Pays Quarterly 2% on Preferred Stock.

Directors of the Autocar Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable Dec. 15, to stockholders of record Dec. 5.

The C. G. Spring and Bumper Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock payable Jan. 1, 1925, to stockholders of record Dec. 24, 1924.

NEW HAVEN BONDS TO SOLVE PROBLEM

MAY AFFECT THE MERGERS

Would Reveal if Business Would Furnish Financing for a Regional System.

Announcement by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company of its plan for refunding its European loan of $23,000,000, due April 1, 1925, through the aid of New England industry has caused comment in the financial district. Some railroad bankers take the position that the attitude of the New England industries toward the New Haven will demonstrate just how far they are willing to go toward caring for their railroad systems. Others declare that the present problem of the New Haven is so small compared with the question which faces all of the New England roads that it is difficult to compare the two.

Under the consolidation of the railroads, which is gradually taking place both with and without the encouragement of the Interstate Commerce Commission, there are three courses open to the railroads of New England, it is pointed out. In the first place, the individual roads can be merged with the great trunk lines. Or they can be grouped together in a great New England system backed by the industries of New England. The third suggestion is that all of the railroads of New England should be grouped into a single system and then the stock of that company be divided between the four great trunk lines in the eastern part of the country, namely the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the proposed Van Sweringen system and the Baltimore & Ohio.

So far as the evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the expressions from leading interests in New England show, the ideal method would be for the New England system to include all of the roads in that territory and be independent of the other railroads. Such a solution would put the great New England system in a "trading position" where it could demand the best of service and the best division of rates from the four great systems competing for the business. This in turn would be reflected to the advantage of New England's industries.

But it is pointed out that such a plan would require financing, and it is asserted that the industries of New England would have to stand back of their railroads. In recent years many of the industries of that section have suffered from adverse conditions which make it difficult for them to undertake such a task at this time.

One railroad banker who is exceptionally well versed in the affairs of New England stated recently that it was almost out of the question for such a plan to go through. But the announcement of the New Haven has changed the picture to some in the financial district.

"What if the industries of New England were to step up and subscribe liberally to the New Haven bonds?" one banker asked. "Wouldn't it help the credit of the railroad and wouldn't it indicate at the same time that the manufacturers of that section wanted a New England railroad system for New England?"

How far the manufacturers of New England will go in subscribing for the $23,000,000 of new 6 per cent. bonds is a question. It is almost certain that the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, conservative men, who in the last few years have demonstrated their financial ability, would not have made the announcement unless they expected the industries of that section to make good on their promises. And if the industries do make good, some railroad bankers say, it will put an entirely different outlook on the entire New England railroad situation.

STORE SALES BAROMETER.

Cooperation to Make the Statistics Available Earlier.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Federal Reserve banks and the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association will cooperate henceforth in the issuance of a monthly sales barometer covering the sales of department stores all over the country. For the last two years the Controllers' Congress has been collecting the data and publishing its sales barometer separately. The Federal Reserve banks have been issuing retail trade statistics for an even longer period. Many advantages are expected to accrue from the cooperative action agreed upon.

One of these will be the making of the report available much sooner for the merchants. Under the plan a representative of the Controllers' Congress will act as liaison officer in each of the Federal Reserve districts will cooperate with the Federal Reserve statisticians to get the figures into the hands of the banks quickly. The endeavor will be to have all stores report their total unaudited sales for each month not later than the fifth day of the succeeding month. These reports will be made directly to the statisticians in the twelve Federal Reserve districts. They will collate and publish the reports for their own districts and wire the results to Washington.

It is thus hoped to have the report for the entire country released from Washington by the tenth of the following month. In addition, departmental figures will be sent to the Federal Reserve statisticians by the stores in the Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco Federal Reserve districts. It is anticipated that, later, stores in other districts will supply these figures also.

A standard form of report has been adopted which in many respects is patterned after the report made to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, which was found to be the most complete of all the reports now received.

At the convention of the Controllers' Congress held in St. Louis it was recommended that the Congress cease to gather a separate sales barometer, and this resulted in the negotiations for the Federal Reserve banks to take it over. Ernest Katz, Controller of R. H. Macy & Co., is Chairman of the Controllers' Congress.

BUSINESS GAINS REPORTED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A summary of general business conditions made public today by the Federal Reserve Board showed that business was going along at a satisfactory pace, with increases in production of basic commodities and factory employment in October and the early part of November.

Distribution was in large volume. The general level of wholesale prices advanced, due principally to a rise in the prices of agricultural products.

While the Board's index of production in basic industries was still considerably below the level of the early months of this year, it increased 6 per cent. in October and was 16 per cent. above the low point of midsummer. Output of iron and steel, cotton and woolen textiles, lumber and bituminous coal was substantially larger than the months before.

Factory employment increased 2 per cent. in October, reflecting larger working forces in most of the manufacturing industries. Building contract awards increased and were 14 per cent. above a year ago.

The Department of Agriculture crop estimates showed increases in the expected yields of corn, cotton, tobacco and potatoes. The movement of crops to market in October reached the largest volume in five years and exports of grain and cotton were in greater volume than in the corresponding month of any recent years.

MONEY IN YUGOSLAVIA.

Bank Rate 6%, but Industrial Credits Cost as High as 25.

Reports on the money market of Yugoslavia at the beginning of November, stated that the current interest rate on loans is very high. Credits for industrial purposes cannot be obtained under 25 per cent. per annum, while interest paid by banks on deposits averages 12 per cent., and in some cases reaches even 20 per cent.

Meantime, the nominal bank rate is only 6 per cent., but, since the State Bank has adopted a policy of arbitrarily restricting discounts, the lower bank rate has no effect on the open market.

YONKERS WOMAN STABBED.

Police Hunt a Man Acquaintance Who Was Jealous.

Michael Smith, 51 years old, is hunted by the Yonkers police, who say that he stabbed and seriously wounded Mrs. Eva Slote, 41, after breaking into her home at 13 Jefferson Street, Yonkers.

The police were informed that Smith and Mrs. Slote had been friends for several years, but had quarreled recently. He became jealous because she went to a wedding Wednesday night.

He broke a padlock and got into the kitchen of her home in her absence, the police said, and when she returned he sprang on her with a knife. Then he jumped out a window and fled, according to the police. Mrs. Slote was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers, in serious condition.

NURSE ACCUSES DOCTOR.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27.—Dr. Edward Gulon, head physician of the Atlantic County Hospital for the Insane at Northfield, was held in $100 bail today for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Marshall at Northfield on a charge of assault and battery preferred by Miss Alice McKensie, 24, formerly a nurse at the institution.

Miss McKensie alleged that Dr. Gulon had thrown her clothing out of the front door of the hospital and had then pushed her out and slammed the door. The physician, in pleading not guilty, said he had discharged Miss McKensie on Nov. 20 for mistreating patients and that when she repeatedly ignored his orders to leave he "escorted" her to the door.
